Life Futile, She Jumped.
Starvation in War.
Why Lions Don't Eat Men.
The 77th Generation.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

A GIRL of 18, well educated, handsome, hired an airplane and jumped to her death, when 2,000 feet up. Her farewell note says "life is futile, to go on living is wrong," and asks "What shall I find in death?"

WHATEVER she finds, the young lady, on arrival, should not go up in a plane and jump out. She found an interesting world with great possibilities here and should have stayed.

HAD she married at 17 and had a baby at 18 she would still be here, fussing about the baby.

Too much introspection, an unnatural life filled with vague theories producing temporary insanity are responsible for the sad tragedy.

WE ARE here to work, help others around us, and make the world better for those that follow, as our predecessors made it better for us, do our duty, and not ask fate questions.

Unlimited food would mean a longer war, more killed.

But killing only decimates and affects the living generation. Starvation injures generations unborn. Soldiers are fed, children go hungry.

SCIENCE shows that powerful nations today all descend from cannibals. Under cannibalism the children of strong men and women always had plenty of meat, while those too weak to catch and eat men starved, dwindled, died out.

THEY know by the smell that man is carnivorous and ignore him as not "good to eat."

LET those proud of ancient lineage consider China's most distinguished citizens, Kung Ten-Chen, seventy-seventh lineal descendant of Kung Fu-Tze, whom western barbarians called Confucius.

And consider Kung Ten-Chen's feelings when told of a Nationalist plan to confiscate the ancestral estate of the Confucius family.

SINCE his death about 2,400 years ago Confucius who formulated the medicine rule, fairly well, before Christianity, has been revered by more human beings than any man that ever lived, not excepting the great Gautama, at whose birth the earth quaked, the sun, moon and stars stood still, the blind saw, the lame walked.

"The great mountain must crumble,

How many of our American fortunes will exist, how many names be remembered, after 77 generations?

CONFUCIUS' descendants for centuries had constituted the only hereditary nobility in China until Kung Ten-Chen recently voluntarily abandoned his title of duke, in deference to China's new democracy. Confucius' male descendants number eleven thousand. How many Chinese would there be had all been cared for as well as Kung Fu-Tze's children.

A CRAVING for alcohol is not easily subdued. Attendants in public institutions have been known to drink alcohol used to preserve anatomical specimens in glass jars.

It is said that Nelson's body, brought to London in a cask of rum to preserve it, arrived in bad condition because sailors drank the rum.

AT Onamia, Minn., three Indians drained and drank an anti-freeze solution from a white man's automobile. They died.

Two or three generations of statistics will decide which is practical.

CHICAGO'S civic theater has begun producing Shakespeare's plays regularly, and Chicago likes them. No English-speaking theater, except Stratford, produces Shakespeare as a regular diet.

Chicago trusts that Boston and New York will now back up and stop talking about their culture.

MR. HUMBERT FUGAZY had "the fighting rights" of several heavyweight prize fighters, including the powerful German, Schmeling. He sells his rights to Madison Square Garden Company for $75,000. Madison Square will sell the fights to a howling public for several hundred thousand dollars. That's one view of our civilization.

LOBBY CHIEF BRANDED 'YELLOW'

Grundy Draws Caraway Fire For Refusing Senate List; Pair Later Shake Hands

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—The Senate's lobby investigation blazed today with Senator Caraway (Dem.), of Arkansas, the chairman, calling Joseph R. Grundy, the Pennsylvania protectionist, "a welcher" and "yellow."

The comments were called forth when Grundy refused to give a list of "common and preferred senators," saying he had "changed his mind."

After Grundy has been dismissed, Caraway withdrew his remarks and shook hands with the high tariff lobbyist, saying, "After all, I kind of like him."

GRUNDY STILL BLAND

Grundy was put on the witness stand for a grilling on his previous testimony that southern and western senators came from "backward states" and "should talk darn small" on tariff matters.

When Caraway endeavored to get Grundy today to elaborate on those statements, and to list the senators and the states that he considered "backward," the ruddy-cheeked Pennsylvanian refused to do so, and Caraway declared that he was "welching" and "yellow."

Still bland, but obviously in a different frame of mind, Grundy said reflection had brought him to the conclusion his previous testimony was a "mistake."

His appearance before the committee was brief and ended abruptly when Caraway bluntly "excused" him immediately after his refusal to name senators he thought should go in his group of "small talkers."

REMARKS INTERRUPTED

"I thought that," Caraway snapped, when Grundy told him he thought it would be "unbecoming" for him to name the senators.

"I thought you were going to turn yellow at the last."

The Pennsylvanian was interrupted in an explanation of his actions by a sharp "That all; you're excused," from Caraway.

"I don't want those words in the record," he said, "because I kind of like Mr. Grundy. I didn't think he would go through with this. He couldn't have lived

WAR SECRETARY OPERATED ON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—(AP.)—Secretary of War James W. Good today underwent an emergency operation for appendicitis at Walter Reed Hospital. The surgeons discovered what was termed a "serious condition."

The secretary of war was stricken late last night and was immediately removed to the hospital. Mrs. Good accompanied him.

After a conference today between Secretary Wilbur, of the Interior Department, who is a physician, and Dr. Joel T. Boone, the White House physician, the operation was decided upon.

Secretary Good sometime ago was ordered to a hospital for observation, but was dismissed after he improved.

He was one of the leaders for Herbert Hoover during the campaign for the presidency, leading his campaign in the west. He previously served in the House of Representatives from Iowa.

Princess Slighted, Leaves '400' Flat

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(AP.)—Princess Estelle de Broglie, of Paris, has gone and left New York society flat. She failed to appear at Mrs. Vincent Astor's charity fashion show at which she was to wear a yellow directoire gown. Sponsors said it was because she had not received enough publicity; that her picture had not been provided to the newspapers along with those of debutantes. "I have had an infected tooth," explained the princess.

Hoover Petitioned To Build Up Navy

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—The Military Order of the World War has handed President Hoover a series of resolutions adopted at its convention here. The resolutions urged immediate steps by the government to build the United States Navy up to the 5-5-3 ratio authorized by the Washington Armament Conference, approved military training at schools and colleges and the Citizens Military Training Camps, and bespoke increased pay for officers in all of the services.

Wife on North Side—One On South Side—'Too Bad!'

A young man who admitted he had been dividing his time with one wife in the North Side and another in the South Side stood between them in Morals Court today and confessed:

"I made a terrible mistake. I got drunk in Toledo and when I sobered up I found I had another wife."

The man identified himself as James Gallithen, 34, now of 700 Brownsville road, then of 850 Western avenue.

"TWO-JOB MAN"

Wife No. 2—Mrs. Pauline Meyers Gallithen, 32, of 700 Brownsville road—discovered the alleged bigamous condition.

She said she was suspicious because her husband spent every other night away from home. He told her he had two jobs, a credit adjuster by day, an apartment furnace tender some nights, she said.

FACES BIGAMY CHARGE

Wife No. 1—Pearl Kolbe Gallithen, pianist—told of being married to Gallithen in Cleveland three years ago.

WILLOCK, STEEL HEIR, ELOPES WITH MAID

Father Non-Committal on Elopement of B. F. Jones' Grandson and Swedish Girl

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—Somewhere on Long Island William Willock, Jr., 22, socially prominent and heir to a fortune, and his bride, former chambermaid in his home, today were dodging reporters who desired to ask questions regarding their elopement to Oyster Bay last Wednesday.

Willock, son of William W. Willock, former vice president of the Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation, whose mother was Miss Alice B. Jones, daughter of the late B. F. Jones, Sr., steel manufacturer, of Pittsburgh, failed a few days ago to effect a reconciliation with his parents, it was said today.

'CRAZY ABOUT EACH OTHER'

The bride was Adelaide Englebret, 20, a Swedish girl who became a maid in the Willock home last February, remaining until last month.

"They were crazy about each other," a maid in the house told a reporter.

"Young Willock has an experimental shop in Syosset, and ever since the girl left here she had been spending her time around the shop. She seemed to be much interested in his experiments.

HOME-TEARS IN PARTING

"After they were married they came home," said the informant. "It was dinner time when I saw them go into the house. A few minutes later they came out and went away. Adelaide was crying. I knew the cause. Since then I haven't heard anything of them, but I'm pretty sure they are out on Long Island somewhere."

At the palatial, New York home of the Willocks at 998 Fifth avenue, the father had little to say.

"My son married last Wednesday," he said. "I have no idea where they are now, but I understand they are leaving today for a wedding trip in the south."

He declined to say if he was reconciled to the marriage, or whether he would disinherit his son.

8 FAIL IN NAVAL BASE HOLDUP

NEW YORK, Nov. 13. — (AP.) — Eight men, carrying pistols, drove up in an automobile to the United States Navy Supply Building in Brooklyn at 1 a. m. today, overpowered the officer of the day and his guards and worked for nearly five hours in an unsuccessful attempt to force the safe, said to contain $86,000.

Failing in their object the men fled. A preliminary check said nothing of value was taken. The building is at Third avenue and Twenty-ninth street.

The holdup men, police said, had evidently made a careful plan of attack and had an intimate knowledge of the building.

Kansas Girl to Sing In Chicago Opera

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—(AP.)—A 21-year-old girl from Wichita, Kan., will make her operatic debut with the Chicago Civic Opera Company this season.

The young woman is Kathleen Kersting, whose voice was discovered by Mme Emma Calve on a visit to Wichita eight years ago. Miss Kersting studied for several years in France with Mme Calve. In 1925, through efforts by the Wichita Rotary Club, she was sent to Italy for further training.

RENO, Nev., Nov. 13.—Charging mental cruelty, Mrs. Robert Munson has secured a divorce from her husband, who is the son of a wealthy Albany, N. Y., banker and manufacturer. Mrs. Munson, socially prominent in Albany, claimed her husband was "critical, sarcastic and ironical" and was "afflicted with a superiority complex."

Married in 1917, the couple has two children, whose custody was given Mrs. Munson.

Chicago Population Set at 3,320,000

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—(AP.)—Cook County will start the year 1930 with a population of 3,950,000, the Chicago Regional Planning Association has estimated. Of this number 3,320,000 will live in the City of Chicago. The estimated population of the Chicago area—including the city's industrial hinterland in 15 nearby counties of three states—was fixed at [illegible],000.

VOTE ARRESTS ORDERED

Informations were prepared today against three residents of the Second Ward, Homestead, charging them with employing repeaters at the primary election in September. The names of the accused will be withheld, Assistant District Attorney Andrew T. Park, in charge of the prosecution, said, until the warrants have been served.

The informations are based on alleged confessions of Richard Durant and Joseph Boyd Bennett, Negroes, who are held in the county jail, charged with repeating. Bail was fixed at $5,000 each in their case today.

SIX VOTES CHARGED

In informations made against the two men by County Detective David Drexler, Durant is accused of having voted six times in the September primary. He cast ballots, it is alleged, in the Second district of the First ward, the Second, Third and Fourth districts of the Second ward, and the Second dis-

MADRID, Nov. 13.—(AP.)—The Spanish government has decided to contribute 15,000 pesetas (about $2,000) toward the expenses of the forthcoming polar flight of the Graf Zeppelin. The expedition, according to the Spanish academician Torroja, will be international in character. Senor Torroja has been working on a plan whereby Spain will assist in the scientific investigation in the Arctic aboard the dirigible.

STOCKS HIT NEW LOW PRICES

President and Treasury Head Confer on Situation; Bankers' Pool Active

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—There were unmistakable indications here today that the continued decline in the stock market and its effect on the general credit structure of the country is causing administration officials grave anxiety.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, Gov. Roy A. Young, of the Federal Reserve Board, and Under Secretary of the Treasury Mills had a conference of three-quarters of an hour with President Hoover at the White House this morning. They declined to comment upon leaving.

This conference followed an all-day meeting of the reserve board yesterday.

After leaving the White House, Mellon, Young and Mills went to the Treasury and continued their conference.

They declined to see newspaper correspondents and merely sent out word that "there is no statement to make."

STOCKS AT NEW LOWS

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—Stock prices crumbled to new low levels again today when the brisk rally, which followed the opening decline failed to hold. It was apparent that the market was still confronted with a large volume of distress liquidation. The battle on the floor of the exchange centered around the post where U. S. Steel common is traded in, that stock breaking to a new low for the year at $1.51.75 a share, after having sold today as high as $159.75.

At noon the total sales were 5,130,000 shares against 4,234,000 for the same period yesterday. The ticker was approximately 55 minutes behind the market.

SELLING IS "MYSTERY"

Except for a moderate rally last Thursday, the stock market has closed lower every day for the last two weeks. Wall street was still seeking vainly today for an answer to the questions which have puzzled traders in the interval, namely "where is the selling coming from" and "how long will it last?"

On several occasions it appeared that the worst was over, but fresh offerings invariably have appeared and prices have plunged into new low ground.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(INS.)—Back in New York after a secret five-day motor trip into the country, during which time his whereabouts were unknown, Mayor James J. Walker was to return to City Hall today. The Mayor took the trip in order to recover from the strain of the recent elections.

Five-Power Naval Parley Slows Singapore Base

LONDON, Nov. 13.—(INS.)—The first concrete results of the forthcoming five power naval disarmament conference, which is still 10 weeks in the future, was announced in the House of Commons today with the declaration that Britain is slowing down construction work on the Singapore base.

The announcement was made by First Lord of the Admiralty Alexander. In answer to questions he said that pending the outcome of the naval conference to be called in London in the third week of January, the government has ordered a general retarding of work on the Singapore base.

It had previously been predicted as a result of Prime Minister MacDonald's visit to the United States and his conversations with President Hoover, the MacDonald government might have some announcement to make regarding the retention of British naval bases adjacent to the American Atlantic coast.

NEW BRITISH AMBASSADOR TO U. S. LIFTING LIQUOR BAN

DRY REGIME AT EMBASSY NEAR END

Sir Esme Howard's Successor Well Known in Diplomatic Work; Now in Washington

By HARRY B. FLORY, International News Service.

LONDON, Nov. 13. — The British embassy at Washington, rapidly approaching a "bone-dry" state under the jurisdiction of Sir Esme Howard, retiring ambassador, is due for a wet revival under the ambassadorship of Sir Ronald Lindsay, according to opinion expressed here today.

Sir Ronald, formerly counsellor at the British embassy in Washington and now permanent undersecretary for foreign affairs, will not continue the prohibition ban enforced by his predecessor when he takes over the Washington post early next year, it is believed by his friends.

APPOINTMENT PLEASES

Sir Ronald's appointment, announced unexpectedly last night, was hailed with complete satisfaction on all sides today. The press is unanimous in support of his selection, and his previous American contacts, coupled with his pleasing personality and great diplomatic ability, are expected to go a long way in furthering the new and friendly relations between Britain and America established by the government of Premier Ramsay MacDonald.

With the new appointment, it is recalled that the action of Sir Esme in stopping diplomatic liquor shipments to himself and his staff caused considerable comment and criticism, and it was pointed out at the time that it was not regarded as an official precedent.

DRY MOVE VOLUNTARY

The move was entirely a voluntary and personal one on the part of Sir Esme, and his successor is by no means bound to follow it. For this reason Sir Ronald's friends believe he will allow the embassy staff to take advantage of the diplomatic liquor privileges enjoyed by all other foreign representatives in Washington.

Along with the appointment of Sir Ronald, it was announced that Sir Robert Vansittart, assistant undersecretary at the foreign office, and principal private secretary to Premier MacDonald, would succeed him as permanent under-secretary. In addition, the appointment of Sir Esmond Ovey as ambassador to Russia, exclusively forecast by International News Service a week ago, was confined. Ovey, now ambassador to Mexico, will be succeeded there by John Edmund St. John Debonnaire Monson, who has seen service in France, South America and the Orient.

AMERICAN WIFE

Sir Ronald is expected to be one of the most popular envoys Britain has sent to the United States. He is well known in the American capital, due to his experience there during the Wilson administration.

Sir Ronald has long been considered one of the outstanding men in British public life. Eschewing politics, he has served no particular party nor administration, and is known as a "career" man—a diplomat groomed through years of service for the bigger posts the service offers.

WASHINGTON PLEASED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—(INS.)—The appointment of Sir Ronald Lindsay as British ambassador to the United States to succeed Sir Esme Howard, soon to retire, was received in official circles today with general satisfaction.

Sir Ronald, now permanent under secretary of state for foreign affairs, is well known here, having served from 1905 to 1907 at the British embassy and again from 1919 to 1920 as its counselor. He is 52 years old and has twice been married to American women.

Sir Ronald married in 1924 Elizabeth Sherman Hoyt, daughter of the late Colgate Hoyt, of New York.

A brawny Scotsman, more than six feet tall, he is the fifth son of the twenty-sixth Earl of Crawford and has been in his country's diplomatic service many years, having been ambassador to Turkey and to Berlin before becoming under secretary of the foreign office. He also served at St. Petersburg, Teheran and at Paris.

When Sir Esme retires he will be succeeded by Herman Valarde, Peruvian ambassador, as dean of the diplomatic corps.

through the criticism that would have resulted."

DEEMED "UNBECOMING"

"You know you agreed you would give us a list of your approved senators and the others. Are you ready to do that?"

"It would be entirely unbecoming to me as a private citizen interested in legislation to do that," Grundy replied.

"You made a positive, absolute promise—now do you welch on it?"

"On reflection, I weakened. I feel that I made a mistake, on reflection."

"Well, I want to know if you will welch?"

"I wouldn't want to call it that."

"I thought that. I thought you were going to turn yellow at the last."

PAIR SHAKE HANDS

Caraway was smiling in a friendly manner when, after he excused Grundy, he walked to the rear of the committee room to shake hands with him.

Thomas J. Hill, of Pine Bluff, Ark., treasurer of the National Council of State Legislatures, followed Grundy on the stand to explain the work of his organization and its connection with the Southern Tariff Association and American Taxpayers' League, high tariff organizations which for 10 days have been under committee scrutiny. J. A. Arnold, manager of the two organizations, said the two bodies were "a sort of a wet nurse to the Council of State Legislatures."

Hill said Arnold was the "moving spirit" behind his organization. He asserted he received $212 from the council for expenses in attending a Washington convention of its membership in 1927. Hill said he knew of no payments to his organization from the American Taxpayers' League.

Frank Mondell, former Republican leader of the House, attended and made an address at the first meeting of the council in 1925, Hill said. At the time Mondell was counsel for the Taxpayers' League. His own interest in the council, Hill explained, was that he was in accord with its policy of urging repeal of the federal inheritance tax.

Lobby Expenses Allowed as Tax Credits

The United States Board of Tax Appeals has so ruled in the case of an Alabama taxpayer who paid an attorney $7,750 to lobby against proposed legislation setting certain standards for motor fuel sold in that state.

The payment "represented an ordinary and necessary business expense," the board ruled. The Department of Justice is now considering whether to appeal the decision to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

under her care, the trunk moved in with her. So says Mrs. Sadie Work, the landlady.

It took two brawny expressmen to carry it and part of the entrance doors had to be removed to get it in. What the police will find inside the mystery trunk when they find it, if they do, is problematical. But they are anxious to find it, nevertheless.

Miss Parks ate her breakfast today calmly and let Prosecutor Clifford Baldwin worry about his promise that he would have a new confession soon from her concerning the death of the Rogers infants.

CLINGS TO STORY

Through thick and thin, the former model and piano player has clung to her original version of the children's deaths. Dorothy died after she slapped her. Timothy fell downstairs and was killed.

In the grim shadows of the houses of death, she went over the "accidents" as she had pictured them and protested her innocence.

"I didn't kill them—honestly," she insisted.

Over the remains of little Timothy, the one she loved best of the two children, so she says, Miss Parks did not blink a grey-greenish eye.

"He fell downstairs—honestly," she declared.

Throughout it all, she maintains a dignity, a pathetic dignity under the circumstances, in line with her own spoken estimate that she is "a lady."

LAWYER SEEKS RELEASE

Cyril S. Landau, New York lawyer, arrived here today to attempt to obtain a writ of habeas corpus for the release of Miss Parks.

Landau said that he was hired by a "mystery man," of whose identity he was unaware, to act as counsel for the prisoner.

"I do not believe that the state is in a position at present to proceed with the case on a charge of murder, since there can be no definite charge against this woman other than that of a civil action at law to recover a penalty for illegally burying the deceased without proper permits," said Landau.

Mrs. Joseph E. Austin, of Camden, informed police that three years ago Miss Parks tried to obtain their 3-year-old daughter, Dorothy, to bring up.

"She said she would like to teach the child to play the piano and prepare her for the stage," said Mrs. Austin. "I am so thankful we didn't give our baby to her."

Mrs. Austin has seven children.

OFFICIALS HELD IN DRY DRIVE

MOSCOW, Idaho, Nov. 13.—(AP.)—Roundup of more than 40 persons accused in secret indictments of violating the prohibition law had resulted today in arrest of six public officials and two former officials of Northern Idaho.

Most of those indicted are believed to be residents of Shoshone County, center of the Coeur D'Alene mining district. The small cities affected are hidden away in the mountains in the richest silver and lead mining district in the world.

The mountain communities, officers declared, have "made a law unto themselves" in the matter of prohibition enforcement.

Denials of the charges against them were made by the eight persons under arrest. They are R. E. Weininger, of Wallace, sheriff of Shoshone County; Charles Bloom, Mullan, deputy sheriff; Mayor Arthur J. Harwood, of Mullan; Chief of Police Army Welch, of Pullman; Henry Foss and Charles Ristau, city councilmen, of Mullan, and George Huston and Elmer Olson, former city councilman, of Mullan.

Food Ship Plea Objections Anticipated by President, Leaving Issue to Debate

By GEORGE R. HOLMES International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—The somewhat cool reception which Europe has given President Hoover's suggestion of making food ships immune from attack or seizure in wartime did not greatly surprise nor disappoint him.

Mr. Hoover anticipated the objections that would be raised against his proposal abroad, and he is content to let the whole project be hammered out "on the anvil of debate," as he himself expressed it, confident that the more the world thinks about it the better it will think about it.

PARLEY REPORT DENIED

Reports that the President contemplates inviting the world's naval powers to a conference on the subject were authoritatively described today as without foundation. Mr. Hoover has no such idea, it was stated.

Perhaps in the distant future, after the January naval conference in London has succeeded or failed, and after world opinion has crystallized, such a conference might be feasible, but for the time being he is satisfied to have the subject one of active discussion in all the chancelleries of Europe.

That the League of Nations will have to discuss it is considered a foregone conclusion, for the President's proposal strikes at one of the largest supports of the entire structure of the league—the right of establishing an economic blockade against a recalcitrant and warring nation.

REACTIONS SUMMARIZED

Radical revision of this article of the league's covenant would be necessary if Mr. Hoover's idea should be carried out, and nobody, least of all Mr. Hoover, has any expectation that this could be easily accomplished. Every nation in Europe is a member of the league, and the United States is on the outside.

Europe's reaction to the President's suggestion, as judged from initial press comment and the cautious utterances of statesmen, might be summarized thus:

France—Very cool.

Italy—Cynical coolness.

Germany's whole-hearted approval of the Hoover plan was anticipated, for Germany alone of the major European powers is without a navy of any consequence, and dependent to a considerable extent on outside supplies of food. And Germany doesn't forget that had the plan been in effect during the World War she might have won it, for the backbone of German resistance was broken by the economic blockade which the allies maintained to cut off her supplies of food and war materials from the outside.

ENGLAND HOLDS FATE

England is the country most vitally concerned with the President's proposal, for England cannot feed herself except through the protection afforded by the British navy to her merchant shipping.

There was considerable speculation today as to whether President Hoover had discussed the project with Ramsay MacDonald during his visit here. The impression prevailed that it was discussed, although no official confirmation could be obtained. It was noted, however, that the most favorable comment in Europe, outside of Germany, came from the press that is supporting the MacDonald Labor government.

AUSTRIAN REDS MARCH QUIETLY

VIENNA, Nov. 13.—(AP.)—The Socialist celebration of the declaration of the republic of Asturia 11 years ago was conducted in good order except for isolated clashes with Communists who tried to break up the processions.

There were tens of thousands, carrying red flags and preceded by bands, who passed quietly before the City Hall, then dispersed to various districts.

From other points in the republic, especially Graz, there were reported counter demonstrations organized by Fascist heimwehr but in several instances these were prevented from interfering with the Socialists by barbed wire barricades in the streets.

SPEZIA, Italy, Nov. 13.—(AP.)—The Italian liner Augustus today wirelessed the station here she had saved crew and passengers of a French hydroplane belonging to the Commercial line operating from Marseilles to Tunis.

The rescue was made at 8:30 last night after an SOS had been picked up by the naval station here and relayed to all shipping that the plane had been forced down off Cape Palermi, Sardinial.

RESCUED PARTY OUT OF ARCTIC

WINNIPEG, Manitoba, Nov. 13.—(INS.)—Having successfully battled sub-Arctic blizzards and windstorms, Col. C. D. H. McAlpine, his seven companions and their rescuers expected to take off from Fort Reliance on the third lap of their journey back to civilization today.

With the temparature at 30 below zero, the party left Bathurst yesterday, according to a message from Capt. G. S. Blanchet received here last night.

Blanchet is accompanying the eight geologist-explorers who were rescued from Cambridge Bay, at the south fringe of the Arctic Circle. The party was lost to civilization for eight weeks after its airplanes strayed from the course and were forced to land.

A 200-mile flight to Resolution was the goal set by Capt. Blanchet today. Fort Reliance is situated on McLeon Bay, a small body of water adjoining Great Slave Lake at the north. The trip from this point to Resolution would be made along the east shore of Great Slave Lake.

G.O.P. TRUCE AIM DURING VACATION

Leaders Alarmed as Split In Senate Grows Wider; Adjournment on Nov. 23

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHISON. International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—While the ranks of the militant Republican insurgents solidified under attack, administration leaders today were hope hopefully arranging an early adjournment of the special session of Congress as a means of bringing a truce to the battling Republican factions on Capitol Hill.

The special session will be terminated Saturday, November 23, unless some unforeseen developments in consideration of the pending tariff bill carry the proceedings over into Thanksgiving week. This adjournment will give the Senate a week's vacation before the next regular session opens, on Monday, December 2.

LEADERS ALARMED

Administration leaders believed a week's rest, far from the bickering and blistering of parliamentary warfare, will quiet frayed nerves and soothe frayed tempers to such an extent that the breach within the Republican party in the Senate can be healed at the next session. The "split" between insurgents and old guards has grown to such a point that administration spokesmen are thoroughly alarmed over the future. They particularly fear intra-party warfare in the 1930 elections and the possibility of a third party movement in 1932—both of which would wreak havoc to the chances of Republican success at the polls.

The immediate concern of the peace negotiators was to find some medium of legislation which will serve to reunite the party early in the new session. This might easily be a new disarmament treaty, to be brought back early in the new year from the International Conference in London in January.

It may also be an economic measure, intended to pacify the insurgents—a bill possibly for government operation of Muscle Shoals, which lies close to the heart of Senator George W. Norris, (Rep.) of Neb., The insurgent leader. Again, it may be regulation of the stock exchanges, another pet hobby of the insurgents.

BREACH TO GROW

Until some such medium is found, it was apparent the Republican breach will grow. Both sides were agreed there can be no peace so long as the tariff bill remains before the Senate, as each passing day sees the tariff wars growing more bitter. There was an indication of this intense feeling in a statement, issued by Senator William E. Borah, (Rep.), of Idaho, one of the Insurgent leaders, defending the position of his group.

"Industry is now in possession of nearly 97 per cent of the home market," said Borah. "And what the coalition, so-called, is undertaking to do is to prevent unconscionable raises in industrial duties which would amount to an embargo.

"The coalition has made no attack upon the protective system. We are simply endeavoring to establish the principle of equality in that system as between agriculture and industry."

The warfare meanwhile continued. Only adjournment of the special session can bring a truce. Hence administration leaders were anxious to arrange that truce—even for one week.

Reed and Norris Explain Divergent Tariff Views

[EDITORIAL NOTE—The Republican party has divided into two bitter factions in the Senate over economic problems, arising out of consideration of the new tariff bill. The breach has caused serious alarm among many party leaders, who fear the division may be carried into the presidential elections of 1932, with as disastrous effects to the Republican party as the split of 1912. The views of the opposing leaders are given in the following articles.]

By SENATOR DAVID A. REED
Leader of the "Old Guard" Republicans.
(Copyright, 1929, by International News Service.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—The position of the so-called Regular Republicans, as I interpret it, is that all Americans are equal, whether they be easterners or westerners, whether they be farmers or factory workers. The Senators, who call themselves Progressives, seem to have approached the tariff question as if the Middle West was at war with the East. I decline to admit that.

I believe it to be my duty to vote for every sound measure that will increase the prosperity of the great farm states and I intend to follow that policy whatever may be the attitude of the senators from those states toward the industries of the East. I will decline to war against the Middle West, but I will fight to the last ditch against any attempt by senators from that region to break down the prosperity of the industrial regions of eastern states.

To put it in a nutshell, I want to see the less prosperous industries of the East and the less prosperous agriculturists of the West brought up to the level with the most prosperous. Our adversaries seem to want to pull down the more prosperous to a common level of misery.

The remedy is for all of us to remember that we represent the whole Nation — that we are not here as advocates of isolated states.

By SENATOR GEORGE W. NORRIS
Leader of the "Insurgent" Republicans
(Copyrighted, 1929, by International News Service.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—The western agriculturalists are demanding that the Republican party fulfill the pledge made to agriculture as set forth in the platform at Kansas City and in the speeches made by its candidate for President, Mr. Hoover. This promise was that Congress and the President would put agriculture on the same economic basis enjoyed by the manufacturers of the East. The western representatives are demanding that this promise be kept.

The West cannot continue to exist under an economic standard which forces it to buy in a highly protected market, while selling in a market dominated by world prices.

The eastern representatives, or at least many of them, are refusing to keep the promise made by the Republican party at Kansas City. This has constituted the so-called breach.

The only remedy is that the representatives of the manufacturing East should fairly and honestly redeem this pledge.

STOCKS HIT NEW PRICES

tric, New York Central and Union Pacific has led to a widespread belief that heavy liquidation was taking place of stocks which had been used as collateral for bank loans, and that insurance companies, investment truts and other large financial institutions were lightening up on their holdings of junior securities.

One of the supposed "sore spots" in the current situation is the large volume of new and undigested securities hanging over the market. During the past year, more than two billion dollars in investment trust, trading and holding corporatoin securities have been sold to the public, and the recent severe decline is believed to have resulted in large blocks of these being thrown back into the market.

STOCKS LOW—LIVERMORE

Wall street also has heard stories of relentless "bear" attacks on the market by a group of powerful operators, but Jesse Livermore, who is reported to have been one of the leaders of a "bear" group active a couple of weeks ago, was quoted today as stating that "leading stocks with good dividend records and a certain future are on the bargain counter right now."

Directors of the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation today omitted the usual extra dividend of 25 cents, declaring only the regular quarterly payment of 50 cents.

Hospitals Failing Masses, U. S. Health Chief Says

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—(AP.)—The pauper receives the benefits of modern medicine free of charge and the millionaire pays dearly for them, but in the opinion of Dr. Hugh S. Cumming, surgeon general of the Public Health Service, the man of moderate means who will not accept charity and cannot afford high fees is being neglected.

This situation, he said today, presents a challenge to the medical profession and must be met by a readjustment of the cost of medical attention.

"The charity systems of our medical schools and huge hospitals make it possible for the pauper to share with the multi-millionaire the skill of the same surgeon," Dr. Cumming pointed out. "But this type of service is not now available to the man who cannot pay the high fees, and who will not accept charity.

"That means the mass. And mass intelligence in medicine is relatively high. Due to years of health education the average man knows, at least in a vague way, about the advancement of medicine. He knows, too, that he has a way of getting what he wants, through the vote, and if aroused he will use it."

CHRISTMAS CLUB DEPOSITORS SHARE $7,000,000 FUND

DISTRIBUTION TO BENEFIT 145,000

Savings Believed in Excess Of 1928; 35% Going for Yuletide Gift Purchases

Banks and trust companies in Pittsburgh and Allegheny County will distribute between $7,000,000 and $10,000,000 within the next two or three weeks to Christmas Club depositors.

Some banks report an increased interest in the Christmas Club account over the previous your. It was estimated $7,500,000 was paid club depositors last year.

Statistics show 35 to 40 per cent of the clubs' money is spent for gifts, 30 per cent goes into savings accounts, and the remainder is jad away for the payment of taxes, interest on mortgages, education, travel, charity and for other uses.

The leader in the downtown district, in the distribution of Christmas savings checks has been the Union Savings Bank. Its figures were not available today.

BOMB 'EXPOSE' BRANDED FAKE

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 13.—(AP.)—Declaring the alleged deathbed statement of Lewis Smith, of Bellaire, O., assuming responsibility for the San Francisco preparedness day bombing in 1916, could not be based on fact, Charles M. Fickert, Los Angeles attorney, said today the confession either was a "hallucination" of a sick man or was "fabricated after his death for the purpose of aiding the Mooney agitation."

Fickert was District Attorney of San Francisco county during the trial of Thomas J. Mooney in 1916. Mooney is serving a life term in San Quentin prison for the bombing.

"The alleged confession of Lewis Smith is just some more misinformation," Fickert said. "His statement that the bomb was thrown shows that he was ignorant of what occurred there. All the physical facts prove that the bomb, with a time clock to detonate it, was enclosed in a suit case and left at the scene of the explosion, and that it could not possibly have been thrown."

BESSIE LOVE

BESSIE LOVE'S WEDDING SET

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 13.—(AP.)—The engagement of Bessie Love to William Hawks, a broker, persistently rumored and as persistently denied for several weeks, was confirmed today by the motion picture actress. They will be married soon after the Christmas holidays, she said.

With the ceremony, Mary Astor will become Miss Love's sister-in-law. She is married to Kenneth Hawks, a brother of the bridegroom-to-be. The former Mrs. Athele Ward, sister of Norma Shearer, screen player, is wife of Howard Hawks, another brother of Miss Love's fiance.

An imposing array of Hollywood film colony luminaries will participate in the nuptial ceremonies, according to Miss Love. Blanche Sweet will be the matron of honor. The bridesmaids will be Norma Shearer, Irene and Edith Mayer, Carmel Myers, Mary Astor and Bebe Daniels.

Dry Agents Retaliate For Sinking of Boats

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 13.—(AP.)—Federal prohibition agents, who had two of the boats they used in operations against rum runners bombed in the harbor here early Monday, seized and destroyed approximately 1,300 gallons of liquor late last night, confiscated five automobiles and placed six men under arrest.

"If it's war the moonshiners want it's war they'll get," said Finis E. Wilson, district enforcement administrator.

Stray Bullet Strikes Man in Irwin Office

IRWIN, Pa., Nov. 13.—A spent stray bullet believed to have been fired from a high-power rifle several miles away, pierced the corrugated iron roof of the Pittsburgh Reflector Company here yesterday and struck W. K. Younge, superintendent, as he was talking to a man in his office. The missile ripped his trousers and inflicted a flesh wound in his leg, police reported.

THAW TO FIGHT SETTLEMENT IN GIRL CASE

Harry, Visiting in Pittsburgh, Declared Non Appearance On Stand Prejudiced Jury

Harry K. Thaw today declared he will not give Marcia Estardus, New York night club entertainer, the $25,000 she expresses willingness to accept in settlement of the $75,000 verdict awarded for an alleged beating. He will appeal the verdict, he said.

He is a guest at the William Penn Hotel.

The girl, known in private life as Mae O'Neill, filed formal notice in New York yesterday that she would accept settlement. Supreme Court Justice Aaron J. Levy handed down an order last Friday that he was considering the possibility of granting a motion to set aside the $75,000 award if Miss Estardus would not accept the smaller amount.

TELLS OF SPANKING

The original award was made by a jury two weeks ago, after listening to the girl's version of how Thaw spanked her with a hairbrush at a New Year party in 1927.

Denying the girl's charges, Thaw today blamed his non-appearance on the witness stand for her victory.

In the first statement since the trial ended, he said:

"That jury's verdict was false. All in court and every official were surprised. The jury, after many days, got a notion I was afraid to testify. No one had thought of that idea. Only the jury.

FEARED QUESTIONING

"But my lawyer told me I might have six days of cross-examination, never about the girl, but of horrible Matteawan, the cheerful Dr. Rabbit-Fuller, the good and honest New York Tombs, and such. My lawyer told me this would injure the case.

"By now we know two things. First, no judge would waste his own time and the jury's time after an hour or two not about the case. Second, I should have been sworn so the jury would not be leary.

"Three-fourths of that jury was honest, probably all 12 jurors. Yet all but one disliked my silence. I don't think any swallowed her fake, but believed I was afraid to swear."

Reynolds Acquitted Of Perilous Driving

ACTON, England, Nov. 13.—(INS)—Richard Joshua Reynolds, 23-year-old son of the late R. J. Reynolds, founder of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, today was acquitted by the police magistrate here of a charge of dangerous driving.

The charge grew out of the same incident for which the American has already been sentenced to three months imprisonment for manslaughter, after Arthur Graham, was knocked down and killed on May 14, last, near Windsor, by an automobile alleged to have been driven by Reynolds.

Mother of 9 Held In Poisoning Plot

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Nov. 13.—Mrs. Belle Kennedy, of Brooks Run, mother of nine children, a widow, was held under $5,000 bond to the Federal Grand Jury charged with misuse of the United States mails, when arraigned before United States Commissioner James Borkowski. She is alleged to have sent poison candy through the mail to her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Mary Adams Kennedy, of Bellaire, O.

NOBEL PRIZES AWARDED

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 13.—The Nobel Foundation has announced three more awards, each worth $46,299, and four winners. The prize in literature was given yesterday to Thomas Mann, German novelist, and the prize in medicine was announced October 31, so that the only award for 1929 still unsettled is that for peace. The new awards follow:

Physics, 1928, Prof. Owen W. Richardson, of Kings College, London, discoverer of "Richardson's law" on the motion of electrons, which forms the basis of the radio tube.

Physics, 1929, the Duc de Broglie, of Paris, a research worker in the fields of electricity and the X-ray.

Chemistry, 1929, divided between Dr. Arthur Harden, professor of bio-chemistry at London University, and Prof. Hans von Euler-Chelpin, of Upsala University, Sweden, in recognition of their researches in the fermentation of sugars and the enzyme action in the process. Von Eulen-Chelpin is a German who has long been associated with Swedish universities.

The medicine prize for 1929 was divided between Dr. Frederick Gowland Hopkins, professor of bi-chemistry at the University of Cambridge, England, and Dr. C. Eijkmann, of the University of Utrecht, Holland.

Son Finds Father Victim of Hanging

BALLOT BOX STOLEN

Justice of the Peace John B. Jones, of Homestead, disclosed today that the ballot box of the First District of the Second Ward was stolen from his office the morning after the primary election. His office was forced open by the thieves. He said he reported the theft to the Homestead police, but not to the district attorney's office.

Justice of the Peace J. Clyde Miller, of Homestead, to whom the ballot boxes of the three other districts of the Second Ward were trusted, disclosed that the contents of the boxes of the Second and Fourth Districts were burned, so that they might be used in the election last week.

The box for the Fourth District, Miller said, was turned over to the recount board.

These things came to light when Drexler sought the ballots cast in the Second Ward, Homestead, in the primary as evidence to be used in the prosecution of Durant, Bennett and the men alleged to have employed them.

Judge George V. Moore, in Common Pleas Court today, ordered that the votes cast in the Fourth District of Dravosburg be recounted by the official return board.

Voters in a petition sought to have the special recount board check the votes, but Judge Moore said they are so far behind in their work now that they would be unable to give immediate attention to the Dravosburg petition.

The recount was asked because Thomas D. Watkins defeated C. J. Carlson in a fight for burgess, by only one vote.

Mrs. Roosevelt's Aunt, 70, Flies For Visit

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Nov. 13.—(AP.)—Mrs. Alice Hoffman, aunt of Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, the wife of the governor of Porto Rico, completed her first air adventure when she arrived from New York to visit for a month with her relatives.

She is nearly 70 years of age and has lived much recently in Paris.

"I vowed I would never leave the ground," she said, when she stepped from the plane, "but the trip was magnificent."

TIN PLATE CO. SUES FOR TAX

Two suits against D. B. Heiner, collector of internal revenue, in which the McKeesport Tinplate Company seeks judgment against the United States government for $374,225.67, were filed today in United States Court.

In one suit, recovery of $271,076.14, which was additional assessment on income and excess profit tax for 1918, is sought. In the other, $103,149.53, is sought in recompense for expense in producing war materials.

Income and profit tax returns filed by the company for 1918 recorded a tax liability of $947,404.97, according to the bill of complaint.

CARDINAL SEES CURE SEEKERS

MALDEN, Mass., Nov. 13.—(INS.)—Interest in the grave of the Rev. Patrick Tower in Holy Cross Cemetery here, which, in the past week, has become a shrine for thousands of cure seekers, was intensified today by the unexpected visit paid the grave yesterday by Cardinal William O'Connell, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Boston.

Alone and unannounced the cardinal stood quietly for a few minutes watching hundreds of cripples file by the grave and pray. He declined to make comment.

Cemetery officials today prepared for another immense throng, for since Sunday when some 100,000 pilgrims staged a near panic, there has been but little decrease in the crowds.

To preserve order a wooden fence has been erected around the grave and only a few persons are allowed to approach the grave at a time. Many knelt and scooped handfuls of dirt from the grave. Several persons declared yesterday that their ills had been cured.

Blame Heart Illness In Somerset Case

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 13.—(AP.)—County Coroner Frank Nance announced, following chemical analysis of the organs of Mrs. Shelby Worrall Somerset, wife of Pat Somerset, actor, that she had died of a heart ailment. The analysis and the questioning of Somerset had been ordered as the result of an autopsy indicating that poison might have caused the death in her sleep Sunday of the former Galveston (Tex.) beauty.

Mears Aims to Cut Zep's World Record

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—(AP.)—John Henry Mears, of New York, speaking here yesterday, announced plans for a new attempt at the record for circling the earth, now held by the Graf Zeppelin. Mears and the late Charles Collyer held the world-circling record until the Graf's flight.

The new trip will be started next June, Mears said. The Pacific hop is to follow the path traveled by the Soviet fliers.

Check Forger Gets 8 Months in Jail

GREENSBURG, Pa., Nov. 13.—A. C. Setrms, of Fayetet County, was sentenced to serve eight months in the county jail here on a charge of issuing bad checks. It was alleged he passed bad checks aggregating several thousand dollars upon John Donovan, of Monessen, for whom he worked.

EX-KAISER'S SISTER DIES, DESTITUTE

Last Days Spent in Poverty And Disgrace as Result Of Wedding Dishwasher

International News Service.

BONN, Germany, Nov. 13.—Frau Victoria Zoubkoff, sister of the former Kaiser Wilhelm, whose marriage to a commoner took her from the heights of aristocratic glory to penury and disgrace, died in Franciscus Hospital here today from infection of the lungs.

Frau Zoubkoff lost her imposing title of Princess Victoria von Schamburg-Lippe when she married Alexandre Zoubkoff, a Russian emigre, several years ago. He is 30 years younger than she.

Hers was the second death within the ranks of the Hohenzollern family within two weeks. Her cousin, Prince Eugene von Schamburg-Lippe, was killed 10 days ago when a German passenger airplane crashed in flames near Caterham, Surrey, England. Prince Eugene, assistant pilot of the plane, died from injuries received in the crash, which took the lives of six others.

LONE FIGHT FOR LIFE

Friendless and penniless, lying fever-tossed and nerve-wracked, the former princess fought her battle against death alone until yesterday, when the ex-Kaiser ordered the condition of his sister telegraphed to him twice daily at his exile castle at Doorn, Holland.

In addition, the ex-Kaiser ordered that his other sister, the Princess Von Hessen, go to the bedside of the dying Princess Victoria.

Frau Zoubkoff was stricken with lung infection shortly after her castle at Bonn and its contents were auctioned to meet the debts incurred by her husband, now a waiter in a Luxembourg cafe. Her condition rapidly became worse, until it became obvious to attending physicians that the privations she suffered in recent years had so weakened her that recovery was impossible.

The ex-princess, whose full name was the Princess Frederique Amelie Wilhelmine Victoria, was born at the new palace, near Potsdam, on April 12, 1866. She was married in Berlin on November 19, 1890, to Prince Adolphe Von Shamburg-Lippe. He died on July 9, 1916.

FORTUNE SQUANDERED

Her marriage to Zoubkoff on November 19, 1927, exactly 37 years after her first marriage, threw a bombshell into the still aristocratic post-war society circles of Germany. She had found him in a Paris cafe, where after unsuccessful attempts to carve himself a career as a ballroom dancer, he had been ekeing out a living as a dish-washer.

Installed in the princess' magnificent castle here, wealth and luxury soon went to Zoubkoff's head, and before many months had passed her fortune had been dissipated through injudicious real estate deals and wasteful purchases.

Realizing her husband's inability to handle money, and fearing him under the influence of scheming companions, the ex-Princess tried to travel with her husband.

But she found that the wrath of her imperial brother, who disowned her following the marriage, had made its influence felt throughout the world, and Zoubkoff was denied a passport. She tried ineffectually to find a haven in Brussels and France and even in Africa, but nowhere was Zoubkoff wanted.

At one time she and Zoubkoff attempted to raise money to make a trans-Atlantic flight in order to profit financially by the publicity, but this effort failed. Finally, in desperation, she was forced to auction her belongings to clear the $250,000 in debts her husband had amassed.

The auction, which saw the sale of gold and silver heirlooms and gifts from the crowned heads of Europe, brought in only one-quarter of this amount. For the last few months, the once-proud princess had been living in a single room in a boarding house at Mehlem, near here.

SUICIDE DENIED

Reports that the princess had committed suicide were vehemently denied by Dr. Hagemann, chief physician at the hospital, where she was treated.

Princess Victoria's brother-in-law, the Landgrave of Hesse, and his wife, born Margaret, Princess of Prussia, and their son, Prince Christof, were informed of her death at a hotel here. They immediately telephoned the news to the ex-Kaiser at Doorn.

3¼ Mills Tax Increase Next Year, Forecast

Pittsburghers' city, county and school taxes may all be increased next year. If predictions made in various well informed quarters are fulfilled, they will pay 3¼ mills, or 32½ cents on each $100 of assessed valuation, more in 1930 than they paid this year.

An increase of one-fourth of a mill in the school tax is fairly certain, N. R. Criss, chairman of the finance committee of the Board of Public Educaton, said today.

MUST PAY TEACHERS

It will be necessary to pay the teachers' salary increases made mandatory by the Legislature at its last session. The Legislature authorized a raise of one-fourth of a mill in the levy.

Councilman Robert Garland declared at a Council meeting yesterday that the city tax would have to be raised, and Councilman W. Y. English remarked, "Not more than a mill and a half." The raise, it is said, will be required principally for the purpose of increasing policemen's and firemen's salaries, as authorized by the citizens in the primary election.

COUNTY IN LINE

Gossip at the Court House has it that the county tax may be increased a mill and a half to pay for voting machines. The citizens, by a vote of about five to one in the election last week, called for the adoption of these devices. They must be installed under the law within 14 months and will cost about $1,500,000.

Neither the city nor county budgets have been prepared, and there is a disposition in some quarters on that account to take the view that it is premature to say taxes will be increased.

Governor Forbids Removal Of Dinosaur Tracks

PHOENIX, Ariz., Nov. 13.—(AP.)—Under gubernatorial orders to prevent the removal of dinosaur tracks from the state, deputy sheriffs from Flagstaff today were en route to the camp of a scientific expedition near Tuba City, 76 miles away, to enforce the embargo.

The scientific party, headed by Gilbert Gable, of Philadelphia and Hollywood, was said to have arrived at Tuba City, near Dinosaur canyon, in the Navajo Indian reservation, yesterday.

Gov. Phillips last night telegraphed a protest to Secretary of the Interior Wilbur regarding proposed excavation of the tracks, discovered last year by Gable. The Governor told Secretary Wilbur that the tracks are on Indian lands, and under the jurisdiction of the federal government. Pending a reply from the Secretary, Gov. Phillips instructed the sheriff of Coconino County to take steps to prevent removal of the prehistoric footprints from the state.

POLICE PRESS INQUIRY INTO ACID DEATH

Mystery Burns Fatal to Man, Sleuths Deny Being Told of Case in Time for Quiz

Detectives and deputy coroners continued investigation of the death yesterday of John Young, 52, of 2709 Jane street, in St. Joseph's Hospital from acid burns suffered October 11 or 13, they reported.

Young, a telegrapher, was found unconscious in the vestibule of his home by his nephew, William Young, who summoned other relatives. He was found suffering from burns of the left arm, hip and lower abdomen and treated by a nearby physician who reported to South Side police. The victim was then taken to the hospital where he remained in a semi-conscious condition.

Although South Side police reported that the homicide squad had been informed of the case, members of the division declared that they had not. The homicide detectives informed deputy coroners that they had not been informed of the burning and hence had been unable to question Young.

Nitric acid burns were found on the victim's clothes, according to the hospital report.

VISITORS VOTE ART PRIZE

Announcement has been made at Carnegie Institute that a prize of $200 to be known as the popular prize is being offered in connection with the Twenty-eighth International Exhibition. The award will be determined by the vote of visitors to the exhibition during the two weeks, November 17 to December 1, inclusive. Each visitor during that period will be given a ballot on which to vote for his favorite painting in the International.

This is the sixth time that such an award has been given at the annual international exhibition.

Last Sunday 14,245 people saw the Twenty-eighth International. That was the largest Sunday attendance in the history of the institute. About 80,000 people have seen the International to date, which is 15,000 more than at the same last year.

Three Boys Held For Theft of Auto

Three boys, arrested in an automobile alleged to have been stolen from Magee and Watson streets last night, were held in Center Avenue Police Station today. They gave their names as Gordon Discardo, of 1112 Bedford avenue; Samuel Fineberg, of 23 Congress street, and Angelo Germina, of 1215 Wylie avenue, all 16 years of age. They were arrested at Washington street and Wylie avenue an hour after the car was reported stolen by Frank Salvatora, of 5640 Pocusset street.

Mt. Washington Park Urged for City View

H. E. Hollis, of 213 Grandview avenue, has suggested to Council that the celebrations for Light's Golden Jubilee and the Ohio River canalization have demonstrated Mt. Washington's fitness as a scenic point. He proposed the creation of a park on the hilltop that would afford a view of the triangle.

WOMAN TAXICAB OWNER VICTOR

Mrs. Ursula Fricker, widow and taxicab owner of Sharon, won a legal round before Examiner W. E. Best of the Public Service Commission when Attorney Win Nelson, also of Sharon, attempted to have her thrown out as a protestant in opposing the application of Luke McElhaney, to operate taxicabs.

Mrs. Fricker.

Richard Fricker, the husband of the woman, died recently and Mrs. Fricker by his death became sole owner of the Fricker Brothers Taxicab Company. Nelson claimed that Mrs. Fricker was not properly registered, but this was denied by her.

Commissioner Best ruled that if such were the case, it probably was not her fault and directed that proper registration be made. She had applied and had been granted a certificate of operation as the sole owner of the Fricker Brothers Company. Many persons testified that another line, such as applied for by McElhaney, was not needed. McElhaney produced two witnesses to show otherwise.

SCHOOL BUDGET CUT $45,375

Re-election of officers and a further slash in the school budget for 1930 featured the annual re-organization meeting of the Board of Public Education yesterday. Prior to the reorganization a letter was read to members from J. Rodgers McCreery, solicitor, informing them of the reappointment of Marcus Aaron, N. R. Criss, Taylor Allderdice, David B. Oliver and J. D. Hailman as members by judges of Common Pleas Court.

Officers re-elected were President Aaron, Vice President Criss, Secretary H. W. Crambiett and Mr. McCreery, as solicitor.

The committee on finance and administration reduced the budget by $45,375. The committee made a provision of $10,000 to care for the bonded indebtedness of the Borough of Overbrook which becomes a part of Pittsburgh January 1.

Total reductions in the 1930 budget now stand at $98,294, according to Chief Statistician Ira G. Flocken. Additional slashes are expected to be made at a meeting of the committee next Tuesday. The budget originally had been set at $15,285,506.25.

The board appointed Miss Cecil Dean, teacher of English in the Schenley High School, as assistant to the associate superintendent of schools in charge of personnel, at a salary of $4,500 yearly.

On recommendation of the finance committee it approved the renewal of all contracts and depositories for a period of two years ending December 31, 1931.

St. Canice Lyceum To Play Bridge

Bridge will feature the card party to be given Monday evening, November 18, by St. Canice Lyceum in the school hall, Orchard street, Knoxville. Euchre, "500" and old maid also will be played. Fred Burger is chairman of the committee, assisted by Jack Donley, Frank Ganter, James Foley, John McCann, Luke Brennan, James Ferry and Charles Alcorn.

Kicks on Moldy Food, Asks Divorce

His wife, Mrs. Anna Freeman, 56, of 1709 Jenny Lind street, McKeesport, served him moldy and unclean food and secretly followed him about to his business and on visits to relatives and friends, continually nagging him, Adam H. Freeman, 77, of 510 Coursin street, McKeesport, alleged in his bill of particulars filed in his divorce action in Common Pleas Court.

They were married March 3, 1923, his third marriage and her second. He left her September 3, 1927, after she told him to get out as she had all she could get out of him, Freeman averred.

Locked Out, Wife Says, Now Asks Divorce

Benjamin O. Wilkins, electrical engineer and author, of New York, her husband, changed the lock on their New York apartment door so that she could not enter after a visit to Pittsburgh, Mrs. Elma Wilkins, of Broadway, Dormont, testified at the hearing of her divorce suit before Judge George V. Moore in Common Pleas Court.

"He told me later that I bothered and annoyed him and interfered with his writing," she declared, and he would not permit her to return. They were married in June, 1914, when she lived at Brownsville, and the enforced separation occurred in March, 1924.

West View Mission Circle Meets Today

The Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the West View Methodist Episcopal Church, will hold its annual meeting and luncheon this afternoon in the church rooms. Miss Edna Sharp, field support secretary, and Mrs. J. Kirkwood Craig, of Dormont, will be the speakers.

AUTHOR SCORES ORTHODOXY

Fundamentalists and modernists were rapped in an address by Dr. Harry Elmer Barnes, historian and author, speaking on "What Is Wrong With Religion Today?" in the Y. M. & W. H. A., Bellefield avenue, last night.

"The greatest enemy of mankind today is orthodox religion," he said.

Of the fundamentalist and modernist conceptions of religion, he asserted, there is need for a "humanistic religion" to make human conduct more decent.

"Fundamentalists are concerned chiefly with happiness in the world to come," he said. "Their chief aim can not be reconciled with the perspective of modern thought. Devout modernists accept all the teachings of modern science and scrap the orthodox beliefs, but turn to 'the Jesus stereotype' for their basis in discussing their philosophy."

MAN HELD FOR BEATING GIRL

RATIO OF CRIME PARALLELS ILLITERACY

Census Bureau's Figures Show Education Is Best Deterrent for Evildoers

The United States Census Bureau drew this conclusion in a report on a survey of 19,080 prisoners who were committed to penal institutions in the first six months of 1923. This group represents only 11.5 per cent of the total commitments for the entire year.

The reports bulwarks the proposal advocated by the Hearst newspapers to attack the appalling illiteracy in the United States through the establishment of a Federal Department of Education, with a secretary in the cabinet, for it says:

STATUS LOWER

"The figures show, in general, a decidedly lower educational status for the prisoners than for the population as a whole. For example, the ratio of commitments per 100,000 of the adult population was 42.7 for the illiteracy as against 27.3 for those able to read and write. Among the literate group the commitment ratio is highest (31.4) for those of only elementary school education, and lowest (14.3) for prisoners who had had some college training. The commitment ratio is about three times as high for the illiterate as for the college group.

"These figures afford no support to the sensational statement frequently made in recent years to the effect that education, and especially college education, tends to promote crime.

"In so far as education, or lack of it, is a factor in the situation, the census statistics indicate that an increase in the educational facilities, and in their use, should tend to reduce the amount of crime."

DOPE AND ILLITERACY

Strikingly does the survey reveal the extent of crime caused by illiterates who violate the dope laws. The male illiterates in this group constitute 11.5 per cent, compared to six per cent convicted for robbery, 10.8 per cent for burglary, and 6.1 per cent for larceny and related offenses. More than 50 per cent of drug violators had no higher than a sixth grade education.

A popular belief, especially held by enforcement officers, that most drug violators are "floaters," or of roving habits or dispositions was exploded, for the report disclosed that 85 per cent of this group resided in the community where the crime occurred, in striking contrast two other types of crime.

Weather Conditions.

The low pressure area that covered the central valleys yesterday morning moved very slowly. It is now centered over Tennessee, Alabama and Mississippi, and extends northward over the Ohio Valley states to Eastern Ontario. It is still producing cloudy weather over the entire eastern half of the country, with scattered rain areas from the Mississippi Valley states eastward to the coast. In Western Iowa and Eastern Kansas and Nebraska it is snowing. Another low appears over the Canadian Northwest. High barometer occupies the country from the central plains westward, with its crest over Wyoming. The weather is cold over Wyoming, temperatures ranging from four below zero to twelve above. Below freezing temperatures obtain throughout the high pressure area.

NOW... FREEDOM FROM ELECTRICAL HUM
But without any sacrifice of tone quality and fidelity!

The only radio set that meets every broadcast requirement

RCA Radiola 66 . . . the most sensitive, most selective instrument in the radio art . . . at a price never before achieved. Embodies the new improved Super-Heterodyne and the newly developed RCA electro-dynamic reproducer. Equipped for all-electric operation from the wall socket. $225 (less Radiotrons)

The new Super-Heterodyne is also available in combination with the phonograph in the de luxe Radiola 67 . . . a complete home instrument that gives electrical reproduction of records with all the realism and volume of the Super-Heterodyne. . $690 (less Radiotrons)

ON every side you hear "nearly as good as a Super-Heterodyne." This is the highest praise that can be given to any radio . . . but only the Radiola Super-Heterodyne can give Super-Heterodyne performance . . . because its radio circuit is an exclusive development.

No broadcast requirement ever baffles the Super-Heterodyne . . . it has the sensitivity and selectivity to meet the exacting demands of even the poorest locations and the weakest stations! You never have to apologize for the Super-Heterodyne . . . it never fails you!

In the new and finer models of the Super-Heterodyne you have freedom from distorting noises and electrical hum without the costly sacrifice of fidelity and tone range . . . without that weakening of power and dulling of low and high notes which owners of ordinary radio sets must suffer when hum is reduced in defiance of electrical research and experience!

This incomparable instrument is today within the reach of even the most modest purse.

In addition to the Super-Heterodyne, you may select from the only complete line of fine quality radio sets . . . ranging in price from $54 to $690 . . . and designed to meet every known requirement of broadcast reception. The model you select may be purchased on the convenient RCA Time Payment Plan.

RCA

RCA is the only organization in the radio industry manufacturing a complete line of radio products—vacuum tubes (Radiotrons), receiving sets (Radiolas), reproducers, Radiola-phonograph combinations, broadcasting apparatus, centralized radio equipment, airport and airplane equipment, sound recording and reproducing apparatus, and transoceanic telegraphic apparatus.

RCA recognizes the responsibility of its leadership in the radio industry, and in the present line of Radiolas it has maintained every requirement of quality and endurance which this leadership implies.

RUSSIAN ARTS AND HANDICRAFTS

Exposition and Sale

NOVEMBER 14th TO 27th

Almost overnight a vivid, colorful Russian Fair has been transplanted to Horne's Fourth Floor. An exhibit of the products of the peasant art handicraft, which represents the means of livelihood of thousands of Russian "kustari" (peasants). You'll find yourself in a totally different, fascinating world, for Russia is unlike any other country in its new life, legislation and art.

Here is your opportunity to choose Christmas gifts. Gifts as smart, as distinctive, as unusual as if you had sought them out piece by piece at Nijni Novgorod or some other of the famous Russian fairs. Among them are hand-loomed linens—knives, boxes and ivories intricately cut—and precious objects hand wrought in enamel on solid silver.

EAST END STORE HELD UP

Robbers who last night held up a woman pedestrian on the North Side and an East End shoe store were sought by police today.

An armed man walked into the Newark Shoe Store at 6231 Brankstown avenue, and ordered C. C. Burney, the manager, to lie down behind the counter. He then covered Burney's face with an overcoat which he took from a rack and looted the cash register of $42.50. He escaped in an automobile.

Burney described him as being well dressed and about 25.

Mrs. Harry Loeffler, of 2549 East street, was confronted by a masked man a square from her home and robbed of $44. The robber, after obtaining the money, ran down East street.

Rejected Suitor Punches Girl On Nose

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—(AP.)—The proper etiquette for a man when he is refused by a young woman is not, Antone Curcio has learned, to punch her on the nose.

When Judge Samuel Heller heard about it, he admonished Curcio.

"Upon such occasions," said the Court, "be nonchalant, be polite, be chivalrous."

International Bank Site No Place to Golf

BASEL, Switzerland, Nov. 13.—(AP.)—There is a serious objection to the selection of this city as the site of the international bank. No golf course seems to be handy. "That is a great drawback to directors' meetings," said M. A. Taylor, of Chicago.

EX-MRS. LUTZ, MATE HELD

Police Lieut. Arthur Crouse, of Sewickley, and his wife, the former Clara Lutz, were at liberty on bail today. They are accused of having taken $500 worth of furniture from the home of Crouse's father, Albert Crouse, of West View.

The couple were given a private hearing last night before Alderman Ray E. Schneider, who reserve decision. The charge preferred by the elder Crouse was larceny by bailee.

Crouse's wife was acquitted of the killing of her first husband, George H. Lutz, North Side dairyman, three years ago.

MAGNIFICENT

WITH FACE-TO-FACE REALISM

TO HEAR a great orchestra rise to exalted heights with the FACE-TO-FACE REALISM of the new Sparton instruments is to experience the supreme thrill of all radio.

For here is something more than power . . . something mightier than mere volume. It is a magnificent blending of every instrument with a tone fidelity and fullness that is new and astounding to those who have never experienced the delights of FACE-TO-FACE REALISM. It is the orchestra itself . . . sitting before you . . . afire with the leadership of its inspired conductor.

Nor is the marvel of FACE-TO-FACE REALISM in its power alone. Even when . . . at a beat of the baton . . . the music sinks to a whisper, there is that same satisfying fullness that seems to flood the auditorium.

We urge every lover of music to form his own opinion of this remarkable new "something" in radio. It is easily the most talked-of development of the year. It has influenced thousands of musicians of national note to secure Spartons for their own personal use. It has been responsible for the establishment of Sparton as a universal favorite among great artists. Hear a Sparton just once . . . experience for yourself the thrill of FACE-TO-FACE REALISM . . . and you will instantly appreciate the reason. All Sparton dealers invite you

TRUCKS CRASH IN DENSE FOG

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Nov. 13.—A dense fog which enveloped the eastern section of Greene County for several hours yesterday, was responsible for minor motor accidents. Traffic was slowed on main highways due to poor visibility.

J. L. Armstrong, Jefferson truck driver, suffered severe lacerations of the head and a fractured collarbone when a light truck in which he was riding collided with a five-ton truck between Jefferson and Waynesburg. The truck in which Armstrong was riding turned over three times.

Apollo Man, Wife Hurt in Car Crash

GREENSBURG, Pa., Nov. 13.—When their automobile was crowded from the Lincoln highway near Idlewild Park, three persons sustained injuries, one seriously. Earl L. Weikart, of Apollo, received a fractured collar bone and possible internal injuries. His wife, Mrs. Mary Weikart, sustained a fractured hip and suffered from shock. Charles L. George, of Apollo, driver of the car, escaped with cuts and bruises.

Parking Changes Approved by City

KONJOLA ENDS STOMACH ILLS OF WORST KIND

Misery of Years' Standing Yields in Few Weeks After This Man Began Taking Konjola.

What a wonderful medicine Konjola is when it conquers, time after time, when hope of ever finding the right remedy for those stubborn ailments of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels has been abandoned. But Konjola does that very thing, time after time, as the proven records show.

MR. JOSEPH McVERRY

After all, it is the actual conquests, the actual results, that count, and Konjola can be depended upon for results. It is not a "cure-all," it is a new and different medicine, which goes to the very source of the ailing organs, and starts the battle there. It is not designed to give mere temporary relief, it goes beyond that, stimulating the ailing parts and sweeping the system clear of the accumulated poisons and impurities. The experience of Mr. Joseph McVerry, 1260 Pecono Street, is not exceptional, it is one of many hundreds of such cases, as either of the Konjola Men now in Pittsburgh can tell you. See the nearest one, at the Dow Drug Store (formerly McCulloch's), Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, or the one at Dow's Drug Store (formerly McCulloch's), Diamond and Smithfield Streets, Pittsburgh, either will show you the amazing results accomplished by this new medicine. Let them explain its merits, all proven by men and women in Pittsburgh and vicinity. Mr. McVerry asked the Konjola Man to tell all sufferers what his experience had been. He said:

"For five years I suffered from stomach trouble and constipation, I could find nothing that would give me relief. After every meal I would suffer terribly with cramps and gas pains. Cathartics only temporarily relieved my constipated condition. I lost my appetite, and even when hungry was afraid to put food into my stomach because of the pain I knew would follow. I was rapidly losing weight and growing weaker. I had read a great deal about Konjola in the papers, and decided to try it, although I had little faith anything would help me.

"I can never express my gratitude for this great medicine. I began to improve before I had taken three bottles, my appetite was coming back, my food no longer brought on the cramping sensation in my stomach. I continued to take Konjola, and today I eat all I want of any food I like, with no bad effects whatever. My constipation has entirely disappeared, and I have gained more than eight pounds. My work, which had become mere drudgery, is now a pleasure. All this in a few weeks, and I give all the credit to Konjola."

So it goes; the same splendid story of success, wherever and whenever Konjola is given a chance to prove its merits and its powers.

The Konjola Men are at the Dow Drug Store (formerly McCulloch's), Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, and at Dow's Drug Store (formerly McCulloch's), Diamond and Smithfield Streets, Pittsburgh, where daily they are meeting the public and explaining the merits of this new and different medicine. Konjola is also sold at all Dow Drug Stores in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

F.R. Rinehart Engaged To Wed

NOW added to its varied social gifts, November brings engagements, too. A betrothal of marked interest here comes from Geneva, N. Y. The David Bennett Sherwoods, of that city, announce the engagement of their daughter, Elizabeth Sherwood, to Frederick Roberts Rinehart, of New York, the son of Dr. and Mrs. Stanley Marshall Rinehart, of Washington, formerly of Glen Osborne. And need I add that Mr. Rinehart's mother is none other than Mary Roberts Rinehart?

The wedding will be next month, I understand. And the Rineharts' son and his bride will live in New York, where they'll be prominent in literary circles.

Mr. Rinehart was graduated from Harvard in 1924. Of course he's a member of the Harvard Club.

* * *

TODAY before Mary Moody Stevenson, daughter of the Alan Cooper Stevensons, makes her bow to society at a tea in the University Club, Mrs. Edward H. Brainard and her daughter, Margaret, who came out a year or two ago, are giving a buffet luncheon in the Brainard home, Woodland road, for Margaret Rolfe Berger, debutante daughter of Mrs. William Arthur Berger. Margaret is wearing a princess gown of dahlia red velvet with a hat of the same shade, and the hostess is in Chinese red crepe.

* * *

THE first debutante of this week was Emily Berry Frew, daughter of the William Frews, of Devon road, who made her bow yesterday afternoon at a tea dance in the Pittsburgh Golf Club.

Everywhere in the clubhouse were dignified chrysanthemums in fall colors and pompon chrysanthemums, too, with palms and cibotium ferns forming a background for the receiving line.

The guest of honor was in cream-colored lace, moulded to the figure, with the longer skirt. Her flowers were Talisman roses. Mrs. Frew was in black velvet, and Mrs. William N. Frew, her mother-in-law, for whom the debutante is named, was in black satin with a hat of felt.

In the tea room pompon chrysanthemums decorated the tables, and ferns and palms banked a corner of the ballroom in which the orchestra played.

Mrs. Frew had asked to be her aids her mother-in-law, Mrs. W. N. Frew; Mrs. S. R. Kelly, Miss Eleanor G. Park, Mrs. Lewis A. Park, Mrs. J. Frederic Byers, Mrs. H. M. Curry, Mrs. J. C. Dilworth, Mrs. P. E. Donner, Mrs. Clinton Childs, Mrs. Donald Bakewell, Mrs. Thruston Wright and Mrs. Harrison Townsend, of Santa Barbara, Cal., her sister.

And the debutante named as her aids sister buds, including Anne and Margaret Rose, Peggy Milligan, Mary Franklin Robinson, Helen Pendleton, Susan O'Neil, Rebecca Doyle, Nancy Allderdice, Lydia Irish, Marie Louise Bickford, Virginia Wright, Frances Forsyth and Ruth Drake.

The popularity of black gowns was proved at the tea yesterday. Among those in black was Mrs. Curry, who wore a hat to match, and Mrs. Wright in velvet, fashioned with long lines. Mrs. Wright's debutante daughter, Virginia, wore [illegible] of blue crepe made with a [illegible] long skirt, flared below the [illegible] nd a belt of the same mate- [illegible] ced at the natural waistline.

One of the new corded silk dresses, in blue, trimmed in a lighter shade of the same color, was worn by Mrs. Dilworth with a dark blue hat.

The younger set find black gowns smart, too. I noticed Frances Forsyth, who was wearing a distinctive gown of black transparent velvet with cream lace touches, fashioned with a long, rather full skirt.

BEFORE Emily's tea yesterday Mrs. William Watson Smith gave a buffet luncheon in the Fox Chapel Club for Frances Preble Reed, debutante daughter of the James Hay Reeds. There were at least 100 debutantes of this and a season or so ago there.

The guest of honor wore dahlia crepe de chine with a matching hat, and her hostess wore black transparent velvet with a black hat, and the mother of the bud, black satin with a hat to match.

* * *

SOME of the girls at college will be home for Thanksgiving, and among them will be Elizabeth Curry, debutante daughter of the Henry M. Currys. Elizabeth is a junior at Vassar. Not until the Yuletide season, though, will Elizabeth make her bow. Her father and mother will present her to their friends at a ball on January 1 in the Pittsburgh Club.

* * *

And the guest of honor wore black georgette with black alencon lace and a black tricorne hat. Her flowers were roses and lilies of the valley.

* * *

AND news comes from New York of the supper dance the William Edwin Halls, of Greenwich, Conn., gave in the Colony Club to introduce their daughter Susan. And receiving with the guest of honor was Peggy Milligan, debutante daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Milligan. Among the guests was Virginia Thaw, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Thaw, III, of New York, formerly of Pittsburgh.

* * *

DURING the latter part of the holiday season, Mrs. Norman McLeod, of Solway street, will entertain, news has reached me, in honor of her debutante niece, Mary Blair Holmes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Horne Holmes, of Devonshire street. And the entertainment will be a dinner-dance on January 3. Just where it will be held Mrs. McLeod hasn't decided yet.

* * *

MARGARITA BOETTGER, daughter of the Theodore Boettgers, of Hackensack, N. J., and Dr. Harold A. Kipp, of Pittsburgh, were married at the home of the bride's parents Saturday afternoon by the Rev. George Duff, of the Riverdale Presbyterian Church, New York.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore ivory satin with rose pointe lace, which trimmed her mother's wedding gown. Her veil was of tulle, and her flowers were calla lilies.

* * *

MR. AND MRS. J. OBERLEY, of Wilkinsburg, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Catherine M. Oberley, to G. H. Schweitzer, son of William Schweitzer, of Detroit, Mich. No date has been named for the wedding.

* * *

MISS MARTHA HUTSON, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rome Hutson, of Bellevue, was married to Edwin Crandell McDonald, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. McDonald, of Duquesne, on Saturday morning at 11:45 o'clock, in the Bellevue Christian Church. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Frank G. Heime, assisted by the Rev. Charles H. Williamson, of Grove City, cousin of the bride.

The bride wore a gown of brown chiffon with matching hat and carried yellow chrysanthemums. Her only attendant was Mrs. Robert N. Montgomery, who wore dahlia crepe and carried bronze chrysanthemums. Raymond McDonald was his brother's best man. The ushers were the Rev. Robert N. Montgomery, of Pittsburgh; Willard Williams, of Buffalo, N. Y., and Marion B. Davis, of Duquesne.

Immediately following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served in the cardinal room of the William Penn. After a wedding trip to Hot Springs, Va., Mr. and Mrs. McDonald will reside in Buffalo, N. Y.

* * *

MISS MARTHA CATHERINE KIESEL became the bride of Albert James Erdley, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert James Erdley, of Chicago and Donora, on Monday evening in the St. Charles Lutheran Church, North Side, at 6:30 o'clock. The Rev. Lammert Redelfs officiated.

The bride wore a gown of eggshell fishnet lace, fashioned with high waist, and long, circular shirt, with a rhinestone and pearl buckle at her waist. She wore a hat of brown velvet and soleil and carried bronze chrysanthemums. Her only attendant was Miss Virginia Rose, of Edgewood, who wore a blue lace gown with high waist and extremely long, flowing skirt, with matching hat of lace. She carried pink roses.

A reception for the immediate families was held in the home of the bridegroom's parents in Donora, and later Mr. and Mrs. Erdley, Jr., left for a wedding trip to Chicago, where they will reside.

* * *

ALUMNAE of Pennsylvania College for Women will meet at luncheon at 12 o'clock Saturday in the former rooms of the Woman's City Club in the William Penn Hotel when reports will be heard on the campaign to add $250,000 to the college building fund. Dr. Cora Helen Coolidge is to be guest of honor and speaker.

November 20 the board of trustees, parents of present students and the alumnae and their husbands will be entertained in Woodland Hall, the new dormitory. A program of music is being arranged.

* * *

MR. AND MRS. SAM SHAFFER, of Overhill street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ida Sylvia Shaffer, to William Barron, of Masontown, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Barron, of Mt. Pleasant. The engagement will terminate in a spring wedding.

* * *

THE Columbia Hospital Auxiliary will hold its Christmas tea and sale in the hospital dormitory on Saturday, November 23, from 2 to 6 o'clock. The fund is to be used for the maintenance and improvement of the children's ward.

* * *

THE Ladies' Aid Society of the Watson Presbyterian Church will give a Thanksgiving tea on Friday at 2 o'clock in the lecture room of the church.

* * *

THE Ladies' Aid Society of the Denny Methodist Episcopal Church, Ligonier street, will hold its annual bazar and dinner in the church tomorrow evening from 5:30 to 8 o'clock.

Peace Group Sponsoring Exhibit

THE Women's International League for Peace is sponsoring a performance and exhibit by Hopi Indians in Carnegie Lecture Hall Wednesday evening. The Indians, full-blooded Hopis from their cliff and pueblo dwellings in Arizona, are the only dancers who have left the reservations since the treaty with the government in 1863. The group represents five of the most important clans of the Hopis who were selected to go to Washington with their interpreter, Edith Sterling Billingsley, to plead before Congress for retention of their ancient tribal ceremonies. These strange ceremonies are part of the program which will be presented under the League's sponsorship. A genuine Hopi playlet, given with the Indian's own sense of realism and tradition, will be included.

In the industrial exhibit are many museum pieces, some of them several hundred years old, as well as the basket and bead work, silver and pottery which the Indians make while en tour.

THE Pittsburgh Drama League announces that its first public meeting of the season will be held tomorrow evening in Carnegie Music Hall, instead of the Lecture Hall, as first announced. The speaker will be Elmer Kenyon, honorary president of the local league, who will discuss "Plays of the Post-War Mind." Mr. Kenyon, who is now a recognized authority on the drama, has completed an unusually successful series of lectures in Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and Richmond. At the end of the week he will resume his tour, visiting the South, and eventually going to the Pacific Coast. This will be the only public lecture that he will give in Pittsburgh this season.

The Rev. George Reid Andrews, executive director of the Church and Drama League of America, also will be present tomorrow and will explain the plans of his organization, which was recently merged with the Drama League of America. Mr. Andrews has come to Pittsburgh to confer with the board of directors of the local league, and will be introduced by Chester B. Story, newly elected president.

* * *

ELMER KENYON, honorary president of the Pittsburgh Drama League, who is spending the week in the city, will be guest of honor and speaker at a luncheon which the drama department of the Congress of Clubs will give Friday. The luncheon will be concluded in time for the musicale tea to be given in the afternoon by Frank Kennedy and Robert Owery under auspices of the Congress music department.

A BUSINESS folks' dinner will be held by the women of the Puritan Congregational Church, Twenty-second and Carson streets, this evening and tomorrow. Mrs. David Lewis, chairman, is being assisted by Mrs. Margaret Jones, Mrs. James Craig, Mrs. James Ponsonby, Mrs. Zacharias, Mrs. F. H. Banks and Mrs. Mayme Evans.

THE Western Pennsylvania section of the Woman's Auxiliary to the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers held the November meeting yesterday afternoon. Mrs. J. F. Hanst and Mrs. W. D. Pringle were hostesses at the former's home in Sheridan avenue. Following the business meeting, several piano numbers were given by Mrs. William H. Patterson and Mrs. Eleanor Sims Black exhibited some of her works and gave a brief talk on art.

ATTENTION OF COUTURIERS NOW CENTERED ON SLEEVES

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Nov. 13.—The call to arms continues! Most of the dresses and coats seen in the new theatrical presentations are distinguished by sleeves that are not only highly original in cut or design, but are often the most decorative feature of the scheme in marked contrast to a frock of intriguing simplicity.

Most couturiers are anxious to preserve the line of the model, and for this reason concentrate any marked deviation from the design on the sleeve. Line is of supreme importance, the molded silhouette triumphs when worn by a svelte woman who understands to fashionize her personality, but not dramatize it as so many women try to do, through the medium of their clothes.

WE SHOW today two sketches, a dress and a coat, and in each the sleeve or its trimming is at once noticeable for its individuality and its success in supplying that something different that is so delightful when it can be achieved without any hint of the extreme or bizarre. Ardanse, who has made some dinner frocks with highly decorative bejewelled sleeves, is responsible for the very intriguing afternoon coat that we have had sketched for you. It is somewhat Russian in type, and is of hunter's green velvet, fastening at one side with large velvet covered buttons. The coat fits very closely about the figure and has a circular flounce somewhat deeper at the left side. The trimming is of gray astrakan, and it will be observed that a successful endeavor has been made to create a cuff that is pleasantly original and so does its share in drawing attention to the sleeve.

MLLE. GABRIELLE DORZIAT, a great favorite with playgoers here, is appearing at the Theater Michel and has assembled a particularly delightful stage wardrobe. Shown herewith is one of the dresses, selected because it is of vast interest in a sleeve sense. It was made by Augusta Bernard who dressed many stars of the theatrical firmament. The fabric is a heavy crepe de chine in a lovely shade of leaf green.

APPLIQUED folds cut in the form of scallops trim the bodice and skirt. The scallop note is also found at the edge of the skirt and is emphasized in the swinging sleeve drapery that is a feature of the very new three-quarter sleeve. It is cut to lend animation in an otherwise rather simple model which, however, contrives to capture much charm and chic.

Capital of Filmland, Local Theaters Yield Gossip About Players

JUVENILE FILM COLONY EVER CHANGING AS CHILD STARS GROW UP

By DOROTHY HERZOG

(Copyright, 1929, by Premier Syndicate)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 13.

THE march of time, and the "Our Gang" comedies go on. Only one kid survival of the original "Our Gang" crew remains on the Hal Roach lot. And that's Farina, the chocolate misnomer. 'Tis said that even Farina will soon be departed. Mary Kornman spent three years in voodvil after growing out of these two reelers. Sunshine Sammy, Mickey Daniels, and Fat Joe Cobb are still voodvil-ing.

So go the child actors, around whom a storm of interest used to center. Many parents harbor histrionic ambitions for their children. Many people envy parents whose offsprings make good in the sinema. Many pity them.

Jackie Coogan.

Is such work tough on a youngster? It isn't terribly hard. The physical routine is easy. It's the other angle — what it does to the child's mind. Precipitating him into a career that parallels grown-ups. By contrast, making him precocious, above other kiddies of his own age. Endowing him with cockiness. Making him a wage earner and, as such, entitled to a certain respect from adults.

Jackie Coogan went through this divorce childhood period. And became a millionaire for his sacrifice. His successor with Charlie Chaplin for one picture, little Dinky Dean Reisner, was removed from pictures before the limelight position impressed itself upon him. There are exceptons, pro and con, just like their are ditto arguments. But the child as an actor will always be an intriguing aspect of a career.

Fire Results in New Star in Film

OVER on the Tiffany lot, a flick yclept "Trooper Three" is in the process of being re-made. The picture was in the "box." Finished. Several reels or so, however, were destroyed in a recent film laboratory fire, so Tiffany is re-making the whole celluloider.

Mary Philbin.

Mary Philbin enacted the heroine role in the original version. It is significant to note that Dorothy Gulliver was engaged to heroine in the new version. Like Miss Philbin, Miss Gulliver is a former Universal emoter.

Word reached this bureau that Warner Brothers have purchased Sam Shipman's new Broadway play, "Scarlet Pages," starring Elsie Ferguson, for $50,000.

Guy Oliver is an elderly actor who enjoys the unusual record of having been with Famous Players for 13 years. Minus a contract. Purely a verbal agreement. Whereby for 13 years he has drawn 52 weeks per each. He has worked in 333 pictures during this time. He's a friend of Jesse Lasky. Being a rare and cheerful aspect of this biz.

Dorothy Mackaill In 'Bright Lights'

Frank Fay is being kept pretty busy by his bosses—the Vitaphoners. Frank is getting set to traipse opposite Dorothy Mackaill in "Bright Lights," after which he will star in "Playboy of Broadway" . . . Ruth Chatterton's gonna wear a blond wig in her next flick, "Sara and Son." . . . Gloria Swanson is quoted as declaring: "There is only one beautiful woman in the movies. That is Corinne Griffith. The rest of us are just types." Being a bit startling . . . Mr. and Mrs. Monte Blue are eastward ho-ing . . .

Dorothy Mackaill.

A group of semi-character actors—half way between extras and part players—have organized themselves into the United Characters Association. Their slogan is donated by Michael Angelo, who, unfortunately, is unable to join in person: "Trifles make perfection; but perfection is no trifle." The association is open day and night for studio calls.

BELL TO SPEND $160,000 HERE

The Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania will spend almost $160,000 in the next few months for construction of extensions to the underground and aerial cable network and for installation of additional equipment in two central offices, F. J. Chesterman, vice president, said today.

Cable construction programs embrace operations in the Aliquippa area, two jobs in the Penhurst-Churchill district, and the building of a conduit along the Ohio River boulevard in the Linden exchange.

Additional central office equipment will be installed in the Coraopolis and Carrick exchanges to care for anticipated growth, it was said.

Thousands Skate On Duquesne Ice

Duquesne Garden ice palace during the first seven days of the new season has attracted nearly 10,000 patrons. Thanksgiving Day there will be three sessions, at 9:30 a. m. and 2:30 and 8 p. m. Daily sessions are held every afternoon and evening, with a special children's session every Saturday morning.

North Side Church To Banquet Officers

The annual banquet for officers, teachers and workers of the McClure Avenue Presbyterian Church will be held at 6:30 p. m. tomorrow in the church rooms. Dr. Frank M. McKibben, head of the department of religious education, University of Pittsburgh, will speak. Music will be provided by the church chorus.

Glee Club Elects At West View

The Glee Club of West View Junior High School has elected these officers: President, Kenneth Carson; vice president, Harry L. Smith; secretary, Evelyn Heer; treasurer, Doris Stark.

Another Guild Drama Comes Next Week

Seats go on sale tomorrow at the box office of the Nixon for "Wings Over Europe," the second play of the second Theater Guild subscription season in Pittsburgh. This melodrama is by Robert Nichols and Maurice Browne.

There is a matinee performance this afternoon in the Shubert Alvin, where the four Marx Brothers are playing in their latest tomfoolery "Animal Crackers." This is a musical fun piece, elaborately staged.

Suzanne Cubaye, guest star, will play the central figure in "The Humming Bird," which is to be produced next week in the Shubert Pitt by the George Sharp players.

HOME AGAIN

Tech Players Do Ibsen's 'Wild Duck'

To give a convincing performance of an Ibsen play is both easy and difficult. It is easy if the players keep clear of acting and artificiality, which the cast provided by the department of drama at Tech succeeded in doing pretty effectively last night, when Ibsen's "Wild Duck" was presented at the Little Theater.

Matilda Bodycomb did a most appealing bit of work as Hedwig, and Pauline Bauersmith was effective as Gina. The best character portrayal was given by Barry Feinstein as Old Ekdal, while William Johns as Hjalmar revealed emotional powers. The staging was done by E. W. Hickman, who also designed the scenery.

Palmer Pair Held On Liquor Charge

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Nov. 13.—Alleged by police to have had a gallon and pint of liquor in their automobile, Samuel Smith and John Stevenings, both of Palmer, were arrested yesterday by state police.

Nat Rodgers Is M. C. At Silver Slipper

Nat Rodgers, Pittsburgh entertainer, has been engaged as master of ceremonies in the Silver Slipper, night club in the Kenyon Theater Building, 823 Federal street. Appearing with Rodgers in the floor show, three times nightly, will be five other acts. Rodgers will be heard at 10:30 p. m. Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday over station KQV, with George Weber's Orchestra and the Silver Slipper revue.

Restaurant Workers Battle in Basement

A fight in the basement of Kramer's restaurant, 25 Graeme street, was stopped just in time, Patrolman George Golvash testified in Morals Court today.

He told the court that when he entered the basement he found Jesse Freeman, 18, Negro employe, of 2636 Webster avenue, with a pipe cutter in his hand, standing over J. R. Huddle, 33, of 819 Walbridge street, the engineer.

Freeman was held for court charged with aggravated assault and battery by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg.

Many people say their pain stopped after the first dose of FRUITOLA. That's the wonderful thing about FRUITOLA—it acts so quickly. No other medicine can do more. The FRUITOLA formula is the same today as it always has been and if you try it you too may save yourself from a possible operation. One dose shows results. For sale, recommended and guaranteed by the Mayflower Drug Stores, Inc., and other leading druggists.

GIRL TO MARRY, HUNTS PARENTS

Miss Blanche Vichunas, 19, of Rochester, N. Y., arrived in Pittsburgh today, hunting her parents from whom she hasn't heard for a number of months.

She wanted them for two reasons—to get the parental blessing before she marries Joseph Crawford, of Rochester, and because she was lonesome for them.

She visited 116 Federal street, where they lived when she left Pittsburgh two years ago to take a position in Rochester. She stopped at North Side Police Station, seeking information as to their whereabouts, and finally arrived at the Missing Persons Bureau, where an effort is being made to locate the pair.

To Detective Michael Feeney, head of the bureau, the girl said she had written often, but had received no replies and, finally worried about them, began the search.

Her father's name is Thomas and her mother's Evelyn. The father was formerly a coal miner. She said they may be in Detroit.

The Sun-Telegraph Fifteen Cent Pattern

A PRETTY BLOUSE STYLE.

Printed crepe is here portrayed, with plain crepe for collar and tab trimming. The blouse is fitted over the hips, and finished with croswise tuck folds in front. A group of tabs are arranged under a broad collar. The sleeve is a fitted model.

This pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. To make the blouse for a 38 inch size will require 2¾ yards of 39 inch material. For collar and tabs of contrasting material as pictured in the large view ⅛ yard will be required cut crosswise. To finish with bias binding will require 4¾ yards 1½ inch wide.

COUPON.

This pattern will be sent on receipt of 15 cents (silver or 2c and 1c stamps). Make number, name, address, etc., plain. Send to Pattern Department, The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Royal Vatican Call Will Omit Princes

VATICAN CITY, Nov. 13.—(AP.) King Victor Emanuel and Queen Elena will be accompanied only by Foreign Minister Dino Grandi when they make their first visit to Pope Pius on December 5.

The princes of the House of Savoy and their consorts will be received at a later audience, of which the date has not yet been determined.

PROHIBITS GRID STUNT FLYING

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—(AP.)—Stunt flying over football games during the past few weeks today drew from Gilbert G. Budwig, director of licensing and inspection of the Department of Commerce, a warning to pilots that such maneuvres are prohibited.

Commenting upon reports of violations, he said no flight under 1,000 feet is permitted over open air assemblies of persons, except with the consent of the secretary of commerce, and that acrobatic flying or intentional maneuvers not necessary to navigation over a football game or open air gathering at any altitude is prohibited.

Bible Class Holds Attendance Contest

An attendance contest between two groups designated the "American and National League teams" has boosted the attendance in the Suburban Men's Bible Class of the Bellevue Presbyterian Church from 50 to 140, according to announcement. The class aims for 250 by the end of the drive in two more weeks. C. E. Dunn and Art Hengeveld are captains of the respective teams. R. W. Riley is chairman of the membership committee. T. E. Garber is the teacher.

Purchasing Agents Will Hear Offices

Three national officers of the Purchasing Agents' Association will be present at the dinner and meeting of the local association in the Union Club, First National Bank Building, next Tuesday night. John R. Whitehead, president of the national association; R. R. Miller, vice president of the Sixth district of the national association, and George A. Renard, secretary-treasurer of the national association, will be guests of honor.

Elks 'Kiddie Parade Feature of Benefit

One of the features of the Elks' Oriental Nights celebration which will be conducted from November 18 until November 23, by Lodge No. 11 for the benefit of the Christmas charity fund, will be a "grand kiddie parade" on the opening night.

The promenade will be divided into three classes with a silver loving cup for the winner in each class. The entry list will remain open until November 16.

Introducing to Pittsburgh the NEW DEXTER Fas-twin Double-Tub Washer

Recommended by the Good Housekeeping Institute

A fast, safe, thorough washer that washes two full tubs of clothes spotlessly clean every TEN minutes. No soaking, no boiling is necessary! The Dexter does all the necessary work.

There is no other washing machine in the world with which the "two successive suds" washing method is so convenient or nearly so fast! To keep clothes permanently free from "that all-over grayish tinge" and "that harsh feel"—it is absolutely necessary to either use chemicals or boil the clothes—or run them through "two successive suds" as employed in the DEXTER FAS-TWIN Washer! Good Housekeeping Institute advocates Dexter's two successive suds method as being better than soaking or boiling!

Come in for a demonstration and bring your best friend along! Right now is a good time to buy a Dexter Double-Copper Tub Washer. Spear's offer the most liberal terms!

Advantages That No Single-Tub Washer Can Ever Have!

1. Even for a small washing the Dexter "Fastwin" saves handling at least one tub of water, and saves time and effort as compared with any single-tub washer properly used.
2. The Dexter "Fastwin" can wash properly at least twice as much clothing per hour (including all operations from hamper to line) as any single-tub washer made.
3. Only by the "2 suds" washing method (which is thoroughly convenient only with the Dexter "Fastwin"), can that "grayish tinge" and that "harsh feel" be kept out of clothes month after month, without soaking or boiling.
4. The Dexter "Fastwin" thus offers a very substantial and easily demonstrated advantage over any single-tub washer that is, or ever can be built—even though the Dexter Company builds the finest of single-tub washers, also.
5. Builders of fine washers for more than a quarter century, The Dexter Company originated the double-tub type of washer 16 years ago, and the first one ever made is still in weekly use.
6. More than 100,000 delighted users say they could never again be satisfied with any mere single-tub washer.

Welfare Fund Program Radio Feature Tonight

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Sun-Telegraph Radio Editor.

SINGERS, actors and orchestras from Pittsburgh theaters will join tonight in a gala three and a half hour program to aid the Pittsburgh Welfare Fund campaign.

Taking the air at 10:30, WCAE will present a bounty of good entertainment in Victor Graff, Nat Nazzaro, Jr., Richard Huey, of the Nixon "Porgy" company; Penn Stage Orchestra; Harris Theater Band; Gracie Barrie, "blues" singer; Ardine and Tyrell, Faber and Wales; Irving Lewis, songs; Irene Taylor, tap dances; Duval Sisters, taps; Harry Savoy, monologue; Elias Breeskin, violin solos, and Dick Liebert, piano numbers. A few surprises may be injected at the last minute.

Previous to the home town event the networks will send excellent entertainment in the Westinghouse Salute to Aviation, KDKA at 7:30, and a historic naval battle as the initial offering of the Trawlers on WJAS at 8:30.

Hank Simmons has booked a "blood and thunder" thriller for the "Maybelle." When the decks are cleared at 11 plenty of working space will be given "Squire Mervin," the villian, for his dastardly deeds. It's a WJAS feature.

We Now Present

German dialect comes natural to R. P. Griffith, "Prof" of the Dilworth Little German Band, KDKA on Thursdays, but he still can't read the letters he receives from Teutonic admirers.

"What's this one say?" he asks of Glenn L. Riggs as he tosses epistle after epistle to his announcer playmate.

Glenn gets a greater thrill reading the letters in English he receives from housewives, shut-ins who enjoy his "Morning Parade," a feature composed entirely of records with the continuity — BY RIGGS. It's above par.

While Griffith has a yen for anything purple, like the loud tie he wore yesterday, Riggs confines himself to soft harmonious colors.

FIELDER'S CHOICE: Like the names of players he so often confuses and the plays he so often misjudges, Graham McNamee has added another foul ball to his vocabulary—this time three different ways of pronouncing Notre Dame.

Who'd ever imagine Wendell Hall, Majestic m. c., was a buck private in Uncle Sam's AEF group.

"Cal" Mara, demon bowler at KQV, is chopping them down in the Doubleday Hill league. "Cal" hits as high as 150.

TODAY'S TID BIT:

When women radio listeners miss a word or a phrase in a broadcast recipe they immediately write the studios to find out whether it was two or three cups of flour and mention they are enclosing a two cent stamp for reply—but even the office mouse has a hard time finding the stamp. This is radio's most common social error, a local artist tells us.

Richard Gordon, Charles Warburton and Florence Malone, prominent in many stage plays and leading stars of the radio drama, will play the leading roles in "Leondo's Wings," a dramatic sketch depicting the first attempts of Leonardo Da Vinci to conquer the air. A modern drama of the air, "The Lighted Airway," presents Miss Virginia Gardiner, Jack McBryde, Allen Joslyn and other stage stars.

The music for the production is largely based on an original score by Cesare Sodero, conductor of the orchestra. It varies from the broadly comic to full tonal pictures built by the orchestra and a chorus of 40 voices. The chorus, which sings without words, contributes a stirring rendition of Schubert's "Omnipotence." "The Eagle" and the "Witches Dance" by MacDowell and an excerpt from the "Ride of the Valkyries" by Wagner, played by the orchestra, are musical representations of the conquest of the air. Pedro de Cordoba is heard as the "Voice of the Interludes."

CHAPPED SKIN

ITALIAN BALM was invented by an internationally famous Italian skin specialist. As a commercial product, it was first introduced to Canada—where winters are long and severely cold. For many years, Canadians have preferred Italian Balm to any other hand and face lotion made in the Dominion or imported.

In the United States, Italian Balm is rapidly becoming a popular favorite—for two reasons. It is more positive and quicker acting in preventing or healing rough, red or chapped skin. Second—it is surprisingly inexpensive to buy and to use. Approved by Good Housekeeping. Sold in 35c and 60c bottles. FREE travel size bottle on request.

Charged with Laziness—

Guilty Simply of Acidity!

More than one man today is misjudged and unjustly penalized because of a not understood physical condition rather than any lack of willingness or ability.

So many of us are only half ourselves, only fifty per cent efficient, because we are victims of an insidious condition of acidity! That persistent tired feeling—that clouded mind—that lack of dash and fire—that missing punch that decides so many situations in business—are all usually due to an acid system.

Acidity is brought on by our unnatural eating, excessive smoking and irregular hours. It impairs digestion, and causes fermentation and putrefaction in the intestines and drags us down physically and mentally.

Begins Where Milk of Magnesia Leaves Off

A remarkable new corrective of acidity has been developed by a famous 100-year-old pharmaceutical house in Germany. As an acid corrective it begins where milk of magnesia and bicarbonate of soda leave off.

This new, improved magnesia comes in the form of small white tablets call[illegible] which do not have [illegible], but may be swallo[illegible]. Magnesia Oxoids, upon contact with the acid in the stomach, generate nascent, or active, oxygen. Now, active oxygen, as any doctor will tell you, when generated within the digestive tract does just the things required for acidity. It stimulates the secretion of the alkaline mucus. It checks the putrefaction and fermentation in the gastro-intestinal canal. It exercises a stimulating effect upon the activities of the intestinal walls and aids the movement of the bowels.

All three effects are necessary to the true relief of acidity and Magnesia Oxoids supply them in a perfectly natural manner.

5-Day Acid Test

See for yourself how much acid has to do with your rundown condition and that persistent feeling of tiredness. Make this 5-day acid test. Get a package of Magnesia Oxoids from Dow Drug Co. or any other druggist on our money-back guarantee. Take two after each meal for five days. Note the pick-up in your pep and vigor. Mark the new peace of your stomach and nerves. If five days' test doesn't show you a decided improvement in your [illegible] return the balance of the [illegible] to your druggist and he will [illegible] your money.

Penn Buick Company, Inc. tells Buick owners that "Amoco-Gas is superior to any competitive motor fuel"

Pittsburgh and its nearby territory provide a real test for any car--and the motor fuel which makes good in that hilly city with its congested traffic will make good anywhere!

AMOCO-GAS has long been the favorite motor fuel of Pittsburgh--and this letter from the local Buick representatives, the Penn Buick Company, Inc., says:

"AMOCO-GAS--used in the Buick car--gives additional performance on the hills, superior motor operation and additional mileage. IN PERFORMANCE AMOCO-GAS IS SUPERIOR TO ANY COMPETITIVE MOTOR FUEL. WE HAVE NO HESITANCY IN RECOMMENDING AMOCO-GAS TO OUR USERS."

And just as AMOCO-GAS improves Buick performance, so it will improve the performance of any make or type of motor!

Historic Naval Battle.

The first program recounts the historic fight off Cherbourg between the Confederate cruiser "Alabama" and the U. S. S. "Kearsarge."

These programs, each of which are to present a story within a story, are heard from the deck of a deep sea trawler, the "Spray," and in honor of Navy Day this first broadcast tells of one of America's most notable naval battles, fought in June, 1864.

The "Alabama," most powerful of all cruisers owned by the Confederacy, played havoc with the North's shipping during the Civil War, and many Federal ships were on the lookout for the raider. The "Kearsarge" finally located her prey in the French port, and steamed in and out the harbor several times, a challenge the officers and men of the Confederate vessel could not ignore.

Captain Raphael Semmes, commanding the "Alabama," sent word to Captain John A. Winslow of the "Kearsarge" that he would leave the protection of the neutral port as soon as he could, and Sunday morning, June 19, 1864, sallied forth to the battle in which the Confederate naval supremacy received a body blow.

"Hank Simmons" is giving his radio patrons a real old "blood and thunder" melodrama in "The Gold King." The play is in four acts and concerns one "Jack Redmond," the hero, and "Squire Mervin," the villain, and their adventures. The presentation is plentifully sprinkled with romance, gun play and thrills. Then, of course, there is the prison scene where the "young boy" is just saved from the clutches of the arch criminal by "your" hero. All in all, "The Gold King" is a true reflection of the earliest and most exciting type of melodrama.

A clear, smooth, lovely skin speaks of rich, red blood within. It is Nature's outward reflection of internal healthfulness.

First impressions cannot be good without a clear skin—first impressions are quickly made and are not soon forgotten. Old friends may excuse pimples and secretly sympathize but new acquaintances may not be so charitable. Skin blemishes are not inviting. They cannot be covered up. They embarrass. Hold people back. Steal away joy and happiness.

Men and women, both, justly covet admiration and all may expect such satisfaction to its fullest extent if they are the possessors of a clear, unblemished skin.

If you are unfortunate in this respect you owe it to yourself and friends to remove the cause. Nature will then provide the complexion which is so much desired.

More important still, strong healthy blood nourishes the body and fights against infection and disease.

YOUTHFULNESS and BEAUTY are dependent upon a strong body— firm flesh— a clear skin

Loss of strength, flabby flesh and skin eruptions are but a few of the symptoms of a deeper and more dangerous trouble—a lack of the normal count of red-cells in the blood.

NOTHING is more beautiful, more inspiring, more glorified than the supreme manifestation of Nature in the human body. Those sparkling eyes, that clear skin, that firm flesh, and that vigor of action denoting vitality, bespeak loveliness and internal healthfulness.

And so, is it not our birthright to be masters over our own bodies? To be sure not much is said openly about personal handicaps—skin blemishes—sallow complexion—poor health—but secretly they influence many important affairs.

Skilled physicians recognize the appearance of skin blemishes, lack of appetite, flabby flesh and loss of energy as an indication that the body's power of resistance is low—that there is a deficiency of red-blood-cells.

When you build back your red-cells to the correct number you will have followed Nature's own way of regaining Health. Your skin should clear up and you should have the body strength to fight against disease and infection. You should get hungry again and sleep soundly. Firm flesh should take the place of that which was once flabby. You should feel strong; your nerves become steady.

This is why so many thousands, seeking youthfulness and beauty, have taken a course of S. S. S. It helps Nature restore the blood to its normal state. Without plenty of rich, red-blood-cells there would be no strong, sturdy, powerful men or beautiful, healthy women.

Barbara's Father-in-Law Threatened by Father Of Sick Child

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Mary Patricia Dawn, pert, young, demi-brunette, sees her little brother, Dickie, fail to rise after a dive in the lake. Pat brings up the apparently lifeless body. All hope seems gone when suddenly an airplane sweeps down out of the sky. Pat's father arrives with Guy Elliott, a tall, handsome youth as pilot. Quick action follows and Dickie recovers. Later Elliott kisses and takes Pat for an air ride. Happy days follow, with Pat and Guy in love. Then comes Barbara Bryce with the seductive lure of shadowy eyes. She is the widow of young William Bryce, whose father owns the airplane factory where Guy works. While trying out her new plane, Barbara has an accident but is saved. In the excitement, Guy forgets an appointment with Pat. Later, while airplaning with Guy, Pat has a glimpse of Barbara in another plane. Pat marvels at Barbara's beauty and wonders if Guy is moved by it.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER VII.

AN exuberant young man lounging in a deep chair took a long drag at his pipe and smiled. His thoughts were pleasant. They were of himself. And of a girl. He felt her small hands reaching up and clinging joyously about his neck. He felt her lips tickling his ear.

Such words as she murmured! He'd never heard quite such candor, though he was one well liked by maids and women. "You're glorious! You're just—just beautiful!"

He yawned and closed the book that had been idling in his lap. At the sound, a figure emerged from the semi-darkness and came cautiously across the deep-piled carpet.

"Well, Mr. Jim, how did you sneak in here? Mud on your feet? Sally'll box your ears."

The brown setter whose great eyes were eloquent with understanding, laid his head on Guy's knee. He began licking his master's hand.

"Never mind, old fellow, I'm going to take you to the plant to live. You'll have the whole hillside to roam and no plagued new carpets to worry you."

He glanced musing over the big, richly-furnished room—a typical man's room with its desk, its commodious day-bed, its linen drapes and convenient book shelves and tables. Here, in an exclusive district, Guy Elliott lived with his sister and her prosperous young husband.

Guy now figured the years it would take before he could give a girl the luxury Cliff Elkins offered Sally.

Not so many if William Bryce made good his promises. The big promoter who had always a dozen brilliant schemes under way was just now coining money in apartment house buying and selling; his oil and bank stocks soared, and a new resident park he had financed promised well. His excess profits went into the manufacture and promotion of the Bryce-Elliott Swallow.

If Bryce's fervor continued, one jaunty Guy Elliott might soon be sitting pretty on the top of the world. Free to marry the lady of his liking.

Would it be the gay Miss Pat?

"She's pretty cute," he thought, and knocked the ashes with a grin from his trusty old pipe. He decided to see William Bryce in the morning; get down in black and white the plans for the marketing of the plane.

That next morning Barbara paid him a visit. She had her small golden-haired son with her. They came to get the tiny model Guy had been asked to make for the boy.

So Barbara loitered a moment to chat. A woman, of course, would have instantly suspected her motives. She had seen Guy with Pat and came to sound him out!

But Guy was a mere man. And a young one. He was pleased with Barbara's interest. He was flattered when she asked to see his blue prints.

He made the tiny monoplane fly about the room. Barbara laughed in rapture. She said, blushing: "This is awfully sweet in you, Guy—bothering with my little tyke."

Instantly Guy felt her loneliness; felt the child's bereavement. The young girl and her pretty boy affected him piercingly.

As the door closed on Barbara, Guy said absently: "Tough about young Bryce. Were you here when he crashed, Tom?"

Tom Burns worked at an adjoining table. He drove his pencil in a furious zig-zag down the page. "Other people die! Bryce killed himself; others just as good are forced to a crash. They could be saved but they're plunged to death because pigs like the Bryce outfit want more than their share. Her kid can fritter away the money that would keep mine from the grave. Oh my God!"

He became suddenly calm. He said in a matter-of-fact quiet: "Guy, Tommy is going to die!"

"What makes you fear that?"

"The doctor told us this morning. He has one chance in ten to win the fight. And we CAN'T give him his chance! It takes money. I haven't got it. I can't [illegible] back to his table and [illegible] grimly folded arms. He looked like a statue caught in a mood of blasphemous, eternal resentment.

That afternoon Guy, intent on his future and feeling himself the proud young captain of his own soul and his own fate, went to the office of William Bryce. The workrooms connected with this suite by a long, dark passage.

The Bryce-Elliott Plane production plant was in South San Francisco, a short distance from the Mills Flying Field. The buildings were crude and temporary.

In a small entrance room, a girl with lightning fingers clicked at the typewriter. She was Nancy Brack, confidential secretary of William Bryce. She had been with him seven years, going with him through one successful enterprise to another. She was proud of her employer's brilliance; she boasted of his Midas-touch, and she spoke of his affairs with the intimate knowing tone of the old, highly-trusted employe.

Nancy was about 25, a thin girl with gray eyes and dark red hair. Her body had long, sinuous curves of which she was conscious and which were accentuated by her dress of brown satin, cut like a sheath. Despite the flying fingers, she gave an impression of langour due to her slow, studied manner of raising her eyes.

Nancy was in love with Guy; she was hungry for attention. Whenever he came into the office she wooed him.

"Careful, lad! I'm a red and greedy wench! And might ask plenty."

Guy chuckled. He was about to take the hand Nancy offered when he heard a voice from the inner office. This voice raised an instant alarm.

"Is that Tom Burns in there?"

"Yes."

"He sounded angry."

"No—he's only insane—that's all. Demanding money again. And hasn't paid a cent of the $500 he got six months ago. Thinks the whole world should be fried on a griddle because he has a sick kid. A fat chance he has to get a penny now with the oil fields going. . . ."

She broke off with a white look of terror. A wild shouting fury lifted and struck violently into the room.

"You've got to do it! By God, you will do it!"

"Can't? What you waste in a month on your grandchild would do it."

"Leave my child out of it."

"No—by God. I won't leave him out. He's no better than mine. Mine's dying. I'll not have him die. Give it to me! By God, I'll make you."

Guy pushed the door mightily. It resisted. He called to the men inside.

They were banging the wall as though one hurled against the other. Above the scraping feet came frightful, growling sobs: "Give it—you will give it . . ."

"Fainted—get water."

Tom Burns reached out and struck the glass from Guy's hand. He managed to sit up—to confront Bryce with a look of stony hate. "Are you refusing me?"

"And get out of here, quick!"

"Bryce it's going to be the dearest money you ever saved! It's going to cut the heart out of you."

All trace of his hysteria vanished. He stood up, brushed his coat. He confronted Guy and Nancy Brack with a frightening solemnity.

"You two are witnesses to what I say. He spills my blood. I spill his!"

Drawn by NELL BRINKLEY

LOVE stands a quaint shape against the moon, and tells the silly young things that he do be after getting chilly—even himself. Love "laughs at locksmiths"—and cold, and heat, and hunger; up to a certain temperature—or down—and up to a certain starvation pang. And then he gathers up his hammocks, or turns on the fan, or whips up the dust for a sandwich shop. Love may be deathless, but he is human.

The chill of the North is here, and the living-room fireplace is again scenting the evening air for the commuter. Lovers, and the family Scottie, can no longer have their tea and chase pale butterflies on the lawn after sunset. Away down South you are still in your bathing suits, but up here the fur coat came home yesterday! In Quebec they are polishing the silver bells on the sleighs, and the little boys' mammas are getting out their red toques and hooded coats, and the belles and beaux are hunting up their Hudson Bay blanket coats and snowshoes. In the woods of Nova Scotia neighbors are helping one another cut their kitchen-high stacks of Winter wood. In Vermont you can buy bailed buckets of maple sugar, heavy as lead, but yellow as dark gold, and flaming red Winter apples. Around New York the maple trees are lighting their bonfires on every hill. In town the Winter shows are on.

And young-old Dan pleads in the light of the moon: "Time to come in, deluded but happy ones. Summer is gone, and there is a nook by the fire."

—NELL BRINKLEY.

How to Keep Well

By HELEN ROWLAND

Make Sensible Use of Your Free Hours

SO SHORT a time ago as 1900 there was much concern as to whether or not the food supply of this great country would last. Ominous warnings were sent out for the conservation of food. This hardly seems possible when you look around today at the markets glutted not only with the necessities, but with the luxuries and delicacies for serving on the table.

DR. COPELAND

Today raw foods in this country exceed all expectations in the efficiency of their production. Machinery is utilized in many marvelous ways. Wheat comprises one-third of our energy food and it is produced under the greatest efficiency. It is said that each bushel of wheat represents about 30 minutes of man labor. This efficiency in the production of our raw materials needed for food leaves much leisure because with this efficiency came higher wages and fewer hours for work.

American food standards have risen, but we hear little about the high cost of living. As a people we are less and less concerned about the need of food, clothing and shelter. We have lost all fear of a shortened food supply.

It has been said that "the more vigorous and long-lived the race the better utilization can it make of its natural resources. The labor power of such a race is greater, more intense, more intelligent and more inventive."

One of the most important ways of maintaining vital efficiency is to conserve our natural resources—the land, raw materials, the forests and water.

Many families in America have earnings which leave considerable margin for other things than the necessities of life. This may be spent or saved.

Although the cost of living has risen to some extent in the past few years, it is relatively stable. Rising wages have brought with them leisure. This increasing leisure has a direct bearing upon the health of the people. Increased expenditures are made for goods and service. It tends to create new needs.

Considered from the health standpoint this increased leisure brings with it less fatigue and more outdoor life. Sports of all kinds are indulged in and benefits are derived for mind and body.

But there is another side. Increasing leisure presents new problems. If wrongly used it may make us physically unfit.

A wise and judicious use of leisure will help to preserve a better mental balance as well as bodily well being.

Love's Awakening

A Continuation of Love's Embers

By ADELE GARRISON

Junior Threatens to Arouse Dicky's Wrath

DICKY taunt — for it was nothing less — would have been hard enough to bear if I had been alone, and nothing had been involved save his jealous resentment over my work for Philip Veritzen which was to take me to the city for the winter. But that he should have permitted his rancor to spoil my last hour with Junior before leaving home—this brought me to my feet in a quivering fury which took all my willpower to control.

"You—you—are unjust!" I stammered, unable to quiet all reproach, but stifling the bitter retort which I would not utter before Junior.

"Oh, of course," Dicky mocked. "I realize that fully, also that you are a most ethereal martyr whose heart is torn between her duty and her love for her che-eld. Sorry I intruded upon the touching farewell and the moral lecture."

He swept off his cap and bent from the waist in a bow which held even more of mockery than did his words. But I had caught hold of myself by the time he had finished his little tirade, and I turned quietly away from him and reseated myself beside my boy.

But the next instant my small son was no longer beside me He had flung himself after the retreating figure of his father, and seized his arm, with both hands, while his voice rose in impassioned angry protest.

"My mother isn't what you called her," he choked, evidently under the impression that 'ethereal martyr' was some epithet calling for bloodshed upon the part of the lady's sworn knight. Several months before, after an orgy of medieval story telling, he had begged me to give him the accolade of knighthood with his wooden sword, and also had begged for a piece of ribbon from one of my gowns to wear in his cap. I had played the combination role of sovereign and sweetheart with tears behind my smiles for the adoration which I realized lay beneath the little chap's play, and it was with a fierce joy in his championship that I heard his arraignment of his father, though I know that later I must take him to task for his rudeness and send him to Dicky with an apology.

For always my husband and I have kept one unspoken pact. Never has either of us, in the absence of the other, belittled each other's authority or uttered a criticism of any sort. To do Dicky justice, also, I told myself, although I found the admission difficult, so angry was I, the occasions of his flying out at me before Junior were rare. With Lillian's words still echoing in my ears, I wondered if the jealousy of my work with Philip Veritzen which I knew prompted his outburst, might not have its roots—as she had said—in—

I pulled myself up short. Not yet was I willing to consider that possibility even in my remotest thought processes. But when did a woman fail to find a certain softening thrill in the conjecture that her husband's anger is prompted by jealousy?

Junior's high-pitched voice was sweeping on, perilously near to tears now.

"She's the best mother in the whole world," he shouted, "and you shan't make her feel bad by calling her names just when she's going away."

Dicky permitted his son to pull him around so that he faced me. At the look upon his face my muscles tensed in terror, then relaxed as the fierce anger vanished as quickly as it had come. But I knew that in that momentary wrath, he had been very near to physical chastisement of his small son for the little lad's championship of me, and I shivered at the knowledge that such a scene would have indelibly branded its bitterness upon all three of us.

But there was rancor mingled with infinite weariness in his voice as he finally answered the boy.

"You do not understand, Junior. I haven't called your mother names. But you are a good boy to stand up for her. Always do that. You might remember, however, that I am going away, too, tomorrow morning."

He loosened the boy's hands and strode quickly away. Junior stood looking after him for a second, his fists clenched, his chest heaving. Then he threw himself face downward upon the grass, and vented his anguished perplexity in a loud wail such as he had not used for many months.

"Oh, dear!" he cried. "Why can't I have my father and mother together, and all of us loving each other lots as we used to do."

I half rose from my seat to rush to him, but saw Dicky slacken his stride irresolutely and I sank down again. Did he mean to come back?"

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

A Considerate Young Girl

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Since you have helped me previously, I feel that you will help me now again. My music teacher's husband died lately, so this afternoon I paid her a visit of about 40 minutes. I also took her candy. Was I correct in making this call? In bringing the candy? Please inform me.

Another thing—she is quite old and alone and she happened to say that she would like to have someone stay with her once in a while to keep her a little company. I did not offer to stay, but my mother says I should have done so. Dear Mrs. Beeckman, answer me, and help me out, as I like to be kind and thoughtful, but still do not care to intrude.

MISS V.

INDEED, you were correct, Miss V., in making this call, because you were kind and sweet and considerate of others.

And I know how deeply touched this sorrowing woman was by your bringing her a gift that was its own indication of how much of sympathy and devotion you wished to offer her. Of course, it was generous, thoughtful and most friendly of you to bring her the candy. Bless you for it, and I'm sure the friend echoes my blessing.

I can read between the lines how deeply touched this friend was by your loving visit to her. Why? Because you made her realize how much she needed and appreciated and yearned for just such friendliness and sympathy as you gave her—and she wanted you and other friends to come to her in her lonliness. Anyone who has just been through a separation from a loved one knows how heart-breaking is the readjustment, the getting used to being alone.

So don't worry about not having offered at the time to come. You weren't at all rude, for it was quite natural then for you not to have thought that you might be intruding. But that doesn't make any difference now. Go again to see your music teacher, show her that you have devotion and sympathy for her, and convey by your manners that it is a pleasure, not a duty, for you to be with her. For of such as you, with your kind heart and your love for other people, is the Kingdom of Courtesy.

'It Is I'

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you kindly tell me the proper way of telling the time? A said "20 minutes of 10." B said "nine-forty."

2. Upon answering one's telephone call should one say "This is she, or This is her?" A. B. C.

EITHER is correct.

2. "This is she" is correct. The rule is that any part of the verb to be is followed by the nominative case. She is in the nominative case and her is in the objective. "It is I" and "That is they" and "Is that he?" are correct.

HELEN ROWLAND

"NO woman has ever DONE anything (invented anything, originated anything or written anything) that some man has not done better," declares a cynic.

* * *

If true, that is because most of woman's ingenuity has been consumed in doing WITHOUT things—if you know what I mean.

* * *

Whatever a man does, from inventing a machine to cleaning the car, putting on a tire or getting up a meal, he must have all the tools, fixings and mechanical appurtenances with which to do it. Every man is a plumber at heart! Always needing "something else" which isn't handy.

* * *

But, all a woman needs in an emergency is her own wit and ingenuity and any implement at hand. A little thing like the lack of a screwdriver or a hammer cannot balk her purpose.

* * *

When a man starts out to make a garden he must have a spade, a trowel, a hoe, a rake and a book of rules; but a woman can take an old kitchen spoon, her fingernails and a few stray nasturtium seeds and make you a beautiful flower-bed that will GROW.

* * *

When a man fixes a lock or hangs a picture or puts up the portieres it takes the whole family to wait on him. He yelps for nails, a hammer, a ladder and "the other screwdriver." But a woman can hang a picture with a piece of string, a few thumb-tacks and the hairbrush, or make a lock work with a bent hairpin or an old nail-file. Or she can climb up on a kitchen chair and the dictionary and put up the new portieres with a paper of pins.

* * *

A man will walk a mile in order to have his hair trimmed by an expert, but almost any woman can cut her own hair with the manicure scissors.

* * *

A man's hat must be a HAT, properly cut, blocked, shaped and sized by a professional, but a woman can wind an old piece of crepe-de-chine around the remains of a wire lampshade and make a snappy little turban in twenty minutes.

* * *

A man's idea of making a home is to build a house and fill it with plumbing, furnaces, electric wires and furniture. But a woman can take an army tent or a dingy back room in a cheap hotel and string a few draperies, cushions and photographs around it and make a "home" of it—if she's born with the "homing instinct."

* * *

When a man tries to get a one-course breakfast there isn't a clean dish or pan or spoon left in the place, and the kitchen looks like a battlefield. But a woman can cook a five-course dinner on a top-sized electric grill and serve it on a tea-wagon.

* * *

Of course, men have invented all the ingenious implements and labor-saving devices. They HAD to—because they NEEDED them!

* * *

But a woman can do WITHOUT almost anything—except love, clothes, conversation and flattery. And most of those were invented by the first woman 'way back in the Garden of Eden!

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Thursday, November 14.

THE sidereal operations for this day make for sudden and surprising developments, especially through the avenue of writings, letters or business deals. The latter may meet with financial success, although there is a certain hazard in dealing with large corporations or mergers. Be careful as to deception and fraud.

Those whose birthday it is may look for some profitable business transactions during the year, and these may have an element of the surprising or unexpected. However, they should be on guard against treachery and fraud. Letters may bring surprising news.

A child born on this day may be ingenious and clever, ambitious and fairly successful.

For any BABY

We can never be sure just what makes an infant restless, but the remedy can always be the same. Good old Castoria! There's comfort in every drop of this pure vegetable preparation, and not the slightest harm in its frequent use. As often as Baby has a fretful spell, is feverish, or cries and can't sleep, let Castoria soothe and quiet him. Sometimes it's a touch of colic. Sometimes constipation. Or diarrhea—a condition that should always be checked without delay. Just keep Castoria handy, and give it promptly. Relief will follow very promptly; if it doesn't, you should call a physician.

All through babyhood, Castoria should be a mother's standby; and a wise mother does not change to stronger medicines as the child grows older. Castoria is readily obtained at any drugstore, and the genuine easily identified by the Chas. H. Fletcher signature that appears on every wrapper.

VILLAGE GOSSIP: Political dopesters say it is virtually certain that Peter P. Walsh is to be elevated from the superintendency of police to the Director of Public Safety . . . As possible successors to to Mr. Walsh two North Siders, Charley Faulkner, inspector, and Frank Boyd, inspector of detectives, are mentioned, and the South Side inspector, Havey J. Boyle.

John McArdle, is also getting honorable mention . . . Inspector Jimmy Hoey, of the First District, is booked to succeed Frank Boyd, who, if he doesn't get the superintendency, probably will become an inspector of police . . . While the inspector of detectives gets a higher salary than a police inspector, nine out of ten policemen would rather be the inspector of police . . . Both are very important jobs in city affairs . . . Ben Bloom, a former Peoria boy now residing in our fair city, almost took a sock at Luke Barnett the other night . . . As usual Luke had passed out one insult after another . . . Cooler heads prevailed and Ben shook hands with Pittsburgh's most celebrated entertainer . . . ## MEDALS AWAIT NURSE, VETS

A Red Cross nurse who served during the Spanish-American War in 1898, and 12 veterans of the same campaign will be decorated with service medals tonight at a banquet given by Camp Alfred E. Hunt, Veterans of Foreign Wars, in Gen. Logan Armory. The medals have been issued by the War Department, and each is accompanied by an official citation.

The medal for nursing, the first of its kind to be given a woman in Pennsylvania, will be awarded to Mrs. Mary E. Shaefer, of 719 Thomas street, Sewickley. She served at Fort McPherson, Georgia, at the base hospital there, during the war. The veterans will be given awards for active service in both the Cuban and Philippine campaigns.

Members of Katherine May Joyce Post, American Legion, composed of nurses who served in the World War, will be guests of honor. John N. G. Greiner, past commander of Camp Alfred Hunt Post, will be toastmaster. The affair will begin at 6:30 o'clock. More than 250 are expected to attend.

RAID DAMAGES BY DRY MEN CONDEMNED

Pennington, Graham, Gardner Agree on Order to Squads Denouncing Vandalism

Prohibition enforcement in the Pittsburgh district is going to get an entirely new deal, United States Attorney Louis E. Graham, District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner and Prohibition Administrator John D. Pennington arranged it all at lunch yesterday.

They are going to get together on a program by which in the future, "West Virginia" tactics of dry raiders, which in plain journalese means "wrecking the joint," are to be abandoned and raids are to be conducted in an orderly, legal manner. Mirrors, ice boxes, furniture and other appurtenances of the speakeasy are not to be molested in the future, insofar as it is within the power of the several enforcement directors to prevent it.

HITS VANDALISM

"We are going to follow out the instructions which were outlined by United States Attorney John D. Meyer and which were published two years ago," Pennington said last night. "What we agree upon will, I understand, result in a written agreement on the form of procedure by which raids will be conducted by state and prohibition officers. This office never has in the past and never will countenance wanton destruction by any of its agents.

"The specific case we discussed about vandalism by agents is being thoroughly investigated by this office and the men responsible for it will be disciplined. One of our agents was brutally assaulted in front of this place, 6486 Frankstown avenue, by a gang of hoodlums. This, however, was no justification for retaliation by the agents. Mr. Gardner was courteous and willing to co-operate in ironing out future difficulties, and with Mr. Graham, I believe, will work out a satisfactory plan of operation."

GARDNER SATISFIED

District Attorney Gardner said that the luncheon meeting was satisfactory and that he thinks a plan can be worked out whereby future depredations of prohibition agents will be eliminated.

"We have agreed that illegal raids and property destruction are not to be countenanced, and I think that we can work harmoniously in law enforcement," Gardner said.

EDWARD REYNOLDS AND RECOVERED JEWELRY

J. Smith home, 5327 Beeler street.

JEWELS FOUND, SUSPECT HELD

Highly prized heirlooms, stolen from the W. J. Smith home at 5327 Beeler street, Squirrel Hill, were recovered two hours later with the arrest and confession of a Negro burglar, according to testimony today in Oakland Police Court.

The prisoner admitted having burglarized several other homes in the district.

GEMS AND MEAT

Patrolman Edward Reynolds, who captured two bandits who robbed the Pittsburgh Athletic Association six months ago, arrested the Negro on suspicion when the policeman saw him walking in Bigelow boulevard, near Parkman avenue.

Under his arm was a package of meat stolen from the Smith refrigerator. In his pocket were the heirlooms.

SUSPECT HELD

Smith testified that when he and his wife returned from the movies last night he found a rear window had been jimmied and the house ransacked.

The Negro, on the police docket as Thomas Blowden, 39, was held for court. Police will try to establish what other homes he burglarized.

AX SLAYER GETS LIFE TERM

Adjudged guilty of murder in the first degree, James Johnson, a Negro, 38, of Moon Run, was sentenced to life imprisonment in the penitentiary by Judge D. W. Henderson of Fayette County in Criminal Court yesterday. Johnson pleaded guilty generally to the attack and the court then took testimony to determine the degree of homicide.

It was testified that Johnson had killed Ada Parker, 32, Negro, of Moon Run, in her home last July 20, beating her with an ax. He also is said to have struck Jennie Lomax, Negro, a neighbor of the dead woman, with an ax, and for this he was charged with assault and battery. No sentence was imposed on the latter charge.

Girl Hurt as Auto Hits Traffic Light

Anna Feldhege, 22, of 1927 Letsch way, suffered a broken rib when the automobile in which she was a passenger crashed into a traffic light at Federal street and Park way late last night. Lawrence Hink, 26, of 7000 Agnew street, driver, was arrested by North Side police on a charge of reckless driving.

GIRL TEACHER FIGHTS OFF ASSAILANT

Valiant 15-Minute Struggle By Victim in Lonely Path Puts Assailant to Flight

"Guess I was too much for him," fearlessly remarked 25-year-old Alma Hankey, Frazer Township teacher, as she prepared today to return to the little gray schoolhouse in the hills back of Glassmere, near which yesterday morning an unidentified thug set upon her as she walked through a desolate patch of woods to the classroom.

"It was a hard tussle," the young woman related, rather timorously, "but I think he'll remember it for a while."

TELLS OF STRUGGLE

The teacher grappled with her assailant, whom she described as being of medium build, rather young and dressed in rough clothes. She struggled with him for about 15 minutes, she said. Her clothes were torn, her hands and face scratched and bruised, and a metal lunch box she was carrying was torn from her grasp and trampled into the ground.

"As I passed him in the path through the woods leading to the school," she said, "he was standing beside a tree, his hands in his pockets and his head turned away from me.

"I had gone quite a distance through the woods when he grabbed me, placing both hands over my eyes. I struck at him with my lunch box, and he tore it out of my hands.

THREATENED, FIGHTS ON

"I screamed, and he told me to shut up or he would choke me. We grappled for a long time, and finally he ran off into the woods. I made my way to a farm house where friends took me in an automobile and we reported the affair to police."

School children on their way to the class room found Miss Hankey's crumpled lunch box. Not finding the teacher at her desk, they reported her absence to school authorities who, upon learning of the attack, dismissed classes for the day.

Miss Hankey was anxious to return to school today, however, declaring she was not afraid of the daily trip through the woods necessary to reach the little frame township building. She has been teaching the Frazer Township children for two years.

"The next man to annoy me will find me ready for him," she declared.

LAYMEN PLAN BANQUET

The Very Rev. ## 'Merit System' Speeds Auto Production

J. H. Marks, purchase manager of the Packard Motor Car Company, told more than 200 officials of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company at a meeting last night in the Westinghouse Club, Penwood street, Wilkinsburg, how a "merit system" of rewards and penalties for automobile manufacturing efficiency was being worked out. After finding that the Packard company was working at only 65 per cent efficiency due to unintentional lost time, officials, he said, developed a system where bonuses were paid for the degree of efficiency maintained in various departments.

Gen. A. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and officers and directors of the system, in Pittsburgh on their annual inspection trip, were entertained at the Duquesne Club last night at a dinner given by R. B. Mellon, Howard Heinz and A. W. Thompson, Pittsburgh members of the board of directors.

The party left Philadelphia yesterday morning and traversed the low grade freight line to the Enola freight yard opposite Harrisburg and arrived here in the evening.

They left for Port Columbus, O., this morning to witness the operation of the new airport which is the eastern terminal for the airplanes of Transcontinental Air Transport, Inc. Upon their arrival in Cincinnati this evening they will attend a dinner at the Queen City Club.

Returning from Cincinnati the party will cover a portion of the Fort Wayne route into Pittsburgh and will arrive in Philadelphia tomorrow evening.

7,777 FILL QUOTAS IN ONE HOUR

Success of County Campaign For $1,168,055 Held Sure After Big Opening Returns

Sounding the keynote of success with the announcement that $119,115 had been pledged in the first hour of the second annual campaign of the Welfare Fund of Pittsburgh, leaders in the movement at a dinner in the William Penn Hotel last night launched a county-wide canvass for 31 philanthropic institutions to be financed on the community plan.

Obtaining practically 10 per cent of its ultimate goal of $1,168,055, 7,777 workers filled their first day's quota almost before they began and this was regarded as an encouraging augury for the completion of the canvass on schedule time, November 22.

1,000 WORKERS ENLISTED

More than 1,000 persons enlisted in the cause of the Welfare Fund attended the opening dinner, filling the ball room and the Urban room at the hotel. By their enthusiasm they showed that they were determined that "teamwork for humanity" once again would prove a magic slogan in raising funds for the needy in the Pittsburgh district.

Team captains credited with $500 doubled, redoubled and added hundreds of dollars to that amount in contributions made at the dinner. Each team has a quota of $12,500 to raise between now and the close of the drive November 22.

The meeting was colorful in the fact that it brought together the leaders of nearly every philanthropy in Pittsburgh, with persons of social and financial prominence, as well as those of less wealth but who devote their lives to social service. E. W. Smith was toastmaster. Dean Percy G. Kammerer, of Trinity Cathedral, made the invocation, and Joseph Dilworth, general chairman of the campaign, discussed the necessity of strengthening the organization for the work at hand.

LUNCHEON MEETS DAILY

Augustus K. Oliver, president of the Welfare Fund, in a brief address, expressed confidence that the canvassers should have no difficulty in securing their quotas. He said that the record made in 12 months of service by the Welfare Fund had established public confidence and that the solicitors would be welcomed by the people. Wilbur F. Maxwell, executive secretary, gave detailed instructions to the workers. Several division chairmen spoke briefly.

A feature of the dinner was the production of the one-act play, "The Undercurrent," by Drama League players under the direction of Mrs. Lane Thompson. The drama was presented by a capable cast and won the praise of the audience. Members of the company were Rita Criste, Spahr Hull, Olivia Kelly, Robert Wilson, Emma Kaylor and Margaret Murray.

Today the team members will meet at the William Penn Hotel at noon to make their first reports. Luncheon meetings will be held each day, except Saturday, until the close of the campaign.

Ladies' Aid Picks Hostesses for Tea

Mrs. W. G. Floyd, Mrs. C. C. Culler and Mrs. A. Ecke were hostesses this afternoon at a tea given by the Ladies' Aid Society of the St. James Lutheran Church, Emsworth, in the church parlors.

Franchetti, on Honeymoon, To Direct Opera Here

Aldo Franchetti will come back to town tonight, ostensibly to whip his baton over the symphony of the Pittsburgh Opera Company, but actually to spend his honeymoon.

It happened in New York last week. Franchetti dropped his role as music director of the civic opera company in Boston, said "Let's go" to Miss Ethel Baird, a member of the Boston opera and his pupil, and they went. The wedding was November 6.

While the time of arrival has not been set definitely, it is likely that when he steps off the train here with his bride, the singing choruses and the band of the opera company will be at the station and welcome them with a typical operatic greeting—the wedding march or a chorus from Lohengrin.

Franchetti appeared here as conductor of "Rigoletto," when the civic opera company here made its debut. He was unable to get here for "Il Trovatore" due to his marital plans.

Rehearsals for next Monday's opera, "La Traviata," will begin as soon as he arrives, as far as the orchestra is concerned. The choruses and leading singers have been at work for several weeks. Franchetti was also conductor of the Chicago Civic Opera Company, and rotates between the three cities.

The Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's Question—Should a Man of Limited Means Play the Stock Market?

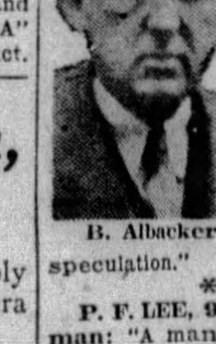
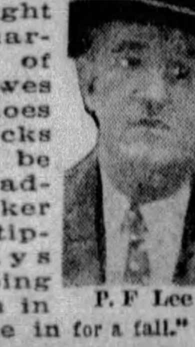
BERNARD ALBACKER, Middle street, masseur: "No man of limited means should play the stock market, whether on margin or outright buys. His best bet is, if he has any extra money to spare, to put it in good safe bonds and let the coupons accumulate dividends. There's too much risk involved in any other kind of speculation."



B. Albacker

* * *

P. F. LEE, 968 Deely street, fireman: "A man with small capital stands a good chance to beat the market if he plays outright and not on margin. The law of averages proves this. If he does go in for stocks he should be guided by the advice of his broker and not by a tipster who says stocks are going to go up when in reality they are in for a fall."



P. F Lee

JOHN S. PURUCKER, 1314 Richmond street, legislator: "The risk is too much for a man of ordinary means. Bears and bulls are out for him at all times. His safest bet is to sink his money into a house and lot right here in Pittsburgh. I've found this will pay more in the long run. Real estate increases in value in most cases. It's the logical plan for all to take part in."

J. DENNY O'NEIL, Jr., McKeesport, Clerk Tax Revision office: "That's a question for the individual to decide. The money he is taking a chance on losing or winning is his own and therefore it's his to do with as he pleases. Personally, I think the risk is too great. Good investments such as real estate, bonds and saving funds pay better."

Will Rogers Says

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Nov. 13.

Instead of observing Armistice Day Monday, Wall street decided to hold a little session for the boys that crave more action than ordinary peace affords, and everybody was jarred loose from a 5 to 50-point drop.

That will make some of 'em remember that the day has some significance anyhow.

Only two more weeks of this special session of Congress which Mr. Hoover would give his high top rubber boots if he had never been short-sighted enough as to have called 'em.

He has one consolation. They have annoyed each other as much as they have him.

COUNCIL CLASHES WITH P. R. R. OVER TRAFFIC PROJECT

PLAN FOR NEW RAIL TERMINAL OPPOSED

Separation System Costing Million More Favored at Secret Meet of Officials

City Council has upset all predictions by opposing the Pennsylvania Railroad Company in approving a plan for traffic separation at Penn and Liberty avenue and Eleventh street.

The favored plan, estimated to cost $1,621,000, includes an elevated roadway and another depressed for local and through vehicular traffic, respectively.

The railroad company had submitted a plan costing only $666,000 for the separation of traffic on the present surface level. That plan also anticipated a street car subway.

SECRET SESSION HELD

Both plans provide for the widening and repaving of Penn avenue to 120 feet from Eleventh to Eighteenth street and the widening and repaving of Eleventh street from Liberty avenue to Duquesne way.

The plan approved by Council was prepared by a special committee appointed by President James F. Malone to recommend street changes, including a subway, considered imperative by the railroad company's terminal extensions embracing new passenger and express stations on Penn avenue between Twelfth and Fourteenth streets.

Council's decision was made yesterday at a secret session for members only after an open hearing had been granted to other city officials and executives of the railroad company.

Malone submitted its decision to E. T. Whiter, vice president of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, with the announcement that a majority of his colleagues requested the company to pay half the difference between the costs of the two plans, or about $500,000.

OPPOSED BY WHITER

Whiter was silent for some time after Malone spoke and finally said in a grieved tone:

"Frankly and honestly, I don't believe it is a fair proposition. I believe the company is spending enough money in Pittsburgh, not only for its own improvement, but for the benefit of the city, to justify our previous position of urging the alternate plan and offering to pay $157,000 toward financing it.

Asked to be specific, he referred to Jersey City and Trenton, where, he said, the cities donate land to the company for extending facilities.

Replying to Malone, Whiter said he would not be ready to return the company's answer until the first of next week as he would have to leave town today on business.

The attitude of individual councilmen was not announced and while the decision came from a majority, it was rumored later that the plan did not have the support of seven members as will be required to pass legislation for the project.

During a morning meeting on the alternate plans, Whiter indicated that a recent proposal of a bridge connecting Bigelow boulevard near Elm street with Madison avenue, North Side, near the railroad tracks was not acceptable to the company as it was shown as passing through the tower of the contemplated passenger station.

CURTAILMENT HINTED

Malone asked Whiter to consider a plan of putting another deck for vehicles on top of the railroad bridge crossing the Allegheny River with approaches from Seventh avenue and Grant street and a "Y" on the North Side to East street.

Whiter said he doubted that the bridge was strong enough to carry the increased load.

Whiter declared that the company's terminal program here would cost $40,000,000, including new produce yards, freight houses and the proposed passenger station.

He indicated the program would be curtailed if agreement cannot be reached on the traffic separation plan and its incidental street widenings. He averred that the company was giving the city land worth $2,000,000 more than land the city was giving the company through the closing of streets to provide area for terminal improvements.

The company's proposed land grants included, Whiter said, property bought on the southerly side of Penn avenue for $6,000,000 that was to be donated to the city so that the thoroughfare could be widened to 120 feet.

TAX RAISE CITED

The city, in exchange, proposed to give the company the area that would be available by the closing of Liberty avenue and Spring way and the connecting thoroughfares between Eleventh and Sixteenth streets.

Supporting his contention of the company's interest in Pittsburgh's welfare, Whiter declared that the improvements to Grant street, Seventh avenue and William Penn way had cost the company $5,577,000 and for which no benefit had been received.

Robert Garland, chairman of Council's Finance Committee, favored the company's plan for traffic separation because of the lower cost.

"We will have to raise next year's tax rate as matters now stand," he said.

W. Y. English said: "Not more than a mill and a half."

John S. Herron urged the company's plan but suggested buying land for the alternate plan within five years.

While little Gertrude Fleming lies sick in her home at 714 East street, Tarentum, borough police and county detectives are conducting a search for her father, Richard Merle Fleming, 33, who disappeared from his home October 29. In addition to the sick child, there are three other children, who with their mother, have appealed to police to search for the missing man.

Police in conducting an investigation, learned that Fleming had obtained all the wages due him at the Allegheny Steel plant the day before he disappeared. He had been employed as a carpenter.

50 AID FIGHT FOR MUNHALL BUS LINE

Railways Co. Withdraws Objections to Extension Of Mifflin Coach Service

Fifty witnesses from Munhall and Mifflin Township appeared yesterday before the Public Service Commission in support of the application of the Duquesne Motor Coach Company for permission to extend its line to Munhall, on the basis of a 10-cent zone fare.

The application at first was opposed by the Pittsburgh Railways Company which claims that the extension asked for would be in competition with the railways company. This was denied by many of the residents of the district, called to testify on behalf of the motor coach concern. Later opposition was withdrawn.

Councilman W. W. Peck, of Munhall, who appeared for the applicants for the extension, said that since the railways company had bought out the Homestead and Mifflin street railways line and put on one-man cars, the service was not adequate. President H. W. Crider, of the Munhall council; George F. Howe, member of the State Legislature; E. M. Cox, secretary of the Munhall school board, and others all testified extension of the bus line operations would be a public convenience to many persons.

President J. M. Duncan, of the Duquesne Motor Coach Company, said he operated five buses. At the present time the length of the service is six miles and a zone fare charged. There are three zones, and three checks are sold for 25 cents.

He said it was planned to extend the service from Main street in Mifflin Township to the mill gate in Munhall. He said he had in mind a straight 10-cent fare zone from Duquesne to the point in question, a distance of eight miles, at a total cost of 30 cents for the three zones.

It finally developed that the Pittsburgh Railways Company would have no objection to the extension of the service, provided local traffic was not picked up along Eighth street. Duncan said that would be agreeable to him.

THREE KILLED IN TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS

Little Girl Run Down by Truck in Brushton; Man Dies in Path of Trolley

Two men and a 9-year-old girl were killed in traffic accidents last night.

Dorothy Youngo, rear of 7631 Frankstown avenue, was killed when struck by a truck driven by Lewis C. Carter, 47, a Negro, of 410 Sylvan avenue, police said. She was on her way to a grocery store when she stepped into the path of the truck at Frankstown and Brushton avenues.

Struck by a one-man street car at Fifth avenue and Craig street, George Kaufaush, 19, of 1229 Webster avenue, suffered a fractured skull and was pronounced dead at Montefiore Hospital, according to a morgue report. The car was operated by George Thearle, of 3419 Terrace street, morgue attaches said.

When a motorcycle which he was riding skidded and upset in Ravine street, Munhall, John Mihalo, 25, of 83 Frazier avenue, McKees Rocks, suffered a fractured skull which caused his death a few minutes later in Homestead Hospital, the coroner's office was informed.

SISTERS SAVED AT N. S. FIRE

Two sisters were led to safety by a patrolman when fire last night damaged a double three-story frame house at 2806 and 2808 Perrysville avenue.

Nellie and Norma Johnston, 15 and 5 respectively, were led to the street by Patrolman J. V. O'Connor when the flames broke out in the attic of the home. The blaze spread to the other portion of the house, occupied by Grace Marshall.

Firemen extinguished the flames after a two-hour battle. Traffic in Perrysville avenue was halted. The loss was estimated at $5,000.

JUDGE PRAISES LAW RESPECT OF WOMEN

Vice and Crime Will End When Men Are as Decent As Mates, Asserts Gray

America will never get rid of vice and crime by force of the law, but if men were as decent and law abiding as women, crime in the United States would be negligible, Judge James H. Gray so declared last night before the members of the Retail Credit Men's Association at their dinner meeting in the Roosevelt Hotel, who had invited him to discuss a number of credit topics.

The Common Pleas Court jurist declared that women are better citizens because they obey the law better than men. Only by toning up character in this country, can crime be eliminated. Making his point clear, he said that of 4,900 prisoners received in the Allegheny County Workhouse last year only 365 were women.

HIGHER STANDARDS

He made a plea for raising the standard of life in order that people in general reap the benefit. In his judgment, banishment of crime must come by voluntary obedience of the law. He asserted that Americans ought to be law-abiding, but they are not.

Judge Gray held that a husband is responsible for maintaining his wife in a reasonable manner, not alone for food, but for other comforts. He hoped the day would come, he said, when woman would not be restricted as she is today in the disposition of property, although she has more liberty in that direction than a century ago.

REFERS TO DIVORCE

He also declared that when husband and wife are divorced, either one is done for, as far as the other's belongings are concerned.

President H. E. Wilson presided at the gathering and Col. Franklin Blackstone introduced the speaker. Several hundred credit executives were present from Pittsburgh, McKeesport, Clairton, Glassport and Dravosburg.

As a young man in the Engineering Department of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, Mr. B. K. Elliott saw the opportunity for specializing in mathematical supplies. By practising the art of thrift, he was able to accumulate enough money and experience to help organize the Elliott Blue Print Company, which specialized in the sensitizing of blue print paper and the importation of drawing materials and instruments. This company was later absorbed by the B. K. Elliott Company, under Mr. B. K. Elliott as President; and a first-class optical department was added. In addition to building a successful business, Mr. Elliott has taken active part in the Chamber of Commerce, the Rotary Club and in Public Welfare work.

Mr. Elliott says that every man should learn the art of thrift—and that is what the Union Savings Bank wants to show in presenting these editorials by Pittsburgh's leading business and professional men.

The art of thrift is the art of spending and saving money. The best way to practise it is by the use of a budget. To help you organize your income, the Union Savings Bank has prepared a budget book, "More for Your Money," and will be glad to send it to you free on request.

NEED FOR CUT SHOWN BY EXPERT

Low-Cost Transportation Required if Outlying Sections Are to Prosper

That the growth of Pittsburgh will be retarded until low cost transportation is supplied to newly developed sections was charged yesterday by C. V. Shoup, chairman of the transportation committee of the Allied Boards of Trade, in an address before the Co-operative Club at the Fort Pitt Hotel.

Shoup stated that the policy of the Byllesby organization is against the extension of street car tracks into new sections of the city. Bus transportation is the only new service offered, and this is now at an exorbitant rate of fare.

In discussing the progress made by the Allied Boards of Trade in their fight against the 25-cent bus fare Shoup said:

GENERAL RELIEF

"The protest against the fare on the Bellevue line by George A. Young, president of the Twenty-seventh Ward Board of Trade, opens the whole bus fare question and other districts may get relief since the schedule of rates filed for the new line applies to the entire city.

"The transportation committee is at present engaged in having a survey of Pittsburgh's transportation situation made in preparation for the resumption of hearings before the Public Service Commission on January 6. The survey will cover not only the existing systems, but will make suggestions as to the changes which should be made.

"The buses in use here are not comparable with those of Cleveland where a 10-cent fare is in force with transfer to street cars. The distances covered here do not compare with Detroit, where mass transportation is available for 10 cents over a distance of 14 miles.

CLASS DISTINCTIONS

"The Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company is catering to class distinction in maintaining its 25-cent fare policy instead of giving a low cost means of transportation to the greatest number. The Byllesby organization has throttled bus transportation in all of the cities where it operates. Instead of from 5 to 10 per cent of passengers being carried by buses as in other cities, the localities under Byllesby domination usually have less than 2 per cent carried by this means.

"In Pittsburgh this organization has failed to co-ordinate bus and street car transportation."

Women Cast Aside Needle For Painter's Brush

By PENELOPE REDD

THE CARNEGIE International includes paintings by 13 women, gleaned from Soviet Moscow as well as decorous Boston. While the work of anonymous women of the past who painted with the needle has established a rich heritage of rare textiles in the great museums of the world, the work of women who painted with the brush is comparatively negligible.

For example, at the Carnegie International the first prize has been awarded but once to a woman when Cecilia Beaux, the American portrait painter, was so honored in 1899. Indeed, out of the 185 prizes and honors awarded at the Carnegie Internationals, only 16 have been given to women painters.

Penelope Redd.

The single honor-woman of other Carnegie Internationals to exhibit this year is Georgina Klitgaard. She appears in landscapes of limpid charm. The "Orchard" selects a delicate bouquet of blossoming trees from lavish spring. "Landscape with Fog" captures subtly, an intangible effect.

* * *

ISABELLA HOWLAND and Jo Cantine, two other of the eight American women in the exhibition, are, like Mrs. Klitgaard, from the painters' colony around Woodstock, New York. Isabella Howland's "Supper on the Porch" gives a cozy anecdote of a man and woman eating in the utmost domestic felicitiy amidst attractive surroundings. Jo Cantine appeals through a winsome portrait of a young boy in a picturesque soldier's uniform.

Boston, always favorable to the development of women artists, has two mature representatives in Marie Danforth Page and Gertrude Fiske. Mrs. Page paints tender portraits of women and children, greatly admired by feminine gallery visitors. Gertrude Fiske is given to character portraits as in the "Portrait of Mr. and Mrs. Clough," two old folks at leisure in their New England sitting-room. The Boston women are conservative in their style of painting as opposed to the women from Woodstock who are modern.

* * *

FELICIE WALDO HOWELL, although only a little beyond 30, was on the American Committee of Selection for this year's International. She was born in Honolulu, studied art in Washington, and now resides in New York. Despite this, she is the pictorial exponent of the New England mind. She has painted many Colonial houses with a precise valuation of their architectural formality. Her New York views of modern buildings are far less successful. Officially, Miss Howell is an important American woman painter. She has been accumulating prizes since she was 19 and is represented in a dozen of the largest American museums.

Victoria Ebbels Hutson, who is scheduled for her first New York exhibition this season, appears as a forthright painter in a study of orange and crimson dahlias. Beatrice Levy, a Chicago prize winner, states a modern way of painting "In a Corsican Town," through the elimination of all details in a surprisingly, unfeminine fashion.

* * *

ELENA BEBUTOVA, a Russian, one of the five European woman represented at the exhibition, is primarily a designer for stage decoration. Bebutova paints "Washerwomen," three stolid women at work in a basement, decoratively jovial even though the subject be drudgery.

The sensitive, inescapably feminine Jacqueline Marval is the only Frenchwoman. Her still life, "Flowers," shows Notre Dame anew through the juxtaposition of a few romantic posies in a glass bowl at a Parisan window, beyond which one see the famous cathedral towers. Her "Dream of the Sleeping Beauty" volatalizes a welter of chiffons, spangles, and roses.

The Polish women artists, Tamara de Lempica and Mela Muter, are another story. Lempica indulges in a modernized classicism remarkable in its color scheme of grey and tan which seems infused with gold. Hers is an art of bright gesture. She vitalizes inscrutable personages such as "Dr. B," and the girl of "Dreaming." "Kizett on the Balcony," said to be a portrait of her daughter, realizes the frankness of today's childhood. Lempica is a modern Vigee Le Brun in her ability to portray contemporary temperaments smartly.

MELA MUTER, born at Warsaw in 1878, is known internationally as a modern realist. There is the haste of life about her work—an expansiveness—not shown by any other woman painter in the exhibition. Her "Mother," no flat-tercap portrait of mother and child, studies an elemental woman as the primitive nurturing force of nature. Compare her Count Karolyi, the Hungarian patriot recently admitted to the United States, with Lempica's "Dr. B." Mela Muter evidently moves in a world less chic. Lempica probably knows moderns characterized by action, while Muter selects moderns devoted to contemplation.

Anna Boberg, also from the Northlands, is the only artist in the world who has habitually painted within the Arctic Circle. Since 1901, she has worked in the Lofoten Islands. She goes out with the fishing fleet, having invented a special easel which straps to her body for use on the tossing boats. Never literary in her paintings, she has spent considerable effort in collecting the lore about the Swedish "Flying Dutchman," a legendary bark known as "The Half Boat of Draugen." Boats on seas bordered by mountains of ice are Anna Boberg's usual subjects. Her paintings have been purchased by the great urban meseums in Paris, Rome, Venice, and New York where they hang as an achievement to encourage women painters of the future.

ABSENT OFFICER DISMISSED AT SWISSVALE

Policeman, Woman Vanish About Same Time After Automobile Is Borrowed

The vanished Swissvale policeman, Richard L. Ferguson, 33, who is being sought, along with an unnamed woman, was discharged last night by the borough council.

Ferguson vanished Saturday after borrowing the automobile of Cornelius Caldwell, of 2226 Woodstock avenue, Swissvale, a borough fireman, according to Chief of Police John W. Morris. He wanted the car to take a woman friend to her home in Mt. Oliver, and promised to return within an hour, he said.

Morris, who enlisted the aid of Pittsburgh detectives, requested Ferguson's arrest for the larceny of the automobile. The woman vanished shortly after Ferguson had borrowed the car.

Ferguson, who had been under suspension since November 4 on charges of conduct unbecoming an officer, has been separated from his wife, a school teacher, and two children for several months, the borough police chief said.

Greenfield Seeks Reroute of Trolleys

Council has received a letter from the International Institute's Bureau of Foreign-Speaking People of the Y. W. C. A., asking for better street car facilities at Scotch Bottom in Greenfield, south of Second avenue. Street cars were taken off Second avenue and transferred to Irvine street, according to the letter, and as a result about 200 adults and many school children, mostly of foreign ancestry, risk their lives crossing the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tracks in getting to the trolleys.

The letter asks Council to have the railroad company build an overhead bridge from Second avenue to Irvine street.

IRISH DIFFERENT TEAM ON SATURDAY

SOME of the football critics in the East and Middle West are predicting a dozen varieties of calamity for Notre Dame in the big intersectional battle with Southern California at Chicago next Saturday. They base their forecasts on the fact that the South Benders "showed nothing but straight football" against Drake last Saturday, that for three periods Drake held the lead, 7 to 6, and that it was not until the final quarter, when their opponents were "fatigued," that the "Irish" put over the two touchdowns that gave them their 19-to-7 victory.

Joe Savoldi

It is hard to find in that dope any good reason why Notre Dame should be counted as beaten by Southern California in advance of the game. That it will be a tough test for Rockne's men nobody will deny. Any team that beats Pop Warner's Stanford eleven must be conceded to have more than an average strength. But California turned around and beat Southern California when it was said not to have a chance, and it is well within bounds of possibility that Notre Dame may do the same thing.

KNUTE ROCKNE'S team did not show much here, either, yet local fans did not jump at the conclusion that they had nothing more in stock. If more stuff had been required to defeat Carnegie Tech, perhaps the Hoosiers would have displayed it. Possibly it was the same against Drake. An eleven canot be expected to do more than win, and Notre Dame has been doing that consistently. Most teams are praised to the skies when they barely nose out opponents, but Notre Dame is termed as "showing nothing" and as being "overrated" if it doesn't show a lot of tricks and slaughter every foe. Not at all fair.

It is Rockne's style to use no more than is necessary, and why a team should be considered weak because it shows only straight football when nothing further is required for victory is difficult to understand. And as for Notre Dame's not being able to accomplish much in the scoring line until Drake was "fatigued," that's a hot one, too.

FOOTBALL games consist of four periods, not three, and superior endurance and stronger replacements should be considered points of merit in the achievement of a victory just as well as superior playing. Another item that ought not to be overlooked is the fact that Notre Dame used second and third-string men against Drake much of the time. One serviceable regular, for instance, Fullback Joe Savoldi, did not appear in the lineup at any time.

A different team, with a lot more stuff, if necessary, may be expected to face Southern California on Saturday. In addition, Coach Rockne himself will be back on the sidelines to direct and inspire his men, and don't think for an instant that his presence doesn't count for something.

E. J. Balsarini

NOT only soccer football fans, but residents of the Pittsburgh district in general, who are justly proud of the National honors that the Heidelberg team has twice brought to this section, will be pleased to learn that the withdrawal of that great amateur eleven from competition is to be only temporary. The Heidelberg outfit will be put together again a year hence and will be back in the field in an attempt to keep up the remarkable record it has made for seven years under the managership of E. J. Balsarini.

IT IS recalled by Tom Birks, soccer expert of the Sun-Telegraph, that this champion aggregation, of which Buff Donnelli, captain of the Dukes, was the most brilliant product, was organized for the 1922-23 season, being recruited from the Heidelberg public school. It played junior soccer and won the junior cup that season. The eleven entered the senior division when the United States Soccer Football Association announced that the team winning the National amateur cup in 1924 would represent this country in the Paris Olympic games.

Heidelberg was defeated in the National semi-final by the Cleveland Magyars at Cleveland in March, 1924, but Berky Jones, outside left on the club, was individually honored by being chosen to go to Paris with the American team. Balsarini's boys came back the following season and were defeated in the final at Cleveland, 1 to 0, by the Defenders, of New Bedford. However, they won the Western Pennsylvania cup that season.

THE 1926-27 season saw Heidelberg win the National amateur championship for the first time, defeating La Flamme in the final, 3 to 0, on the Westinghouse High School field. The champions also won the West Penn and American League titles.

In the 1927-28 campaign, Heidelberg was beaten by the Magyars, 2 to 1, in the National amateur semi-final at Cleveland, but again won the West Penn cup and also the American League honors. Last season it again won the National amateur championship by crushing the Newark Germans, 9 to 0, in the final at Newark, N. J., and incidentally again captured the West Penn cup and American League laurels. Truly a great record.

Bob Fothergill

NO new developments have been reported for several days in the efforts of Manager Donie Bush to get Bob Fothergill, of the Tigers, for his 1930 White Sox, but it is understood that the former Pirate leader is still after the roly-poly Jungaleers and is in high hopes of landing him eventually. With Smead Jolley and Fothergill added, Bush will be making a good start toward giving the Chicago club the punch that it has lacked. Fothergill should be serviceable for pinch-hitting, at least, as he led all of the emergency swatters of the American League last season by making 18 pinch-hits in 50 times at bat, an average of .360. For the whole season he batted .355 in 115 games.

THE present football season in Pittsburgh has brought new evidence that alumni of a college will travel hundreds of miles to a homecoming football game, some of them 25 to 30 years after their own graduation. Take the Pitt homecoming in connection with the Panther-Ohio State game of November 2, for instance.

J. E. Higgins, '03, came back from Port Arthur, Tex., to attend the contest and meet some of his old classmates who also were here for it. Another alumnus, Hugh Arthur, traveled from Minneapolis, Ralph W. Perry from Detroit, Frank Adams from Chicago, and there were many others from Cleveland, Philadelphia, Fairmont, W. Va., Olean, N. Y., and additional points.

IT SPEAKS pretty well for the influence of a college upon its graduates that they still are sufficiently interested to make such trips so many years after leaving school, when they have presumably settled down and "grown out" of their youthful fervors.

Or perhaps it may be said that it is a good thing for a man to

LOCAL HOCKEY CLUB PRIMED FOR OPENER

By CARL W. SHATTO

A stock not listed on the exchange board, but one which commands much interest here, escaped the influence of the Wall street bears and went up by leaps and bounds today.

The stock in question is the Pittsburgh Hockey Club stock, and the sudden rise was due largely to the return to Duquesne Garden of Manager Frank Frederickson and his Pirates.

The local skaters arrived here this morning after spending about 10 days on the ice at Fort Erie, Ont. Pilot Frederickson experienced no shortage of "yes men" when he announced that the Bucs were in the well known pink of condition for their National League inaugural here Saturday night. The players agreed that their trip to the Dominion had been of great benefit.

DARRAGH, WHITE ON MEND

Harold Darragh and Tex White were the only casualties of the training grind. Darragh is suffering from a slight attack of flu which kept him out of the lineup when the Pirates defeated the Hamilton International Leaguers in an exhibition game at Hamilton Monday night, and White sustained a cut over his eye in a scrimmage at Fort Erie. White's wound is almost healed, and Darragh is well on his way to recovery. Both expect to be in top form when the Montreal Maroons come here to lift the lid Saturday.

In commenting on their training activities while across the border, Frederickson said that he had thoroughly schooled his men in the execution of new combination plays designed to get the most out of the new forward-passing-in-all-zones rule, and that team play would play a more prominent part in the Pirates' attack than ever before. Every member of the squad is said to have shown a willingness to co-operate in the perfecting of the forward-passing plays, and the local skipper expects his men to get away to a fast start.

JARVIS, BRIDEN LOOK GOOD

The exhibition game at Hamilton was an exceptionally fast fight, according to Frederickson, and in this fray the Bucs convinced him that they all were ready to travel the full route at top speed. Bud Jarvis and Archie Briden, new stars, are said to have looked just as good in actual competition as they did when they surprised their boss with their display of class in the practice sessions, and they seem destined to contribute much to the locals' success. Jarvis, pinch-hitting for Darragh in the game at Hamilton, teamed up well with Frederickson and Milks in the starting front line, and Briden is equally adept when at forward or at defense.

Lowrey, the leading scorer on the local squad last season, and Druzy and White have shown so much class as a spare front line that Frederickson hesitates to break up the combination, but he is confident that Briden and Jarvis will be able to hold their own against any and all opposition, and he plans to throw either or both into the breach whenever the vets show signs of tiring.

MacKinnon is being hailed as the most improved performer on the squad, and indications are that he and Smith will be at defense in the starting lineup.

WORK OUT HERE TODAY

Frederickson will continue his experimenting this afternoon when the Pirates resume their training activities at Duquesne Garden. Long workouts are on the program for today and tomorrow at the Craig street arena, but Friday's activities will be limited to a "tapering-off" session.

Benny Leonard, owner of the club, is to return here late today or early tomorrow. The retired undefeated lightweight champion is to be the guest of honor at a "Benny Leonard Night" celebration at the Y. M. H. A. tomorrow night, and all members of the Pirate club are to attend. Leonard is to remain for the opening night activities at the Garden.

Eight of the 10 clubs in the National Hockey League are to swing into action tomorrow. The Montreal skaters will have one fight under their belts when they come here, but the locals will not be lacking in confidence. Boston's champion Bruins, the Toronto Leafs and the Chicago Hawks failed to win exhibition games against such opposition as the Pirates encountered at Hamilton.

The advance ticket sale for the opening game is exceptionally heavy, according to Garry Schmeelk, new secretary of the club, and indications are that a capacity crowd will witness the getaway scrap Saturday.

City Handball Loop Gets Started Tonight

The first of the games in the City Club Handball League doubles tournament gets under way tonight when the Y. M. H. A. team meets the Downtown Y on the Y court. Games are to be played each Wednesday evening beginning at 7:30 and on Sunday mornings at 11 o'clock, concluding December 18.

The committee in charge includes: Arthur Scher, Y. M. H. A.; Rowe, Downtown Y. E. C. Clark and A. A. Rialas, P. A. A. and Director Harry Hainsworth, of the K. A. C.

Pirate Club's Offices Are Moved

Beginning tomorrow and continuing until further notice, the Forbes Field offices of the Pittsburgh baseball club will be located at Room 412, Flannery Building, Forbes street and Meyran avenue, Oakland. This is the same building occupied by the Oakland Savings and Trust Company.

In making the change, officials of the club stated that the new headquarters were favored on account of increased facilities and conveniences.

WESTMINSTER CAPTAIN IS REAL STAR

By JESS CARVER.

The synthetic Tri-State Conference football title will be put on the block here Friday night as Westminster and Duquesne swap figurative football punches at Forbes Field in the city's second after-dinner gridiron treat. Because only three of the six teams in the circuit play enough Conference games to give 'em championship rating (Westminster, Waynesburg, Geneva,) the awarding of the championship this year is likely to be postponed because of wet grounds or something.

Russ Boone

As matters stand now, Westminster has the inside track, a position it will keep until about 10 bells Friday night, if the Dukes take 'em over. Geneva had a look in until Waynesburg socked them Armistice Day at Beaver Falls. Now the only hope the Covenanters have is that Duquesne will beat Westminster and soften the club up enough for Geneva to take its measure later on.

HAVE FINE CENTER

One thing that the United Presbyterians will show here against the Irish will be a pip of a center, Russell Boone, captain and snapper-back of the Titans, is a very clever performer, being an accurate passer and a strong defensive man. (At least that was the last dope I had on him.) He'll give Elmer Layden's pair of pivot men, Pat Lally and Jo Jo Silverstein a right merry evening.

Speaking of the Conference, the best thing that organization can do with the Dukes stepping out into faster company the way they are, will be to dissolve partnership. The only thing that is going to save this class B league will be for Grove City and Allegheny to join. Put this down as a prediction very likely to come true.

PITT, TECH DRILL

With Duquesne and Westminster putting on the Friday night act, whetting the appetites of local fans for the classic Pitt-Tech game Saturday, the Panthers and Tartans are going about their daily task of preparing for a knock-down-and-drag-out city championship struggle.

So much hangs on the outcome of this game that a defeat for one or the other is likely to result in another flop in the market.

Day by day, as the boys sit back and take stock of the situation, the opinion is becoming pretty general that it is going to be the toughest game of the year. I'd say right now that the team that scores the most points will win.

STANAGE SIGNS 1930 PIRATE CONTRACT

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

Oscar (Spin) Stanage has signed a Pirate contract and will continue as coach of the Buccaneer pitchers in 1930, it was announced today by Sam Dreyfuss, an official of the local club.

Oscar Stanage

The loyal and reliable Oscar probably could have allied himself with either team, but Manager Jewel Ens of the Pittsburgh club was very anxious to keep him with the Pirate entourage and Bush was eager to see Jewel get a "break."

A star catcher for the Detroit Tigers for a long period, Stanage came to the locals with the advent of Bush. Donie and Spin were good friends in their long careers with the Tigers.

Stanage has many of the qualifications necessary for successful tutoring. He is especially good with young pitchers and Manager Ens intends to keep him where his talents will best be used. He will not be employed on the coaching lines, according to Jewel's present plans.

Manager Ens may reach out for another coach soon, but if he cannot get the right sort of person, he will use Ira Flagstead as the first-base coach. Flaggie is a smart performer. He is signed to a player's contract, but Ens expects to have him on the lines unless he adds another coach to the squad. Jewel, himself, will coach at third.

Three Cage Stars Join Celtic Five

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(INS)—Three new faces will be among the Original Celtics, world champion basketball contingent, Saturday evening when the American League season gets under way.

Westminster May Change Uniforms

It is highly probable that Westminster College authorities will make a change in the present Titan football uniform for the Duquesne-Westminster night game at Forbes Field, Friday, since it is deemed that the Dukes have an advantage over their opponents through wearing white jerseys and white helmets. Particularly is this so, it is said, since a white ball is used.

The exact nature of the change to be made at the New Wilmington school has not yet been announced, although word of the intended change comes from the Titian school.

BALDWIN TO BE BURIED TODAY

Dr. Mark E. Baldwin, former Pirate pitcher, will be buried this afternoon following funeral services to be held at 2:30 in the Rodenheiser Undertaking Parlors, 300 North Highland avenue.

Many friends of the long-time figure of the diamond will pay their solemn respects to the popular athlete and physician at the sad rites.

Baldwin, who died Sunday in Passavant Hospital, was one of the stars in those heroic days of baseball. Among his friends he counted some who are still active in the sport, including Cornelius McGillicuddy, manager and part owner of the Philadelphia Athletics, champions of the world.

The famous Connie would liked to have come to the services of his departed friend, but he has been ill and has been ordered to take a rest by his physician.

Among the active pallbearers will be Honus Wagner and Bill McKechnie. Interment will be in Allegheny Cemetery.

Duvall Replaces Ricker at Guard

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Nov. 13.—(AP.)—Red Duvall replaced Dutch Ricker at guard in the Penn State lineup yesterday as the Lions went through their first scrimmage of the week in preparation for the Bucknell game. Ricker was injured in the Pennsylvania game, but should be in shape for this week's game.

YALE OKUN SIGNED

DETROIT, Nov. 13.—(AP.)—Dick Dunn, manager of Olympic Arena, announced last night that he had signed Yale Okun, New York lightheavyweight, for a match here with the winner of the 10-round bout between George Courtney, Oklahoma City, and Leo Lomski, Aberdeen, Wash., who fight Friday.

COOPER TO BOX M'TIERNAN HERE AGAIN

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Buck McTiernan, of Swissvale, and Farmer Joe Cooper, of Terre Haute, Ind., are to be rematched for a second meeting in the Motor Square Garden ring at an early date. McTiernan asked for the return clash yesterday, following the dizzy decision awarded Cooper for doing two rounds of fighting out of 10 in their go in the Motor Square ring last Monday night, and Cooper agreed to return here to battle the young local star again as soon as he fills two other engagements that have been arranged for him.

Cooper did not begin to fight against McTiernan until the eighth round, by which time Buck had the bout clinched, barring the chance of a knockout or a series of knockdowns. The Farmer won the eighth and ninth rounds, and Buck came back to win the last one. The judges both agreed on Cooper as the winner, while the referee declared the match a draw.

THOMPSON-WHITE HERE

Both Young Jack Thompson, of California, Negro welterweight star, and Billy White, rangy Jewish socker, of Jersey City, who meet in the main bout at Motor Square Garden next Monday night, began their training yesterday for the clash. White is working at Flynn's gym and Thompson at Johnny Ray's gym in the East End. Thompson works between 1:30 and 2 p. m. daily, while White does his stuff between 2 and 3:30. White will shift his quarters to the Y. M. H. A. gym on Friday and Saturday. The boxing fans are invited to see both perform. It isn't often that two out-of-town boxers come here a week in advance of a match to engage in public drills to steam up their battle and let the fans judge of their ability.

Low Diamond, of Jersey City, veteran manager of boxers and promoter, was around town yesterday selling his man White. He said Billy has scored some 40 knockouts, many of them against fellows of good reputations. He was the first one to spill Harry Felix, turning the trick in four rounds, and also has put away Sid Marks, Roy McMahon, Joe Morasco and Sid Kelly, among others. Other opponents whose names appear in his record include Georgie Levine, Baby Joe Gans, Spug Myers, Sid Terris, Sid Barbarian, Louis (Kid) Kaplan, Harry Cook and Jackie Horner. He started in as a featherweight and has come up

TROJANS LEAVE FOR CHICAGO

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 13.—(AP.)—Primed to the minute for their clash Saturday with Coach Knute Rockne's undefeated Notre Dame gridsters, 38 Trojans from the University of Southern California, with the cheers of 2,000 followers ringing in their ears, boarded a special train at 6 o'clock last night, bound for Chicago.

Before they left, Coach Howard Jones' pigskin performers went through a short, but snappy scrimmage in a last-minute determination to perfect the attack expected to be turned loose on Soldier Field against Coach Rockne's Ramblers, and prime their defense to halt the great Notre Dame assault.

KENNEDY GETS HUDKINS

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 13.—(AP.)—Tom Kennedy, former Hollywood matchmaker, has announced he has purchased the contract to handle Ace Hudkins, Nebraska middleweight boxer, who recently lost a 10-round decision here to Mickey Walker in a championship bout. Kennedy declined to mention the terms.

Charles A. Stoneham was re-elected president and the following directors named: Charles A. Stoneham, John J. McGraw, Leo Bondy, Ross Robertson, Horace Stoneham, Henry Ferguson and W. G. Kendall.

PITT LIKELY TO FACE BEARS IN ROSE BOWL

WARNER THINKS LOCALS WILL GET CALL

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(AP.)—Plans for the annual Rose Bowl football game at Pasadena, January 1, 1930, are subject to revision, but indications now are that the scream of a Panther and growl of a Bear will echo through the famous stadium.

The Pittsburgh Panther seems to be enjoying perfect health and Jock Sutherland's powerful machine is in line for the nomination as the representative of the East in the annual clash of the sections.

The University of California Bear finds Washington and Stanford standing in its way to the Pacific Coast throne, but even failure to hurdle the last obstacle probably would not prevent the invitation to Pasadena. Stanford plays Army, December 28, removing the Cardinals from consideration in any plans involving New Year's day.

CALIFORNIA WILLING

University of California officials have been quoted on the Coast as not over-enthusiastic for the assignment, but willing to go through with it if the invitation should be extended and the designated Eastern opponent meet with its approval.

Pop Warner, former Pittsburgh coach, now Stanford mentor, has expressed an opinion that Pittsburgh will receive and accept the nomination. In addition to the high football prestige to be gained, the ever practical Pop suggested that the financial benefit to result from the game would be helpful in paying for the new Pitt Stadium.

If Pittsburgh should run into disaster in one of its two remaining games against Carnegie or Penn State and one of the undefeated Southern teams completes its season with a clean record, the invitation might go South, as it did last season to Georgia Tech, and two years in succession to Alabama. Tulane, with the best chance of any team in Dixie to escape defeat, might find it difficult to convince its faculty that such a journey would be a good thing for all concerned.

TULANE IN LINE

In 1925 when feelers were sent out as to the possibility of an undefeated Tulane Greenback team of that season making the trip to the Pacific Coast, the affirmative vote was not unanimous. If Tulane should be named, however, the New Orleans team would be in the best position of any Eastern outfit in meeting the problem of change of climate and working out-doors in preparation for the game.

Coach Biff Jones is giving considerable thought now to ways and means in getting the Army in shape for its clash with Stanford. The weather bureau will be very much surprised if much out-door football practice can be satisfactorily conducted on the plains of West Point during December. The Cadets are slated to leave December 18 and make several stops en route for practice.

Bagdad Stops Kuhns in Second

READING, Pa., Nov. 13.—(AP.)—Gaby Bagdad, 144½, of Persia, knocked out Joe Kuhns, 147½, of Reading, in 59 seconds of the second round in a whirlwind bout here last night. Danny Devlin, 154, Allentown, received the judges' decision over Walter St. Clair, 151½, Philadelphia, in the eight round semi-final.

Harry (Kid) Decker, 129½, Philadelphia, won over Midget Fox, 132½, Conshohocken, in eight rounds. In other bouts, Jimmy McAllister, 178, Reading, stopped Joe Hasanauer, 188, Hamburg, in the sixth round; Gus Bithas, 130, Reading, won over Sammy Spadafora, 132, Reading, and Benny Banasas, 146, Reading, received the decision over Charley Simpson, 145, Reading.

NEW DOWNTOWN GOLF CLUB FORMED

By VERN SWARTSFAGER.

We are to have something new this winter in the way of indoor golf. Ben Loeffler, professional at the Valley Heights Country Club, has announced the opening in the near future of a downtown Golf Club, at 313 Fourth avenue, which is to include 100 members.

Installed in the new club are driving nets, pitching nets, a nine-hole course, lounge room and a golf shop. It will be supervised by Ben and his brother, Archie, former professional at Hill Crest here, at the famed Willow Springs in San Antonio, Texas, and now private tutor for a wealthy golf enthusiast in Long Island.

The Loefflers will be on the job to instruct, but members will be permitted to take lessons from their own club pro if they wish it. A small golf show is to mark the official opening.

PINEHURST, Nov. 13.—(AP.)—Cut from a 36-hole to an 18-hole event, due to showers, the tenth annual Midsouth open best ball tournament yesterday ended in a triple tie for first place, three teams returning cards of 66.

GRID OFFICIALS HAVE TRYING TIME

By Howard Harpster

All-America Quarterback at Carnegie Tech, 1928, and Coach of Shady Side Academy's Undefeated Team This Year. (Written Especially for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph).

A subject dealing with football, seldom discussed in newspaper articles, is that of officiating. When one merely considers the length of time that officials work during a football game, it would seem that, comparatively, they are well paid, but they certainly earn every cent they get, for their duties are not only hard ones continually open for criticism, but they are thankless ones as well.

Howard Harpster

Did you ever see or hear of an official who hadn't lost a game for one of the evenly matched teams because he had inflicted a certain penalty on the team some time during the course of the contest?

SELDOM BLAME PLAYER

Seemingly, the coaches and fans hardly ever blame the guilty player for such a penalty, but instead almost always place the entire blame on the official who called it. And what a peculiar attitude that is to take, for are not these men being paid high salaries to detect such violations of the rules and is that not their duty?

Unquestionably, sometimes officials make mistakes—no one can be perfect—but in a great majority of cases they are right and are only fulfilling the duties of their jobs. Just because an official has to call a violation of the rules during a critical time in the game is no reason to believe that he is unfair. Why not censor the guilty offender and let him know that it was he who lost the game, rather than criticize the official?

It is my firm belief that almost all officials are absolutely honest and on the square. Occasionally there will be found a so-called "homer" who favors the home team because he knows that in that way he will be in the good graces of that team's coach, and will therefore be given more assignments for later work. But these men are few and far between and are not big officials.

In important games worked by big officials favoritism doesn't exist and the penalties are called and inflicted just as they are seen, irregardless of the score, the time and the position of the ball. The proof for this is that at the beginning of the season each coach sends in a list of officials to the officials' committee, selecting men who he believes to be competent and who he is willing to have work in his games. Only officials taken from this list are assigned to officiate in the games played by such coaches' teams, and surely no man's name will appear on any list which the coach believes dishonest.

OFTEN TOO TECHNICAL

One of the biggest criticisms of officials and the one which is more correct than many others, is that often times they are too technical, and call penalties which were never meant to be called.

For example, sometime ago I watched a game between two evenly-matched teams. During the course of the game one of the teams completed a forward pass for a gain of 40 yards, only to have the referee call the play back and inflict a five-yard setback. This particular play was a deciding one in the outcome of the game, and as there was no apparent reason for the penalty, at least as viewed from the stands, I was interested to know why it had been called.

Some time later I found out why the ball had been brought back and this is the reason: Strange as it may seem, the team which threw the pass had a man standing back of the guard, faking to get the ball from center. This player neither touched the ball nor had anything to do with the pass, as he was used only to cover the throw in case of an interception. Now, according to the rules, an offensive player must either be on the line of scrimmage or at least one yard back of the line of scrimmage, and the referee who called the play, said that the player behind the guard had not been a full 36 inches back of the ball.

Any one knows that it is almost an impossibility to stand behind an offensive line without being a full yard back, yet the referee, who was standing eight yards behind the line, ruled that in his opinion the offender was standing too close. It would be interesting to know whether that official thought the player was only 35 or 35½ inches back. Here was a case where the referee was entirely too technical in his ruling and where there was no reason to have interrupted a perfect forward-pass play.

Grid Team Out, 400 Students Strike

GRAFTON, W. Va., Nov. 12.—(INS.)—Following the dismissal of football players, approximately 400 students of the high school here yesterday went on strike.

These high school players were dismissed about a week ago on charges of being negligent in their studies.

Just before striking, the students handed the school board president an ultimatum to the effect that they will not return to school until the dismissal of the football players is investigated.

POLISH TEAM COPS HORSE SHOW CUP

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(AP.)—Making only two and one-half errors, the Polish Army team last night won the International Military Trophy at the National Horse Show. It was the third victory in four years for the Polish riders.

Western thoroughbreds lorded it on their more famed Eastern rivals as the colors of Harold Palmer of Grosse Point, Mich., and Ben R. Meyer, of Beverly Hills, California, swept through their fields.

Meyer annexed two victories to bring his total blue ribbons won to five, while two championship and one second-place ribbons were added to the large collection accumulated by the Michigan sportsman. Fuse, a brown gelding, first carried the Meyer colors to victory, winning the class for single harness ponies, not exceeding 15.2 and 3-year-olds or over. This was followed up with a triumph in the division bringing out three harness ponies not exceeding 14.2 and shown in single harness.

The winnings for Palmer were due largely to the fine showing made by Emily Brickley, a 4-year-old chestnut mare. She placed first in the classy field for combination harness and saddle horses and then followed with a second to the brilliant Southerland Rose, owned by W. H. Nicholls of New York, in the class for three-gaited saddle horses over 14.2 and ridden by a lady on side saddle. The second Palmer victory was achieved by Likely Lady in the three-gaited saddle horse division calling out mounts over 14.2.

A. M. A. Title Swim Meet Carded Dec. 6

The swimming championships of the Allegheny Mountain Association, A. A. U., are to be held under the auspices of the Keystone Athletic Club, in the K. A. C. tank, Friday evening, December 6, at 8:30. Both championship and open events for men and women are scheduled, with A. M. A. Die Medals to be awarded in the championship events and special medals in the open events. Entries close Saturday evening, November 30, and are to be sent to John T. Taylor care of Harry Hainsworth, at K. A. C.

Drastic Shakeup Slated at Lehigh

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Nov. 13.—(AP.)—Intimating that a drastic shake-up in the Lehigh team was due as a result of the disappointing showing against Princeton, Coach Tate assembled his forces yesterday afternoon and launched his drive for the Rutgers game, with the Lafayette contest also in view.

With the exception of Art Davidowitz, quarterback, who is nursing an injured hand, the players all survived the Princeton ordeal in good shape.

OLYMPICS TO BATTLE WEST VIEW SUNDAY

'CHESNEYTOWN ENCOUNTERS MAJESTICS

By TOM BIRKS

The natural inclination of the managers of the leading teams in the district to get together is furnishing the fans with many interesting battles. And the get-together spirit being manifest again on Monday, some wonderful independent gridiron games will be served them in the near future.

On Sunday the Iverson Olympics, of McKeesport, will clash with the West View aggregation, and, seeing that the teams played to a scoreless tie earlier in the season, this battle should be worth while.

McCHESNEYTOWN HERE

At Exposition Park, McChesneytown will make its second visit here this season, meeting Art Rooney's Hope-Harvey Majestics. The presence of the collegiate club from Latrobe at the Manchester Bridge grounds will more than interest the fans. At East Pittsburgh, in the Quarry Stadium, the Firemen play their annual game with the Monessen Olympics. Seeing that the team headed by Jack Mier made such a fine showing last season, Manager Tom Connolly decided to bring them back again. At Oakland, the Community nine meets the Lawrenceville Mohawks, and this flavors of sectional rivalry.

The following week will see the game all fans have been awaiting—West View and Hope-Harvey at Exposition Park. And that day also will see the McKeesport Olympics tackling the Akron Awnings.

Some interesting plays marked the struggles of last week end. Of course, the sensational run of Chappie Johnson set the fans a-talking, and that was entirely possible when it is considered that Stan Berkman must have thrown 30 passes in that game.

COLE ALL-STAR MATERIAL

While talking over that game, the fans realized that Roddy Cole will have to be considered when it comes to talking all-star teams. Cole was the only consistent ground-gainer for the Muzzio team all afternoon. The fullbacks in the district are starting to play stellar football. On Monday at New Kensington Kaletz and Sharkey held the limelight. Kaletz tore the Burns line to shreds, especially in the first quarter, although many fans commented upon the fact that Kaletz took the ball about 40 yards to the Burns two-yard line and then four thrusts were made at the Burns goal without Kaletz being given the ball once. Maybe the Burns line was waiting for Kaletz, but they certainly stopped all the other ball toters.

Sharkey played one of the finest defensive games seen in this district. The Burns veteran made at least 80 per cent of the tackles, and Sharkey seemed to be the only one who could stop Kaletz. A play is being made about the team outplaying its opponent in the matter of first downs. But scoring first downs, and then looking bad when in the shadow of a goal, is another matter. West View probably would have won its game had another kick been attempted instead of the forward pass Johnson intercepted. Of course, this is only a second guess, and Stan Berkman did not have a second guess. But the ball was on the 12-yard line in the center of the field.

Art Rooney certainly made a 10-strike when he brought Levey back into this district. Levey is one of the sweetest ball carriers seen here in years. And while we are talking about sweet ball players, maybe the fans are not raving about Chile, the East Pittsburgh end—he is a fixture with that club.

SMITHFIELD DIVIDES

Smithfield Church's first team defeated Crucible, 40 to 24, while the Smithfield Juniors lost to Fort Pitt, 30 to 27, in their basketball games played last night. The lineups:

JUST A TRIO OF SECOND CHOICES

JESS QUATSIE

Pitt is very well fixed in the matter of reserve material for its game with Tech Saturday. In fact, the reserve strength of the Panthers has been one of its big assets this year. In Quatsie, hefty tackle, Coach Sutherland will be able to make a line replacement without weakening the effectiveness of his machine.

WALTER BABIC

Walt is another crack reserve tackle, who along with Quatsie has been giving the regulars trouble all season and has shown to good advantage when sent into action. He is MacMurdo's understudy, while Quatsie relieves Tully.

JIMMY CLARK

If the going is so rough, and it figures to be just that, Tom Parkinson can be withdrawn from his fullbacking post and Jimmy Clark, the hard and quick-hitting 170-pounder, put in his place by Pitt against Tech at The Stadium Saturday. Clark is one of the fastest men on the squad. Like Quatsie and Babic, he adds strength to the reserve forces.

Moe and Joe—

the thing that is worrying the Plaid coaches. If the cripples are in shape, and there are some bonafide ones included in the Skibo entourage, I fail to see why Tech should not be close to an even choice against Pitt.

THE OLD HOOIE

The phychological aspect of this game, exactly the reverse of last year, will play a very important part. Last year Tech ruled a favorite, and Jock Sutherland had his team keyed up to such a pitch, that even with Parkinson out of the action, it gave the Skibos a great battle.

Tech will be in better shape to upset the favored Panthers this Saturday than Pitt was in '28. The offense, which has not functioned as it should so far, ought to be improved. The defense will be as tough as ever

TRIMMED DOWN

Costello and Smith, Waynesburg kickers, provided the only really brilliant spots in the Geneva-Waynesburg game Monday. Both men got off some fine boots. Capt. Smith's long one that struck the chalk mark of the sidelines on the one-yard line being a beauty. . . . and a lucky one.

Frank Wolf handled his Yellow Jackets well against the Covenanters. This fellow Owens he inserted into the lineup just before the Jackets started their winning touchdown march, looks to be a fine back.

One of the more recent thrills at Carnegie Tech has been Halfback Kerr's snappy-looking shorts. Kerr appeared in the dressing room the other day clad in a pair of trunks that would have shamed the Carnegie art exhibit.

One thing about these night football games, a guy can get by without having to get a shave. In the dark, a two-day beard looks just like so much dirt.

W. Va. Wesleyan's all-star backfield, the famous Miller-Battles-Bacthel and Rodriguez combination, will gallop against Bethany this week. That backfield, behind a good line, would rival the Four Horsemen. You ought to see it go.

An all-star, minor college backfield quartet, incidentally, could be selected from the following group of stars, and would be built on any coach's meat: . . . . Rodriguez and Battles, Wesleyan; Knapik, Geneva; Donnelli and Divinney, Duquesne; DeMoise, Waynesburg; Munson and Waleski, Grove City; Berger and Garbark, Allegheny; Roe, Bethany and Michaels, Westminster.

Wouldn't it be a pip if Notre Dame and Pitt were invited to play in the Tournament of Roses game in Pasadena?

It has been suggested that Duquesne and Grove City meet here in Pittsburgh in a post-season game for the Class B championship of the tri-state district.

Long's Sport Comment

HOCKEY is much like baseball in the sense that the approach of the playing season generally sees the holdouts coming to terms with their employers. The small number of players who had refused to sign contracts for the season opening tomorrow was reduced yesterday, when the most prominent of them, Ching Johnson, star defense man, entered the fold of the New York Rangers. Frank Nighbor and Bill Touhey, of Ottawa, and Bill Brydges, of Detroit, probably will follow his lead and leave the holdout ranks. The signing of Johnson will mean the dropping of the project to bring an Indian player into the National League. It had been intended to shift Elmer Miracle, a full-blooded Mohawk Indian, from the Springfield team to take Johnson's place in the Rangers' lineup.

STRUB BOUT CANCELED

Phil Goldstein received word last night that his match with Maxie Strub at Erie, scheduled for Friday night, has been canceled because of injuries suffered by Strub in his bout with Frankie LaFay, of Troy, N. Y., at Erie last Friday night. This is the second time a Strub-Goldstein bout in Erie has failed to materialize. The first time Phil had it set back because of the Jewish holidays.

Gene Reed, of Charleroi, has been signed to take the place of Rudy Ceder, of Tarentum, who is suffering from boils, against Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock, in the main bout at the Moose Temple Friday night. Reed, who hails originally from Los Angeles, has boxed draws with Heavy Andrews, of Erie, and Walter Majeske since coming around here. He really defeated the highly-touted Andrews in a semi-final at Motor Square Garden, but the officials disagreed and it was declared a dead heat. Jackie Rodgers, Negro bantamweight, who knocked out Carl Cavelli, of Canton, O., in three sensational rounds at the Moose Club last Friday night, boxes Pete Mazzeo, of Cleveland, a former Olympic star, in the semi-final. Mazzeo has met Howard Mayberry, Eddie Burl and other good ones.

KATKISH VS. PACELLI,

Phil Tobias, of Brooklyn, and Ernie Peters, Indian flyweight, of Chicago, who recently defeated him, have been rematched for the main bout at the Jolly Bowl, New Castle, next Monday night. Joey Katkish, of Lawrenceville, meets Romeo Pacelli, of New Castle, in the semi-final, and Paul Balint, of the North Side, boxes Bus Hardy, of Beaver Falls, in another six-rounder.

Frankie (Kid) Anslem, of Philadelphia, will take the place of Frisco Grande, of Buffalo, against Marty Gold, also of Philadelphia, in the 10-round main bout of the opening show of the season at Franklin, Pa., tonight. In the preliminaries, Henry Attel boxes Tom McCafferty, Herman Folins meets Marshall Crochette and Elmo the Mighty mingles with Warren Farrow. Tommy Dacey meets Dandy Allen in the main bout of a show at Bradford, Pa., tonight.

BOUTS AT M'KEESPORT

With the exception of the opening bout, the card has been completed for tomorrow night's show at McKeesport. Eddie Brannon, of the Hill, and Young Corsey, of Canton, O., are in the 10-round main bout and George Parks, of Homestead, and Ray Fay, of Charleroi, in the other 10-rounder of the double windup card. Sammy Paris, of the Hill, and Bus Hardy, of Beaver Falls, box the second bout.

The all-star team of Pittsburgh amateur boxers that lost to a Cleveland team in an inter-city meet at the P. A. A., last Saturday night will meet the Clevelanders in a return engagement at the Cleveland Athletic Club Friday night.

Members of the Pittsburgh Hockey Club will accompany Benny Leonard, former lightweight champion and now owner of the ice outfit, as guests of honor at the amateur boxing show at the Y. M. H. A., tomorrow night.

Jack (Kid) Berg, of England, and Eddie Elkins have been matched to box the windup at the St. Nicholas arena, New York, next Monday night. Eddie Guida and Solly Ritz will meet in the semi-final.

McNamara Sets Pace In Six-Day Race

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—(AP.)—Reggie McNamara, the 42-year-old "iron man" of the bicycle track, early today was pedaling towards his fourteenth six-day race victory, a mark he has been trying for the past two years to achieve.

McNamara and his partner, Gaetano Belloni, veteran Italian rider, were one lap ahead at the 127th hour this morning. The race ends at 11 o'clock tonight.

The 127th hour standings were:

| Team | Miles | Laps | Pts. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Belloni-McNamara | 1985 | 9 | 119 |
| Rausch-Duelberg | 1985 | 8 | 131 |
| Letourner-Brocardo | 1985 | 8 | 86 |
| Winter-Walthour | 1985 | 7 | 143 |
| Hill-Beckman | 1985 | 6 | 215 |
| Spencer-Debaets | 1985 | 6 | 202 |
| Richili-Riegler | 1985 | 6 | 173 |
| Zuchetti-Vermeersch | 1985 | 4 | 209 |
| Kockler-Stockholm | 1985 | 3 | 124 |
| Georgetti-Linari | 1985 | 2 | 223 |
| Lamb-Dempsey | 1985 | 0 | 121 |
| Croley-Horan | 1984 | 9 | 144 |
| Horder-Horder | 1984 | 7 | 242 |

Leader: McNamara.

LESSONS IN FOOTBALL

Answered By
MILTON OLANDER
Assistant Football Coach, University of Illinois.

Above all, the defensive fullback should be a hard, determined, sure-fire tackler. To effectively back up his line, he must be able to analyze a play quickly, that is, to think and act at the same time. He should study the opposing quarterback and other backs closely so as to detect their intentions, if possible.

He must also be able to defend effectively against forward passing attacks. He is usually assigned to cover a certain zone, or to follow a certain man. Quick, alert, and decisive actions are necessary here.

He should line up in front of the core of the attack. His distance back from the line will vary with the game situation. Usually from three to eight yards provides sufficient range. He should not automatically assume a position at any set distance, but be influenced by the game conditions. For example, if a smash appeared imminent his position would be closer to the line than if a forward pass appeared most likely, and vice versa.

Give the fullback definite instructions so that he will understand his responsibilities.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Paul Mazolf, Muhlenberg freshman fullback, although suffering from fracture of the third and fourth vertebrae, is expected to make a complete recovery, surgeons at the Allentown hospital said last night. Mazolf was injured in last Friday's game with Lafayette freshmen eleven.

GIANTS SIGN IRISH MEUSEL AS COACH

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(AP.)—Emil F. Meusel, one-time star left fielder with the Phillies and the Giants, has signed to serve as second coach of the Giants, Dave Bancroft, team-mate of Meusel at Philadelphia and New York and later manager of the Boston Braves for four years, recently came to terms with John McGraw to act as first coach.

LARGER PROFIT ASSURED FOR OHIO OIL

Dividends Declared in 1929 Exceed Earnings Per Share For All of Preceding Year

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—Based on its increased production of crude oil and better prices, earnings of Ohio Oil Company this year should show substantial improvement over the report for 1928. In that year, net income amounted to $5,054,955, after taxes and reserves, equivalent to $2.10 a share on 2,400,000 shares of $25 per capital stock outstanding.

Since company reports earnings only once a year, no official figures are available beyond the 1928 results, but a reflection of better operating results during the current year is found in the dividend declarations. These have amounted to $2.75 a share this year, including four regular quarterly dividends of 50 cents each, one extra of 25 cents and another extra, recently declared, of 50 cents. No extra dividends were paid in 1928, the total for the year being $2 a share.

INCOME VARIATIONS

Out of the $5,054,955 net reported for last year, dividend payments aggregated $4,786,630. For 1929, dividends will call for a total of $6,600,000 on the 2,400,000 shares, which represents an increase of 30 per cent over the net profits of 1928.

No detailed earnings statements are issued, but for the past five years net income after all deductions, with the amount a share on 2,400,000 shares, has been as follows:

| | Net income | Per share |
|---|---|---|
| 1928 | $5,054,955 | $2.10 |
| 1927 | *3,510,372 | 1.46 |
| 1926 | 13,536,904 | 5.64 |
| 1925 | 9,383,253 | 3.91 |
| 1924 | 4,548,274 | 1.89 |

*Exclusive of $2,000,000 excess tax reserve for 1926 not required and credit of $1,804,199 tax adjustment with the government.

STANDARD OIL UNIT

Company was organized in 1887 and was one of the original units in the former Standard Oil Company, dissolved in 1911. It is engaged primarily in production of crude oil. From the Illinois, Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky fields its operations have spread to the principal large producing areas of the United States, including the Rocky Mountain district, the Mid-continent, Texas, Louisiana-Arkansas and California, and also Mexico. It is estimated the company now is producing in the United States about 60,000 barrels of crude oil daily gross, excluding the first four states mentioned.

This year the major source of earnings has been in the prolific Yates Pool of Pecos County, west Texas, where its subsidiary, Mid-Kansas Oil and Gas Company, has conducted operations on a 50 per cent basis with Transcontinental Oil Company. These two companies own a block of 5,500 acres or about one-third of the 15,000 acres under development in the field.

YATES OUTPUT

For the period from November 1 to 15, official proration figures fixed the potential production of the 115 wells of the two companies at 1,434,344 barrels on 12-hour gauge, or 2,868,688 barrels daily. Their allotted production is 63,801 barrels daily, half of which belongs to Mid-Kansas, while production of the pool as a whole is limited to 130,000 barrels daily.

Total production in Yates field was 72,500 barrels daily during the latter half of 1928, and this limitation continued in force up to June 1 this year, when allowable production was increased to 130,000 barrels a day.

PRICES STEADY

Prices of West Texas crude were increased late last May and no change has been made since, the average grade of Yates oil being quoted at 94 cents a barrel. This oil brought only 60 cents a barrel at the beginning of 1928, the price being raised to 65 cents on July 26, 1928, which price was continued up until May last.

Ohio Oil Company thus has benefited both from the increased price and the larger production of Yates crude, which it delivers to the line of Illinois Pipe Line Company running 132 miles from the field to Del Rio and thence to a connection with the main West Texas line of Humble Pipe Line Company at Lytle, southwest of San Antonio. Last year Mid-Kansas erected 25 80,000-barrel tanks at Del Rio, which are now practically full of Yates crude.

Donner Buys Witherow Steel Corporation

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

CONTROL of the Witherow Steel Corporation will pass to the hands of the Eaton interests of Cleveland under a plan for the sale of the company to the Donner Steel Company announced last night by W. P. Witherow, president of the local organization.

Witherow will retain its identity but will be operated as a subsidiary of the Donner Steel Company. The merger will bring to a close patent litigation which was rumored to involve damages in the neighborhood of $1,000,000.

Cyrus S. Eaton and his associates obtained control of Donner last September. They have been active in the negotiations under way to form a consolidation of a large number of independent steel companies so that Witherow may eventually find its way into the new organization.

Advantage To Witherow

UNDER the exchange terms Witherow stockholders will find their position improved. The holders of each share of Witherow 5 per cent first preferred will get a share of Donner new 6 per cent first preferred which will increase their dividend return. Each share of new preferred will also carry warrants to purchase Donner common at $55 a share by December 1, 1931, at $60 a share by December 1, 1933 or at $65 a share by December 1, 1934.

Holders of Witherow 7 per cent second preferred will take a slight loss in dividend return in exchanging each share for one and one-tenth shares of the new preferred but they will gain the speculative feature of the warrants and will have a prior claim on earnings rather than a secondary one.

Return For Common

WITHEROW common is not on a dividend basis but the exchange plan will give the holders some immediate return on their investment. Each share of Witherow common is to be exchanged for forty-two hundredths of a share of the new 6 per cent preferred stock of Donner and seventy-four hundredths of a share of common stock. This is equivalent to putting Witherow common on an annual dividend basis of $2.52 a share. Donner common does not pay dividends.

The reason for making the transaction so favorable to Witherow stockholders is the fact that the local company owns the patents on the die rolling process for making automobile axles and other parts formerly made exclusively by drop forging. Witherow secured a very favorable decision in the Federal courts against Donner and the present consolidation eliminates this difficulty over patents.

Financial Structure

THE consolidated companies will have a funded debt of about $7,265,000 of which $725,000 consists of Witherow's obligations. The exchange will necessitate the issuance of $5,022,000 of new first preferred stock. Donner now has 25,484 shares of old $6 convertible preferred stock outstanding. Arrangements have been made for the exchange of 15,000 shares of this into common on a basis of two and one-half shares of Donner common for each share of the preferred. Additinal exchanges are expected shortly.

Donner has 466,739 shares of common stock outstanding. The exchange of Witherow common and the 15,000 shares of $6 preferred will increase this issue to about 578,234 shares. The authorized amount of common is to be increased to 750,000 shares to take care of further conversions and the purchase of stock by warrant holders.

Estimated Earnings

W. P. WITHEROW, who will become chairman of the board of Donner and will continue to act as either chairman or president of Witherow, estimates that the combined companies in the first half of 1929 earned dividend requirements for the period on the new first preferred to be outstanding after the exchange over nine times.

On this basis profits amounted to about $1,350,594. After deducting dividend requirements on the new first preferred and the old $6 preferred, which probably will be outstanding after the consolidation, this would be equivalent to about $1.70 a share on the common stock of Donner.

The deposit of Witherow stock must be made by December 2 with the Colonial Trust Company of Pittsburgh.

CASH REGISTER SALES GAIN

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—Sales of the National Cash Register Company in 1929, based on results to date and orders received, will approach a record volume of $60,000,000, a gain of more than 22 per cent over the former record of $48,978,286 made in 1928.

Net profit in October substantially exceeded $1,000,000 and orders booked for nearby delivery practically insure profit for the current month of more than $1,000,000.

Even though December is at present a doubtful month, estimates indicate profit for the fourth quarter will run above $3,000,000, bringing the full year to about $9,600,000, or about $6 a share on 1,590,000 shares of Class A and B stocks combined, against $5.21 a share in 1928 on 1,500,000 combined shares.

Lion Oil Earnings Greatly Improved

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—The Lion Oil Refining Company, of El Dorado, Ark., reports net earnings for the 10 months ended October 31, after all charges including depreciation and depletion, but before federal taxes, were $1,159,291 compared with $186,266 for the same period last year. This is an increase of $973,024 or 522.3 per cent, according to Col. T. H. Barton, president of the company.

National Family October Sales Up

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—National Family Stores October sales were $873,810, against $402,300 for October, 1928, an increase of 117.2 per cent, and for nine months totaled $4,554,997, against $1,252,766 a year ago, a gain of 263.5 per cent.

CORD MERGER EFFECTIVE

DETROIT, Nov. 13.—Merger of the Stinson Aircraft Corporation with the Cord Corporation has become effective as of November 9, it was announced here. Having led other American airplane manufacturers in the construction of cabin planes during the current year, the consolidation with Cord interests will materially strengthen the position of the Stinson company, as a source of aviation engines and other supplies on favorable terms has been provided for, the new officials pointed out.

U. S. Grain Exports Take Sharp Slump

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Grain exports from the United States during the week ended November 9 totaled 1,489,000 bushels as compared with 2,389,000 during the preceding week and 4,061,000 in the corresponding week of last year.

Wheat exports in the week ended November 9 aggregated 1,320,000 bushels against 1,554,00 in the preceding week; barley 40,000 against 332,000; corn 98,000 against 163,000; oats 31,000 against 339,000; rye none against 1,000.

Canadian wheat, cleared in transit from United States ports totaled for the week 1,138,000 against 836,000 against 836,00 for the preceding week.

United States exports of wheat flour, amounted to 106,000 barrels against 194,000 during the preceding week and Canadian flour exported from United States ports totaled 32,000 against 20,000.

Lago Oil Output Down for Week

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—In week ended November 8, Lago Oil Transport Corporation produced 640,517 barrels of crude oil in Venezuela or 91,502 daily versus 644,167 in preceding week or 92,024 daily and 894,209 in the 1928 week or 127,744 daily.

Shipments totaled 670,975 barrels or 95,854 daily versus 577,380 in previous week or 82,483 daily and 585,442 barrels in 1928 week or 83,635 daily.

ELECTRIC AUTO LITE PROFIT HIGHER

Company May Report Net Of $11 a Share for This Year, New Record Figure

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—Profiting from record levels of automobile production during the current year, operations of Electric Auto-Lite Company in the first nine months established a new high mark for earnings in any like period, with profits of $9,614,511 before taxes exceeding by more than 8 per cent income of $8,843,849 before taxes for the full year 1928.

Allowing for considerable recession of business in the final quarter, net earnings for the full year, after taxes and preferred dividend requirements, should approximate $11 a share on the 930,363 common shares to be outstanding, exclusive of earnings of J. W. Brown Manufacturing Company, recently acquired, and of $4,000,000 received early in the year from sale of Bendix stock. This would compare with 1928 earnings of $8.54 a share on the 890,000 common shares then outstanding.

EXPANSION RAPID

Expansion of company has been rapid during the past two years. Sales volume of $15,762,093 reported in 1927 was increased by 200 per cent in 1928 to the record figure of $47,355,280. This gain was substantially aided by purchase of the U. S. L. Battery Corporation in June, 1928.

For first six months of 1929, volume of sales totaled $32,337,224. Official estimates have placed volume for second half at $28,000,000, which would carry the year's total above $60,000,000, or an increase of about 26 per cent over 1928. Although substantial curtailment in motor production in the current quarter may force a downward revision of this estimate, official reports of a new contract with a leading automobile manufacturer for several thousand starting and lighting units indicate that actual volume will not fall far short of this record figure.

PLANS NEW FACTORY

In order to accommodate expanding volume of business, company is now constructing a $1,000,000 addition to its Toledo plant and is planning a new plant at Sarnia, Ont.

| | Sales volume | Net profits |
|---|---|---|
| 1929 | *$60,000,000 | *$10,500,000 |
| 1928 | 47,355,280 | 7,778,818 |
| 1927 | 15,762,093 | 2,363,476 |
| 1926 | 11,726,310 | 1,777,694 |
| 1925 | 10,653,107 | 2,204,434 |

BATTERY CAPACITY

Company's capacity for battery production was increased substantially in February this year by acquisition of the electric storage battery business of Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company. Early estimates placed 1929 battery production at approximately 8,000,000 units or slightly less than half of entire production in the United States.

Company more recently has acquired J. W. Brown Manufacturing Co., a leading producer of automobile head lamps, including among its customers Hudson, Nash, Ford, Chrysler, Checker Cab and Mack Trucks, many of which also are served by Electric Auto Lite.

RETAIL OUTLETS

The new subsidiary previously has done practically all business directly with manufacturers and opportunity for development of a consumers' market for its products is afforded by the network of approximately 31,000 sales and service stations maintained by Electric Auto Lite in the United States and other countries.

During first six months Brown Manufacturing Company reported net profits of $682,114. In 1928 net income was $577,910. Company was acquired through exchange of 40,363 shares of Electric Auto Lite common stock.

American Founders To Split Up Stock

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—Stockholders of American Founders Corporation, an investment trust, approved a three-for-one splitup in the common stock and also authorized an increase in the common share total from 3,600,000 to 30,000,000 shares and in the cumulative first preferred from 600,000 to 3,000,000. Louis H. Seagrave, president of the corporation, said that net income for the fiscal year ending November 30 would be about $12,000,000, equal to $5.60 a common share.

Baking Industry Not Hit by Crash

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 13.—S. S. Langendorf, president of Langendorf United Bakeries, Inc., made the following statement today:

"The recent crash in stock prices will not have any affect whatsoever on the bread industry, experience has proven that bread consumption usually increases during adverse conditions for the reason that bread is a nourishing and economical food. While businesses representing luxuries might be affected as a result of the prevailing situation all indications point that the baking industry will not suffer or be affected to any degree. If anything, bread consumption will be increased."

Stock Exchange Topics

N. Y. Federal Reserve In Position to Aid Market.

AN encouraging factor in the strength of the Federal Reserve system, particularly as it might affect the stock market. The New York bank has been reflecting excellent progress in the recent statement in view of the difficult situation which arose to be handled. Bankers maintain that should there be further withdrawals of outside money from the market for call funds it will be possible for the New York banks to control the situation without any particular strain.

In most instances where buying on a scale is being advised in leading stocks, it is the tendency to advocate the purchase for cash only. Many lists of stocks have been compiled by commission houses giving their preferences at prevailing levels, but in a vast majority of cases it is added that the stocks should be bought outright and taken out of the Street. Speculative purchases are not being recommended.

STATISTICS on business will be the center of interest in the coming weeks, perhaps until the end of the year, because market students believe so much depends on the activity and outlook for industry generally. They assume that business conditions must be affected by the sharp break in the stock market, but thus far it has been impossible to get authorities to predict the probable extent of a decline in demand and consumption.

Whereas a few months ago Wall Street was confident that many of the leading industrial concerns would show improved earnings in 1930 over the current year, there is now a growing feeling that revenues will not be as large as had been anticipated heretofore. The point is made, however, that stock prices have discounted a let-up in sales and earnings for many concerns and comparisons of 1930 results with those for the current year might be misleading under the circumstances which have been brought about by the situation in the stock market. Current year has been an exceptional one in many ways. Basic industries have been unusually active and it was the view of leading authorities that the prosperity which existed could not be expected to be maintained for a long period.

TRADE reports have it that current operations of American Radiator are larger than at any time since last February. Whether this represents an increased demand for the company's products or an accumulation of material in anticipation of improved construction next year is not known. However, it is felt by many economists that the easier credit conditions will result in building activities for various projects which had been delayed heretofore by the inability to place mortgages as desired. Naturally, the release of some of this construction work should bring an increased demand for American Radiator products.

Considerable improvement has come in the oil industry and stability in prices for crude is expected in leading circles. Better gasoline quotations also may come. The change which has developed recently has been lost sight of because of the condition in the stock market, according to those who were among the greatest optimists on the oil shares a few months ago. This optimism at that time was based on expectation of the improvement which is now coming.

Midland Steel Co. Gets Huge Order

CLEVELAND, Nov. 13.—Midland Steel Products Company, has closed a contract with an important automobile producer for a large new order of automobile frames, it was announced by E. J. Kulas, president of the company. The order involves approximately $1,750,000 spread over the next year. Work on tools and dies for the new business has been started preparatory to production. In addition, the company is rearranging certain production lines at the Cleveland plant. Important improvements have just been completed at the Detroit plant, partly to provide for increased brake business on the books for 1930.

Industrial Activity In October Greater

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—Electrical World reports that October industrial activity in the United States, as indicated in the consumption of electrical energy by more than 3,600 manufacturers, was 3.9 per cent above October, 1928, but 0.8 per cent lower than in September. Manufacturers of chemical products, paper and pulp, rubber products and textiles increased their operations last month, but seven industrials—food products, rolling mills and steel plants, ferrous and nonferrous metal plants, leather products, automobiles and stone, clay and glass makers—reported a decrease in activity over the September level.

A. T. & T. September Earnings Increase

| | 1929. | 1928. |
|---|---|---|
| Sept. gross | $ 9,389,581 | $8,235,614 |
| Net oper. income | 3,303,085 | 2,956,003 |
| Nine mos. gross | 82,443,981 | 72,984,141 |
| Net oper. income | 29,667,136 | 27,608,113 |

The report to the Interstate Commerce Commission states that the report comprises only revenues, expenses, uncollectibles and taxes resulting from operating activities. It does not include non-operating revenues that are divided and other interest revenues which constitute the major portion of the company's earnings.

NORTHERN RAIL UNION HELD UNLIKELY

Observers in Northwest Think Porter Plan Will Prevent Its Consummation

ST. PAUL, Nov. 13.—Belief that there will be no merger of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern Railways is growing among men in close touch with the situation here and in Washington.

Recent reports regarding the Porter plan of railway consolidation, combined with other information from the national capital, have caused a marked change in the feeling of rail officials and others as to the likelihood of the proposed union being consummated.

Until a comparatively short time ago, it was generally thought by close observers that some acceptable modification of the original merger plan would be offered to the Northerns by the Commerce Commission. Now it is believed in rail circles here that Commissioner Porter has recommended to the commission that the Northerns be kept separate and that, in addition, their control of the Burlington be taken from them.

BURLINGTON'S VALUE

It can be taken for granted the Northerns would not agree to give up the immensely valuable Burlington system without themselves being permitted to merge. The Commerce Commission has no authority to force such action. It is doubtful if the Northern Pacific and Great Northern would relinquish the Burlington even to win the privilege of a merger for themselves. Throughout the hearings on their consolidation application, the Northerns emphasized the immense value of the Burlington to them.

To cut it off would be to shut them out of Chicago except through possible trackage rights on uncontrolled properties.

ACQUIRED IN 1900

In 1900 James J. Hill and the house of Morgan deemed it so essential to the welfare of the Northerns to control their own trackage into Chicago that they purchased the Burlington. Since then the value of the connection has increased, rather than decreased.

It has been suggested that the Burlington's line between Chicago and the Twin Cities be taken away and given to the Northerns. For the commission to attempt such splitting up of existing systems would mean entrance into an exceedingly complicated field, and officials here do not, in general, look on the suggestion with optimism.

The Burlington has paid 10 per cent dividend to the Northerns since 1922 and in addition enhances the earning power of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern by exceptionally favorable traffic interchanges.

BOATNER'S VIEWS

V. V. Boatner, president of the Chicago Great Western Railway, when asked recently about prospects of the Great Western going into some super-system, said he did not believe consolidation of the railways was demanded by the public. He asserted the primary cause for the agitation to merge the rail lines had disappeared with the achievement of greater prosperity by the lines, too weak just after the World War to give efficient public service.

Also regarded as significant by some is the aggressive competitive attitude of the Hill lines in east-central Montana, where both seek the privilege of building a cross-state line into Lewistown from the east. If there were great expectation of merger being ratified, some assert, it would have been a logical procedure for the Northerns to let this project rest until after the merger decision.

Cement Production Lower for Month

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—The Portland Cement industry in October produced 16,731,000 barrels, shipped 18,695,000 barrels from mills and had in stock at the end of the month 15,361,000 barrels, according to the Department of Commerce.

Production showed a decrease of 4.6 per cent and shipments a decrease of 5.8 per cent, compared with October, 1928, while stocks were 5.4 per cent higher than a year ago.

National Banks' Resources Grow

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Comptroller of Currency John W. Pole announced that the aggregate resources of the 7,473 reporting national banks in the United States, Alaska and Hawaii on October 4, the date of the recent call for statements of condition, amounted to $27,524,310,000, exceeding by $484,082,000 the amount reported by 7,536 banks as of June 29, the date of the previous call, but were $1,001,170,000 less than the resources of 7,676 banks on October 3, 1928, the date of the corresponding call a year ago.

HARDWARE LINE ACTIVE

The hardware trade throughout the country continues to retain a healthy status, according to reports received from leading market centers, Hardware Age says in its weekly market summary. Increased activity in holiday merchandise is the outstanding feature of the current trade, while a normal demand prevails for staple goods.

The recent wholesale liquidation in the stock market has failed so far to retard buying to any appreciable extent. Aggregate sales have been sustained at the same levels established prior to the stock crash. The fact that necessities constitute the major portion of hardware stocks is considered a favorable factor, which will offset any tendency toward curtailed purchases on the part of the consumer.

Mild weather conditions have had a retarding effect on the movement of winter lines, but lower temperatures are expected to stimulate the demand materially.

BOOTLEG CREDIT EXPLAINED

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 13.—That the recent collapse of stock prices might well be termed a "bootleg bankers'" panic, was the opinion advanced by Paul Clay, economist and vice president of the United States Shares Corporation, New York, in an address before bankers and business men here today.

"No economist or financier could have foretold the full extent of this collapse," Mr. Clay said. "The market declined 41 per cent in 40 days, or about as much as it usually has in one or two years in former panics, and the loss approximated 45 billion dollars, or an eighth of the wealth of the country. It happened as a direct outgrowth of the one remaining defect in our banking system — that non-bankers are still permitted to do a huge banking business with Wall Street."

Giving further explanation and stressing the herculean task performed by the New York banks, Mr. Clay said:

"At the time of the boom approximately 70 per cent of all loans to stock brokers were the funds of corporations and 'others,' plus those of outside banks. The New York banks were lending the other 30 per cent. During the crucial week these bootleg bankers withdrew from the New York market loans to the total amount of $1,380,000,000. The out-of-town banks with equally unwarranted fear withdrew $707,000,000. Here was a total of panicky calling of loans amounting to $2,000,000,000 in a single week.

"The New York banks made strenuous efforts to meet this tremendous crisis. They attempted to dissuade the withdrawal of funds and they tried by every possible means to lend enough to prevent a money panic on the exchange. They were able in the panic week to advance new credits to the stock market totaling $992,000,000 and their advances to stock exchange houses and individuals during the two crucial weeks totaled $1,233,000,000."

As to the future Mr. Clay was distinctly optimistic. He pointed out that disasters have always been speedily outgrown in the United States and he expects a temporary year-end rise due to the huge January disbursements and large corporation earnings; then a trade readjustment during the early months of the coming year and following thereafter a bull movement running several years.

Investment trusts, the real management type of trusts, he declared, has served the public well. He pointed out that they took profits around the top, re-purchased at panic prices and as a result these trust shares fell less than one-half as much as a widely diversified list of good stocks.

St. Paul October Earnings Decrease

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—According to preliminary estimates of Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific Railroad Company for the month of October, 1929, gross revenues will be about $16,351,000, a decrease of $1,404,000, compared with October, 1928. It is expected that net railway operating income will be about $3,381,000, a decrease compared with the previous year of approximately $1,400,000. For the 10 months the net railway operating income will be about $22,900,000, or about $1,700,000 less than the corresponding period of 1928.

Net income, before interest charges, will be about $25,200,000 or a decrease of approximately $400,000 under the same period of last year.

100 Billions of Life Insurance Will Be Taken During the Next Decade

THE total life insurance in force in America totals 100 Billions. It is estimated that another 100 Billions will be taken during the next decade. Personal life underwriting service of the highest character will be required in rolling up this great bulwark of protection.

STOCK MARKET PRICES OPEN IRREGULAR

Blocks of 5,000 to 30,000 Change Hands, With Gains And Losses About Even

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(AP.)—Stock prices opened irregular today, with gains and losses about evenly divided in initial transactions.

United States Steel common opened ½ points higher at 156 and Consolidated Gas recorded a similar gain. Radio and Commercial Solvents each opened a point higher. American Telephone dropped 2¾ and Grigsby Grunow and Missouri-Kansas-Texas each fell back about 2 points. Early trading was not as heavy as yesterday, although several blocks of 5,000 to nearly 30,000 shares changed hands.

Selling in the first half hour was in huge volume, as thinly margined stock was spilled overboard as result of yesterday's precipitous drop, but the selling was readily absorbed, and strong buying came into the leading shares. U. S. Steel soon ran up 6¼ points to 159¾, American and Foreign Power gained 4½ points, General Electric 1¼, Montgomery Ward 1½ and Kennecott 1.

The day's news was largely favorable. Freight car loadings declined sharply during the latest week, and further curtailment in steel production was reported, but these developments are largely seasonal at this period of the year.

Car loadings, in particular, normally decline sharply after the middle of November. Directors of Remington Rand declared a special dividend of 50 cents on the common stock, the first payment since 1927. Bankers acceptance rates for the shorter maturities were cut ⅛ per cent to 4⅝ bid, 4½ per cent asked.

Most of the early losses in leading stocks were about 1 to 3 points. The largest block to appear on the tape was 50,000 shares of Packard at 14⅞, off ⅛. Before its upturn, General Electric sold down 2½ points, and such shares as United Corporation, Standard of New Jersey, Commercial Solvents, Atlantic Refining and International Nickel lost a point or more.

U. S. Steel, after selling up 6¼ to 159¾, dropped to 151, off 2½, and a new low for the year. Such shares as American Can, General Electric, International Telephone and Anaconda dropped 4 to 9 points to new lows. The selling was attributed to further necessitous liquidation by large holders who have been crippled in the decline, and was unaccountable on the basis of anything in the day's business news.

Call money renewed unchanged at 6 per cent.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—All grain scored quick early advances today, helped by unlooked for upturns in Liverpool wheat quotations and by a better tone in the stock market. Indications that the Federal Farm Board might take new measures to strengthen the grain markets also tended to bring about price rallies. Opening ⅜ to 2⅝ cents higher, Chicago wheat afterward showed further gains, but later reacted sharply. Corn and oats likewise went higher with corn starting ¼ to 1¼ cent up and subsequently rising still more, but then receding somewhat. Provisions declined.

Brokers Puzzled Over Continued Down Market

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—Wall Street brokers were frankly puzzled today over the continued downward trend of the stock market, particularly so because the so-called "blue chip" issues have declined with the others. The heavy selling yesterday was in the high-class securities. It centered on United States Steel, and as that went down the whole list sagged with it.

Jesse L. Livermore, reputed to be one of the "bear" leaders in "the street," was quoted today as saying that the declines in the high-grade issues have gone too far. He is said to have turned to the buying side.

"People throughout the country have become panic-stricken and have thrown their securities over without regard to values," said Livermore. "To my mind this situation should go no further."

He expressed the opinion that leading stocks, with good dividend records and a certain future, "are on the bargain counter right now."

The decline in stocks in the last 19 days shows leading issues have dropped off from 4 to 86½ points. The latter is Johns Manville. Westinghouse Electric slumped 80 points. Others to suffer materially include United States Steel, American Telephone and Telegraph, American Can, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Columbia Gas, International Telephone and Telegraph.

Here's Horse Laugh On Disabled Plane

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(AP.)—An airplane has been given a horse laugh. Richard F. Hoyt, chairman of the Curtiss-Wright Corporation, had to come from Warrenton, Pa., by automobile, abandoning a disabled plane. He left the plane in a pasture for the night.

In the morning he found so much fabric eaten from the tail that the plane could not be used.

Mrs. Jos. H. Choate Dies in New York

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(AP.)—Mrs. Caroline Sterling Choate, 92, widow of Joseph H. Choate, former ambassador to England and noted lawyer, died of heart disease yesterday at her residence here. Mrs. Choate had been in poor health since last spring. Mr. Choate died in 1917.

Surviving are two sons, Joseph H. Choate, of New York, and George Choate, of Wellesley, Mass., and a daughter, Miss Mabel Choate, of New York. Burial will be at Stockbridge, Mass.

MASS PROTEST IN ARGENTINA

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Nov. 13.—(AP.)—Police permission has been granted for a mass meeting of political opponents of President Yrigoyen on Thursday to protest against the fighting at Mendoza Sunday, when Dr. Carlos Washington Lencinas was assassinated.

A large section of the Argentine press continues to attack President Yrigoyen violently, while government newspapers disclaim official responsibility for Dr. Lencinas's death and deny reports that President Yrigoyen had advised him to leave the country.

Slide Halts Travel Near New Eagle

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 13.—A slide which started two days ago has halted traffic on the Pittsburgh-Monongahela road, near New Eagle. A detour has been established.

The Van Construction Company, grading for the extension of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railroad, dumped surplus earth into a ravine. Springs in the ravine and subsequent rains caused the slip to the highway. Several steam shovels are endeavoring to check the slide.

Accorsi's Trial Postponed Month

Trial of Salvatore Accorsi for the murder of State Trooper John Downey during an alleged Communist riot at Acmetonia in 1929, was postponed today by Judge Harry H. Rowand until December 9, so that defense may be given more time to secure their witnesses. The case was listed for trial November 18.

STEEL TRADE HESITANT

Both new business and production have undergone a further decline as the result of hesitancy among buyers, the Iron Age will say in its weekly summary of the iron and steel industry.

"In the main," the magazine continues, "apprehension regarding the consequences of the stock market collapse, rather than actual evidence of adverse effects, explains the attitude of the trade. But this spirit is not universal. Railroad buying is conspicuously good and the requirements of farm equipment manufacturers continue to expand.

"Steel ingot production has declined to 60 per cent in the valleys and to 75 per cent here and at Chicago. Eastern mills are operating at 65 to 80 per cent, the latter rate being that of the leading independent.

ENVOY TO CHINA AWAITS O. K.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—(AP.)—Formal announcement of the appointment of Nelson T. Johnson, assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs as minister to China is expected within a few days.

Having proposed his name to the Nationalist government, President Hoover is awaiting word from China of his acceptability there before announcing the appointment.

After it had become known here that the name of a prospective minister had been submitted, it was announced in Shanghai that Johnson was the man chosen and it was said to be certain that he would be acceptable to the Chinese.

He will succeed John Van A. MacMurray.

FIREMAN DEAD IN TRAIN CRASH

BUTTE, Mont., Nov. 13.—(AP.)—Great Northern passenger train No. 237, en route to Butte from Helena and Great Falls, crashed into a helper locomotive 20 miles north of Butte last night.

Cecil Hostie, fireman, was killed, and several passengers were knocked unconscious.

Many windows in the passenger train were shattered by the impact. All coaches were reported to have remained on the rails.

Charles Powell, of Butte, engineer of the light locomotive, suffered possibly fatal injuries. Charles Sieban, engineer, and his fireman, set the brakes on the passenger train and leaped to safety.

One hundred and fifty automobiles were sent to the scene from Butte to bring passengers to this city for medical treatment and lodging.

New York Central To Increase Stock

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—Stockholders of New York Central Railroad will be asked to increase the authorized stock from $500,000,000 to $700,000,000 at annual meeting January 22, and to authorize directors to issue such additional stock from time to time. A letter will be sent to stockholders explaining purposes for which additional stock is needed including provisions for additions and betterments and bond maturities of the future.

Columbia Gas Corp. Extends Payments

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—Columbia Gas and Electric Corporation will not require payment of the second installment when due November 15, and subscription for additional shares of its common stock. Stockholders of outstanding subscription receipts will be given the opton of paying the December installment when due on deferring it in their discretion not later than February 15, and including with such second installment payment when made 6 per cent interest thereon from November 15 to date of payment.

Haunted House Destroyed By Flames

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Nov. 13.—Fire destroyed Navarre's haunted house, 18 miles north of here, where misfortune has overtaken all tenants following the slaying of Christian Stahl, 50, bachelor farmer, who was beaten to death May 26, 1901, by robbers. The bandits, who found no money, were never apprehended. Another family moved into the house. Soon the woman dropped dead in a cornfield and the husband died suddenly. Both were natural deaths. Later a boy in the house was killed accidentally by a revolver in the hands of his sister. Afterwards two children of another family were injured by a train hitting their automobile.

Farm Board Loan Unaffected by Market

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—The Federal Farm Board issued a statement reassuring cotton farmers that the new low of 16.17 cents a pound will not affect loan rates to cotton co-operatives. The statement came from Carl Williams, cotton expert of the board, shortly after he learned that the price of December cotton futures at New York dropped to the low of 16.17.

"The Federal Farm Board is not disturbed over the fall in the price of futures contracts for cotton," Mr. Williams said, "although the low reached today is nearly one-half cent a pound below the amount which deducting the costs of delivery to New York, the board is lending to cotton co-operatives of the South.

"It knows that the cause of the drop is the demoralized condition of the stock exchange and it has full faith in the real supply and demand value of cotton."

Mr. Williams added that the statement in reference to loans on cotton would apply "with equal force" to wheat. He said that the board is lending to wheat co-operatives amounts approximately equal to five cents per bushel more than the quoted sales price of December futures at the low of the market.

MAJOR KILLED IN DISPUTE

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Nov. 13.—(AP.)—A dispute over a fair price for extricating an automobile from a mudhole cost the life of Maj. Charles S. McReynolds, United States Marine Corps.

An investigation showed that he had gone for an automobile ride with Nicaraguan friends last Sunday. The car became stuck as they were about to enter the town of Diriamba. The local judge was called upon to settle the argument about payment to bystanders who helped to extricate the automobile. The heated discussion grew into a free-for-all fight during which the major was stabbed by an unidentified assailant. He died of his wound and the body was brought here.

BOY LOSES LIFE IN SNOWSTORM

DENVER, Nov. 13.—(AP.)—A winter storm which centered over this region for the last few days is held accountable for the death of one boy.

Belated reports reaching La Jara, in the southern part of the state, told of the death of Fred Ealazar, 16, a victim of the storm that descended on that section last Saturday. His companion was in a serious condition from exposure. His hands and feet were frozen. The boys had gone to gather wood in the foot hills of the Sangre de Cristo Mountains.

Snow blanketed most of Colorado and temperatures, remained low.

Russ Report Chinese Attacks on Border

MOSCOW, Nov. 13.—(AP.)—The Tass News Agency last night published a dispatch from Khabarovsk, Siberia, saying Chinese had repeatedly fired on Soviet border posts and inhabitants in the districts of Pogranichnaya, Poltavakaya and Olochinskaya. Several civilians were killed and some wounded. The fire was returned and the attacks stopped.

FURTHER DROPS IN LOCAL PRICES

Thin Demand Insufficient To Take Up Stock Forced Out by Steady Recession

The market was nervous and irregular in the early dealings on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today, with the leading trading issues selling off from fractions to 2 points at the start of business.

Announcement of the terms of the Witherow-Donner Steel consolidation terms had no influence on the Witherow shares, which were practically unchanged in the early market.

Lone Star Gas suffered a further recession to around $30 a share as additional selling of moderate proportions made its appearance. Western Public Service was also lower, while Arkansas Gas sold at 10, a fractional overnight loss.

Industrial issues were generally heavy with some of the best grade issues showing losses of two to three points. Heaviness in these highly rated stocks was attributed to further liquidation in the process of strengthening margin accounts and it was thought some of the stock was coming out of strong boxes, dislodged by the continuous shrinkage of values in all classes of securities and the steady thinning of marginal equities.

Bond Club to Hold Special Luncheon

The Bond Club of Pittsburgh will hold a special luncheon at noon tomorrow in the ball room of the William Penn Hotel. This luncheon will be held in the interest of the Pittsburgh Welfare Fund drive and will take the place of the regular weekly luncheon. Leo G. Griffith, president of the Bond Club, is chairman of the Committee of Arrangements of the Welfare Drive. He will be the speaker at the luncheon tomorrow.

May Reorganize French Market

PARIS, Nov. 13.—Reorganization of the Paris Bourse, or stock exchange, was discussed in a long conference between Minister of Finances Henri Cheron and Gov. Moreau of the Bank of France. M. Moreau gave M. Cheron a long report on the situation of the bourse.

Combustion Puts Wood in Charge

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—Due to illness of George E. Learned, president, the board of directors of International Combustion Engineering Company has appointed W. R. Wood in control of the affairs of the company until further action by the board. Mr. Wood is senior vice president.

Millions Asking These Questions Answered Here

—By B. C. FORBES—

Probably several million Americans are at this moment giving serious thought to questions raised by one reader in a letter to this column. Therefore, it is opportune to present here the questions and a brief reply.

HE writes in part:

"I have always been in agreement with your economically sound policies, especially in reference to stock market speculation. I have also read your advice during the panic, where you state that stocks are a buy. There is no question in my mind that they are a buy, especially for a trading profit.

"Something, however, still sticks in my mind that I cannot square with either economic law or financial law. There were no gilt-edge rails or gilt-edge utilities that, if purchased at the prices in the panic, would yield an investor at least six per cent on the money invested.

"I AM one of those individuals, conservative perhaps, who believe that a gilt-edge common stock, such as a good rail or a good utility, should yield at least six per cent, and high-class industrial stocks from eight to 10 per cent.

"An investor today can invest his funds in good bonds, which is a mortgage on property; to yield six per cent or better; gilt-edge rail bonds will yield over five per cent; gilt-edge guaranteed mortgages by fine mortgage companies guaranteeing principal and interest yield an investor five and a half to six per cent.

"Now, although it is possible that common stocks may be cheap at today's price, I would like you to explain to your readers why common stocks should not yield an investor more than good bonds."

HERE'S as much of an answer as space permits:

We base our judgment of the future on past experience plus every other pertinent consideration, including our knowledge of human nature and our estimate of the character of the American people, our natural resources and our national destiny.

Past experience has shown that common stocks, as a whole, have recovered from every panic and sold at much higher prices. This panic has been the swiftest and most drastic the country has ever experienced, measured by the extent of the decline in stock quotations.

Past panics usually were accompanied by appalling financial wreckage—the wholesale failures of banks, stock exchange firms, business organizations of all kinds. Other panics were usually characterized also by skyrocketing money rates and a dire scarcity of available funds. Gross speculation and inflation in the business world sometimes preceded other Wall Street cataclysms.

This panic has not been accompanied by countless bank failures, stock exchange failures, business failures. It has not been accompanied by a sudden rise in money rates to 25, 50 or (as in one panic) 125 per cent. This panic was not preceded by gross speculation and inflation in general business.

THAT being so, is there any sound reason for believing that stocks purchased outright during the upheaval will not do as stocks purchased during other panics did, namely, recover very substantially in market value within a reasonable period?

(Meanwhile they may or may not sink to still lower levels temporarily. For that reason, among others, marginal buying has not been recommended here.)

Some of the stocks I have bought yield more than bonds, some distinctly less. I know that the greatest fortunes have not been made in securities markets by buying bonds but by buying well-selected stocks when everybody was frantically throwing them on the market during panics. Shares of almost every powerful American corporation purchased years ago have yielded holders far more than the yield on bonds.

NOW that we are a creditor nation, now that we lead the world industrially, now that we have our federal reserve currency system, now that we dominate the world's stock of gold, now that our national wealth has multiplied as no nation's wealth ever multiplied before, now that our brainy leaders are successfully acquiring or establishing enterprises offering promising opportunities throughout the world, now that we are supplying and applying electric power on a scale and at a cost unmatched in other lands, now that we have attained managerial skill admittedly unequaled by other industrial nations, now that our inventive genius is in full bloom, now that our relations between employers and employes are the envy of the world, now that the spirit of co-operation has largely displaced the spirit of destructive competition, now that so many corporations have bought in their bonds and preferred stocks—why, why should well-chosen shares in American enterprises acquired during this panic fare any less fortunately than they fared after earlier panics?

SHOOTS WOMAN, TRIES SUICIDE

ORLANDO, Fla., Nov. 13.—(AP.)—Mrs. Cora Leon Eden, divorced wife of the late James Oliver Curwood, the author, was shot and seriously wounded here late yesterday by R. C. Patton, 50, of Lima, O. Patton, after shooting Mrs. Eden through the mouth, shot himself and was believed in a dying condition at a hospital.

The cause of the double shooting was not learned. Patton, who travels for a Brooklyn metal company, said he went to Mrs. Eden's home and that she ordered him off the premises by flourishing a pistol. Patton told officers that when he saw the weapon in Mrs. Eden's hand he drew his own pistol and shot her. Mrs. Eden could not make a statement, due to the nature of her wounds.

Patton was shot above the heart, the bullet piercing a lung. He said his home is at 553 West Spring street, Lima.

Strike Ties Up Illinois Railroad

PEORIA, Ill., Nov. 13.—(INS.)—A general strike was called on the Toledo, Peoria and Western Railroad today and as a result all operations have been suspended. The T. P. & W. runs across the state from Effner, Ind., to Burlington, Ia. The trouble has been brewing since 1925, when eastern railroads in the same classification as the T. P. & W., granted increases to their employes. The T. P. & W. refused to participate in the wage boost.

CITY OF PITTSBURGH, DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS
November 12, 1929.
1. SEPARATE AND SEALED PROPOSALS will be received at the office of the City Controller, City-County Building, until 10:00 o'clock A. M., Eastern Standard time, November 22, 1929, and will be publicly opened and read one hour later in Room 526 City-County Building, for making the following public improvements:
PAVING, REPAVING, CURBING AND RECURBING, GRADING AND REGRADING, AND OTHERWISE IMPROVING.
West Carson street from Steuben street westwardly to the city line. Contract No. 3. Portion from a point about 1,160 feet west of Steuben street to Corliss Tunnel.
GRADING, PAVING AND CURBING.
McNeilly avenue, that portion in the corporate limits of the City of Pittsburgh, from Pioneer avenue to the City line.
CONSTRUCTION OF SEWERS.
Fifth avenue, north sidewalk, from a point about 170 feet west of South Highland avenue to the existing sewer on Fifth avenue east of College street. 12 inch T. C. pipe.
Marsden street, northerly sidewalk, from a point about 15 feet west of Sylvan avenue to the existing sewer on the east sidewalk of Monongahela street. 12 inch T. C. pipe.
Sirius street, east and west sidewalks, Omen Way, private property of L. Miedanner and Ames street, from points about 375 feet north of Regulus street, to the existing sewer on Ames street, with branch sewers on Irma and Chelsea streets, 12" and 15" T. C. pipe.
2. All bids must be made upon the prepared form of proposal to be obtained at the office of the contract clerk, Room 429, City-County Building, on and after November 13, 1929, upon presentation of receipt for deposit required for contract plans and specifications. Proposals containing any additions, erasures, omissions, alterations, additions not called for, or additional bid of any kind may be rejected as informal and no bidder will be allowed to withdraw his bid.
3. Bids must be accompanied by a bond in the amount of fifty (50%) per centum of the estimated cost of the proposed improvement duly and legally executed with a surety or trust company which has complied with the city ordinances relating thereto; said bond shall be in the form of bond furnished by the City of Pittsburgh.
4. Blueprint copies of contract plans and specifications may be obtained at Room 440 City-County Building. Deposits in the amount of $10 will be required for each set of specifications and blueprint copies of the contract plans for the West Carson street improvement, and $2 for each of the other above named improvements. Receipts for said deposits will be given and the money refunded upon return of plans and specifications in good condition and without marking within ten days of the date bids are opened.
5. The Mayor and the Director of the Department of Public Works reserve the right to increase or decrease the amount or class of any portion of the work which they deem necessary, to reject any or all proposals, or to accept any proposal which they deem it to be the interest of the City so to do.
CHARLES H. KLINE, Mayor.

Official—County 112

ALLEGHENY COUNTY, PA., DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS.
Pittsburgh, Pa., November 9, 1929.
Separate and sealed proposals will be received at the office of the County Controller of Allegheny County until 10 o'clock a. m. (Eastern Standard time), Tuesday, November 26, 1929, and will be opened by the County Commissioners one hour later for making the following improvement:

The Broker to His Love

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.

YOU were once a sound investment,
Soothing to the passing view,
I, who never knew what rest meant,
Found it when I first met you.

You were very far from common;
Truth to tell, you were preferred—
Cutest kid that walked a Pom on
Park or Riverside or Third.

Gone the rosy hue of youth.
You know what the Broadway pace is—
Fast as little Albie Booth.

When I met you, you were twenty,
Now when stocks have gone to hell,
You've reached forty—that is plenty—

—Don Wahn.

RAW!

HEYWOOD BROUN, the essayist, was one of the better talkers of the Columbia Jester Alumni gathering the other evening. He discussed Senator Brookhart's dry activities, among other things.

"The Senator," asserted Broun, "says that he never tasted liquor in his life, but that he knows liquor when he smells it. At her trial Texas Guinan contended that she never knew that they sold liquor in her place because she never touched it in her life, and that she couldn't tell it by smelling it.

"Personally, I don't believe that Senator Brookhart smells any better than Miss Guinan."

GOSH, YES!

Percy Crosby's ambition in life, he says, is to visit Egypt some day just to talk to "one of those Wise Men—and trip him up."

HEHEHEH

DURING a rehearsal of "Christopher Rand" the cast was instructed to meet at Bloomingdale's for wardrobe fittings. "It is always so crowded at that store, we'll lose each other," said an actor; "let's meet at a spot where we can be certain there won't be many people."

"Very well," suggested Eden Gray, "let's all meet in the book department."

FACT

Some time ago Otto H. Kahn hurled a dinner at his handsome manse in honor of George Gershwin, who had just signed to do the score for Ziegfeld's "Show Girl." Mr. Kahn said of his honored guest: "We haven't come here tonight to toast a genius, because George Gershwin isn't a genius. To be a genius Mr. Gershwin first must suffer!"

"Hmmmm," hmmmmd a flip-cracker to his table-neighbor, "he's going to work for Ziegfeld—he'll suffer."

VIA ENOUGH ROPE

In youth, it was a way I had
To do my best to please,
To suit his theories.

But now I know the things I know,
And do the things I do;
And if you do not like me so,
To hell, my love, with you!

Dorothy Parker.

IMAGINE

FOR three years Dorothy Parker wore out her heels trying to peddle a short story to the local publishers. One day, as a matter of fact, after being turned down by almost all of the book-builders, a friend said: "Why don't you go home and call it a day?"

"I must see another publisher first. I just want to hear one more 'No'," said Miss Parker.

However, the American Mercury also rejected it and The Bookman bought it for $75 (about five thousand words, too); but The Bookman let it collect a mess of dust before it was finally published.

Then Seward Collins, the editor, regretted its publication. "Six subscribers," he yelled one day to Dorothy, "have canceled their subscriptions because of it!"

The troublesome story which went begging for a printer's ink for over [illegible] and which eventually brought her $75 was "Big Blonde," which won the first O. Henry Memorial Prize last week!

ADD LUCKY BREAKS

HER name is Doris Robbins. Her specialty is blues-shooing with torch chunes. She shelved her home town, Chicago, about six weeks ago to startle New York, and particularly the Main Stem. But Broadway, it appears, is most indifferent to little girls who want to click.

And so Doris Robbins pounded the pavements trying to get the local impresarios interested. A night club, however, decided she was capable and engaged her. Then Ruth Etting, the queen of all torch-warblers, quit Mr. Ziegfeld's "Whoopee" and the Ziegfeld scouts pounced on Miss Robbins to fill the vacated role in Eddie Cantor's starring vehicle.

In fewer words, Dorris Robbins, who only a few weeks ago came to New York to show her Chicago friends (and probably her enemies) that she could succeed on Broadway, will shortly return to her home town as a principal in a Ziegfeld production!

CAPSULE CRITICISM

AND THEY HANG PICTURES!

SHAWT STORY

They will tell you it is the latest George Bernard Shaw story. It concerns the secretary of a woman's organization, who wrote asking him if he would be kind enough to present the members of her club with a copy of his tome on Socialism. Shaw scribbled his reply at the foot of her note to the effect that if the members couldn't find between them enough currency to purchase his book, he was hanged if he'd give it to them.

The indignant woman threw the letter in the wicker. Then, a little later, an idea struck her. She retrieved the crumpled missive, smoothed out the creases with a hot iron, and took it to a London dealer, who bought the famous author's autograph for five guineas.

"She's a Septic!"

Many women want to be, deserve to be, and could be far more popular than is their lot. Doctors know why. So do nurses. They call such cases septics.

To remedy obnoxious body odors and bad breath, you must recognize their cause. The trouble is deep-seated. Frankly in the colon. Semi-constipation makes millions of systems septic. There may be a daily movement, but all the waste is not eliminated. The matter that remains poisons the blood, and permeates the perspiration. It taints the breath. Nature is signaling her need of a tiny Calcium Wafer.

Calcium wafers work wonders in one's appearance, too. With the inner system sweet and clean, the complexion clears most marvelously. Eyes brighten. Teeth whiten. The tongue is no longer coated, even on arising. And you never need take another harsh cathartic.

Perhaps you are a septic, and don't know it. Try a tiny wafer of calcium, and see! It may make all the difference in the world. Leave harsh, habit-forming cathartics alone. You never need them if you take an occasional calcium wafer.

TRY your hand at this fascinating game of Anagrambles—the game that is taking the town like the crossword puzzle craze took the whole nation for a ride through the dictionary.

The game is quite simple. Merely change the following words by the addition of the single letter indicated. Do not omit any letter of the original word. The letter may be inserted at the beginning of the word, anywhere within the word, or at the end. Thus, the word "pate," by the addition of the letter "l" becomes either "pleat" or "plate." The word "drag" may be changed to either "grade" or "raged" by the addition of the letter "e."

The original word must be changed in meaning by the commentary letter. To change "mine" by adding "d," to form "mined," would be incorrect. Rearrange the letters of your word to change its meaning, not its tense or number. Take a pencil now and write in your newly formed word in the spaces provided.

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Too much rich food creates acids which clog the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood. Then you get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage, or attended by a sensation of scalding, begin to drink soft water in quantities; also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone can take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby often preventing serious kidney complications.

Principles of Independent Americanism Outlined in New And Refreshing Form in Hoover's Armistice Day Speech

President Hoover in his Armistice Day speech Monday night said a lot of things which will long be remembered by the millions who heard him.

For the second consecutive year the people on this solemn anniversary have heard an American President talk straight United States. Coolidge in 1928. Hoover in 1929.

This is not yet a world in which the lambs can comfortably lie down with the lions, says President Hoover. The world is at peace, "Yet after all it is an armed peace. The men under arms, including active reserves, in the world are almost 30,000,000 in number, or nearly 10,000,000 more than before the great war. Due to the Washington arms conference and the destruction of the German navy the combatant ships in the world show some decrease since the war. But aircraft and other instruments of destruction are far more potent than they were even in the great war. THERE ARE FEARS, DISTRUSTS AND SMOULDERING INJURIES AMONG NATIONS WHICH ARE THE TINDER OF WAR, NOR DOES A SINGLE QUARTER OF A CENTURY DURING ALL THE AGES OF HUMAN EXPERIENCE WARRANT THE ASSUMPTION THAT WAR WILL NOT OCCUR AGAIN."

"The first law of progress requires the world to face facts, and it is equally plain that reason and conscience are as yet by no means supreme in human affairs. The inherited instinct of selfishness is very far from being eliminated; the forces of evil are exceedingly powerful.

"There is a wide distinction between absolute prevention and frequent recurrence of wars, and PEACE IS OF LITTLE VALUE IF IT IS CONSTANTLY ACCOMPANIED BY THE THREATENED OR ACTUAL VIOLATION OF NATIONAL RIGHTS."

So, according to President Coolidge, there are things worth even more than peace. President Hoover says so, too, this year:

"The men who fought are the men who pray for peace for their children, but they rightly demand that peace be had without the sacrifice of our independence or of those principles of justice without which civilization must fail. SUCH A SACRIFICE OF FREEDOM AND JUSTICE IS THE ONE CALAMITY GREATER THAN WAR. The task of statesmen is to build a road to peace which avoids both of these calamities. This road requires preparedness for defense. It equally requires preparedness for peace."

First, preparedness for defense. It will be a long time before international good will can be relied upon as a substitute for adequate defense measures, in the opinion of President Hoover. His words will do something to clear up the miasma of pacificistic blah which has filled the air the last 10 years:

"Until the power of world public opinion as a restraint of aggression has had many years of test, there will not have been established that confidence which warrants the abandonment of preparedness for defense among nations. TO DO SO MAY INVITE WAR. I AM FOR ADEQUATE PREPAREDNESS AS A GUARANTY THAT NO FOREIGN SOLDIER SHALL EVER STEP UPON THE SOIL OF OUR COUNTRY."

"We have already agreed with Great Britain that there shall be parity of naval strength between us. I am in hopes that there will be a serious reduction in navies as a relief to the economic burdens of all peoples. And I believe that men and women throughout the world will demand such reduction. WE MUST REDUCE AND LIMIT WARSHIPS BY AGREEMENT ONLY. I HAVE NO FAITH IN THE REDUCTION OF ARMAMENTS BY EXAMPLE ALONE."

Reduction of armament by American example alone was the unique accomplishment of the Washington arms conference of 1921, when we destroyed battleships and battle cruisers while England and Japan destroyed plans. The President serves notice that we are through with that particular kind of foolishness. A year ago President Coolidge referred to the Washington conference:

"It no doubt has some significance that foreign governments made agreements limiting that class of combat vessels in which we were superior, BUT REFUSED LIMITATION IN THAT CLASS IN WHICH THEY WERE SUPERIOR. We made altogether the heaviest sacrifice in scrapping work WHICH WAS ALREADY IN EXISTENCE."

"Nor does this friendliness, esteem and respect of the world come to nations who behave weakly or supinely. IT COMES TO THOSE WHO ARE STRONG BUT WHO USE THEIR STRENGTH NOT IN ARROGANCE OR INJUSTICE."

President Coolidge said on Armistice Day, 1928:

"All human experience seems to demonstrate that a country which makes reasonable preparation for defense is less likely to be subject to a hostile attack and less likely to suffer a violation of its rights which might lead to war."

Besides putting in new and refreshing form the principles of independent Americanism dear to every American heart, President Hoover on Monday did something novel and startling. He proposed that food ships should be made free from interference in future times of war. "The time has come to remove the starvation of women and children from the weapons of warfare." It will be many a long day before the echoes of debate on THAT proposition cease rebounding from chancellery to chancellery in Europe.

It would be nice if there were some way to compel certain Senators and Congressmen to learn it by heart.

Welfare Fund's Goal $1,168,000 for Charity

With the slogan, "Teamwork for Humanity," the second annual drive of the Welfare Fund of Pittsburgh and Allegheny County for funds to finance the charities which hold membership in the Fund was begun at a dinner in the William Penn Hotel last night. In attendance were the several hundred women and men who will make the solicitation for the greatest movement in behalf of mass philanthropy in the history of the city. The goal is $1,168,000 to be raised in 10 days. This [illegible] is to be divided, as needs require, throughout the year [illegible], among 31 member organizations of the Welfare Fund. [illegible]e budget is larger this year because membership in the [illegible]as been increased by the addition of several organizations not members in the first year of the operation of this great central reservoir of funds devoted to the aid of suffering humanity. Organizations which remained out of what is designed eventually to be a "community chest" saw how successful and economical its operation had been in the first year and decided to join with the number that pioneered in the experiment which has developed into a conspicuous achievement in behalf of the unfortunate of the city and county who are in need of assistance and sympathetic interest.

Knowing the generous heart of Pittsburgh, we feel certain that the amount set as necessary to carry on the work of these 31 worthy organizations will be subscribed in the 10 days allotted to the campaign. The public will welcome the solicitors because they represent a movement toward making charity donations a duty of once a year only. Also because the method adopted both for raising and distributing the fund does away with a vast amount of duplicated work, and the expense thus saved means just so many more dollars for those who need them most.

We are sure that it will be unnecessary to urge the people to give and that the only thing needful is this reminder that the solicitors will call, so that prospective donors will be prepared. It is known that it is not always convenient to meet requests that come unannounced, so this drive has been carefully publicized so that all may know about the time when they would be asked to give, even if it requires a little personal sacrifice, which most people are willing to make cheerfully when it is known that many unfortunate aged persons, children, families, [illegible] all degrees of want, really make the appeal instead of the [illegible]r who calls at your door—the door of your kind heart as well [illegible]s your residence.

The Welfare Fund army of solicitation is prepared to do its part, at a cost of no little inconvenience on the part of the workers. We can help to make its labor lighter by being prepared for it when it comes to us, as it will in a day or two.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

That sentence was written by Walter B. Pitkin, of Columbia University, in an article about Woodrow Wilson in which he shows the inner agony of that strangely defeated life . . . a life defeated, not by outward circumstances but by disorder within the man himself. Woodrow Wilson had a great mind, splendidly trained. But great as it was, that mind was never able to control his turbulent feelings. And his feelings spoiled life for him.

It will help you a lot to think about that distinction between "mind" and "feelings" and the conflict that goes on forever between those two departments of your life. THOUGHT and EMOTION, two czars squabbling for the one empire. With emotion grabbing the throne nine times out of ten. And there's reason for that.

It is not easy to THINK. Man hasn't been THINKING very long . . . he still does it clumsily, inadequately. But it is easy to FEEL, for we've been FEELING since life began. Nine-tenths of our time is spent in feeling. A scant one-tenth is spent in thought. But one honest thought is worth a million feelings.

It isn't easy to tell the difference between feeling and thought. Many of us don't know that there is any difference. We flatter ourselves that we have strong ideas on various subjects, but very often they're not "ideas" at all—but simply camouflaged emotion. Prejudice isn't THOUGHT—suspicion and superstition aren't THOUGHT. They are FEELINGS—the various fruits of hate and fear.

PEOPLE WHOSE LIVES ARE SWAYED BY THEIR EMOTIONS HAVE NOTHING WHATEVER ON WOODCHUCKS. The man who takes cover in his intolerance is exactly on a par with the woodchuck that takes cover in his hole.

ONLY THOSE WHOSE THOUGHTS HAVE MASTERED THEIR FEELINGS, ARE TRULY HUMAN . . . TRULY GROWN UP . . . TRULY CIVILIZED.

Every time you are mastered by your hate, your fear, your greed or resentment or egotism, you drop back a million years in human evolution. Every time you THINK A THING OUT instead of FEELING IT OUT you advance a little further from the jungle.

That doesn't mean that thoughts should eliminate feelings. Much that is finest in life springs from noble emotions. But even the noblest emotion will run amuck unless governed by thought.

Pity's a grand thing, but it will make a fool of any man unless harnessed by intelligence. Love's a beautiful attribute, but a warm heart without a cool head is a pest. Pride makes conquerors, heroes and saints . . . and also unmakes them.

Want to try an interesting experiment? Keep tab on yourself for just one day and see how often you THINK . . . how often you FEEL. You'll be surprised! And maybe you'll understand better why Mr. Darwin pigeon-holed Grandpa with the monkeys.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Vulcanizing a Bubble

REPORTS that the writer had gone broke in Wall street are as without foundation as a Japanese fern.

"Bugs" Baer

We were the eastern representative of a big western huddle. At the start of the papyrus slump we sold our membership in the subway to protect our seat in the Carnegie Library.

Then we threw in a thousand shares of Central Park as collateral for our big steamship holding on Great Salt Lake.

Our chauffeur got out the duplex bicycle and we scrammed to the street to bulldoze the market

It was the first time we had ever been anchor man in a panic. Our broker was there with good advice from the Gypsy Dream Book.

He said, "Don't sell Giraffe Necks short."

MORE SCHOOLS AND LESS FOOLS

By Herbert Kaufman

LIKE the old darky who heard the noon whistle blow, and remarked, "It's EATIN' time for some folks, but it's just TWELVE O'CLOCK for me," several million American citizens, and as many more intending citizens, hear the calls of opportunity and haven't the means to respond.

Democracy's boasted guarantees of equality are canceled by illiteracy. To be ignorant is to be deaf, dumb and blind.

Men are not free to choose careers and occupations at will, until they are made peers before possibility. And that peerage can only be bestowed by knowledge.

Those who cannot read, write and SPEAK the language of the nation are incompetent to share the boons of progress, to render efficient service, to compete for leadership, to better their condition or maintain pace with contemporary thought.

A MIND compelled to plow through life with the makeshifts of intelligence, is as handicapped as a farmer attempting to cultivate unfertilized acreage with a crooked stick.

A brain beyond the reach of community pollens cannot hope to blossom into noteworthy utility, or produce a satisfactory yield from its labors.

An ignoramus, however NATIVELY endowed, encounters barriers at every turn and deadlines in all directions.

The alien who persists in the use of his mother tongue, and refuses the chance to acquire the speech of his new environment, must limit his expectations to the LEAST remunerative areas of employment.

The sovereign remedy for poverty, peonage and injustice is the printing press. The surest eraser of tenement districts and racial huddles is the schoolroom.

THE ONE force that can bond such a diversely bred and widely spread population as ours in patriotism and concerted purpose is some state and federally enforced statute, which imposes upon every citizen of these United States certain fixed standards of literacy, so that the messages of the President, the enactments of legislation, and the codes under which we have determined to regulate our morals and our affairs, may be comprehended by the hill-billy and the alien, too.

There are STILL thousands of communities similar to the settlement on the Rapidan, where Hoover encountered families of Colonial descent utterly unaware of facts and conditions, long familiar to the youngest primary pupils.

AS far as they are concerned, pure food laws, health regulations, sanitary codes and usury penalties do not exist.

Congress consistently enacts legislation in their interest, but cravenly postpones action on the Americanization Bill, which would compel them to learn their constitutional rights, and the myriad of markets—of which science has accomplished and invention has achieved and pathology has discovered.

We'd have HALF as many fools if there were TWICE as many schools.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

PROTEINS, like fats or carbohydrates, can be burnt as fuel, and a large proportion of the proteins we eat are used up in this way. But they have another and more essential role, one which they alone can perform. For the actual fabric of the living cell is built largely of proteins. Not only can they be burnt by our engines; they are the steel of which these engines are made. Herein lies the importance of proteins in our diet; any of the three kinds of foodstuffs will serve as an energy-source, but protein is the only one that can be used for body building—for growth and for keeping the tissue-machines in repair.

There is just one other chemical term we shall have to use here—amino-acid. Because these amino-acids (there are a number of them) lie at the base of protein structure.

H. G. Wells

An animo-acid molecule is simple compared with a protein, complex compared with water. It contains from 10 to 20 atoms of carbon, hydrogen, oxygen, nitrogen and sulphur, which may be put together in various ways. The number of different arrangements—in other words, of different animo-acids—that have been found in living tissue is small; there are about 18 or 20.

Now these animo-acid molecules can combine together, and it is possible for great numbers of them to unite to form a single giant molecule. It is these giant molecules which are the proteins.

There are only 20 different animo-acids, but countless numbers of proteins. That is because there is an infinity of ways in which the animo-acids can be built together.

As a further complication, a few proteins included factors that are not really animo-acids at all; thus haemoglobin contains iron and the nuclear proteins contain phosphorus.

The body-cells require proteins, but they require particular ones. The proteins in our food are different from those in our flesh; it is not possible, for example, that the proteins of a cabbage leaf could play any part in the activity of a muscle-cell; its animo-acids are fitted together in the wrong way. There is indeed no way of eating the correct kind of protein except cannibalism, and even then there exists no way of getting it direct to the blood without unmaking and making it again.

The method adopted is as follows: We eat proteins of all kinds; we break them up in our stomachs into their 20 animo-acids; we absorb the animo-acids into our blood and thus distribute them to our tissues; finally, the cells take up these animo-acids and fit them together to make up the particular proteins that they require.

The work that is done upon the carbohydrates and fats is quite parallel to what is done upon proteins. The most familiar simple carbohydrate is glucose, the chief sugar of many fruits, and especially of grapes, and the sweepening constituent of common jams and sweets.

This is the form of carbohydrate which circulates in the blood, and all other carbohydrates—the starch in potatoes for example, or table sugar—which are more complex in their composition must be broken down to glucose before they enter our real interiors. Similarly the fats are broken down to their simpler factors, glycerine and fatty acides.

Assisted by bacteria in his intestine, the mouse can also turn cellulose, the main substance of ordinary vegetable tissue, into glucose, but in that it has the advantage of man.

In digestion all the three important classes of organic foods—proteins, carbohydrates and fats—are thus treated according to the same general plan; the molecules are broken up into simpler constituent ones, absorbed as such into the blood, and then rebuilt by the tissue-cells into other arrangements which suit their individual needs. Water and the mineral salts that we require are not dissected in this way; their molecules are already as simple as need be, and no adjustment is necessary.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—That hauntingly picturesque slice of lower Fifth Avenue running half a dozen blocks northward from Washington Arch, has tried desperately but hopelessly to retain the apricot gloom of its antiquity. Nearly all the brown stone charm has been effaced by ornate apartments.

Its mellowness once suggested ruffled collars, four wheelers and spanking bays, and the disintegration has been a blow to the diehards. The latest attack on architectural front is the effort to demolish and commercialize the red-bricked Mark Twain home at the Ninth street corner of the avenue.

A bank recently leased the first two floors to convert them into one of those polished branches. The Washington Square Association, which tries to check the vanishing processes, rushed into court to battle for its preservation.

No matter who wins, the unraveling of legal entanglements will require two years, so the home will remain intact for that period. The house stands with the same furnishings just as it did in the days when Twain spent final days writing in bed and puffing fierce black cigars.

The author loved the place, next to his old Hartford home, best of all. It was where he spent charming interludes chatting with close friends and playing the game of billiards he enjoyed so much. The only indication it is his old home is the brass plaque on the side street wall.

This plaque bears the images of Washington Irving and Mark Twain. Irving spent pleasant days there at intervals and it is reputed one of the rooms was set aside solely for his use. The structure is now the property of an old New York family.

Directly across from the Twain home is another landmark, a melancholy reminder of the suave social graces of other days. This is the Hotel Berkeley, whose calm in the hubbub suggests a daguerreotype at a modern art exhibit. In the quick, rushing process it clings passionately but with an aristocratic aura to the past.

* * *

Few sections of New York show the building progress of the upper Bronx in the past few years. Acres, once tangled weeds and ash heaps, are now sprightly with business sections. Streets literally bloom overnight. So big and varied are New York interests that not many below One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street know of the amazing building operations northward.

* * *

On the other hand, one of the most lugubrious sections in town is that circling Woodlawn Cemetery in the Bronx with its mournful array of monumental works, funeral florists and glum groups of gravediggers. * * *

Among monument inscriptions was this epitaph: "To Die Is Merely to Live in a Happier Land."
